Dies Report Reveals Workings of Nazi Espionage System in U. S.; 46 Huge American Bombers To Go to British; Italian Right Wing in Wild Rout

One American Bombsight Also Freed for Use By R. A. F.

By Hedley Donovan
Post Staff Writer

The United States Army is releasing 46 of the most powerful bombers in the world, four-engine, 20-ton planes with a striking radius of 1,500 miles, for early delivery to Britain.

Gen. George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff, announced yesterday that negotiations have been completed to give the Royal Air Force priority on delivery of 26 heavy bombers from the Consolidated Aircraft plant in San Diego. Deliveries began last week and should be completed by March 1, he said.

Negotiations are now in progress, he revealed, to make available to Britain 20 more four-engine bombers from the Boeing plant in Seattle, to be delivered with full armament. These are the newest planes of the famed "flying fortress" type, believed to be more deadly than any air weapon yet used in the European war.

Given Sperry Bomb Sight

Gen. Marshall also disclosed that the British already have been granted use of one of this country's two prized bomb sights—the Sperry—long guarded as one of America's major "military secrets."

The Army and Navy are now using a still more modern bomb sight, the Norden, which is not installed on planes for export, Gen. Marshall stated.

America's latest step to reinforce beleaguered Britain brings virtually all Europe within bombing range of the R. A. F. The bombers released to Britain, though not intended for operations more than 1,500 miles from their bases, have a maximum range of 2,000 miles.

A Test of Planes

In return for the Army's acceptance of a three-month delay in delivery of its Consolidated bombers, Gen. Marshall said Britain is releasing to the United States enough engines to equip 41 of the "flying fortress" type of bombers. Extensive British orders for engines,

Naval Incident Rumor Spiked

By Arnaldo Cortesi

Mexico City, Nov. 20.—Today's news from Tampico completely deflates the much-publicized incident that is supposed to have occurred in those waters on Monday, when American destroyers were reported to have detained one Mexican and one Honduran ship in Mexican territorial waters.

Sworn statements made by the captains of the two vessels in question to the commander of the port of Tampico, Rear Admiral Gabriel Carvallo, make it clear they were never asked to heave to, but were merely requested to give their identity and destination by means of signals. There was nothing in the captains' testimony to suggest that the American destroyers ever entered Mexican territorial waters.

Both Capt. Narciso Ulises, of the Mexican tanker Cerro Azur and Capt. William Kladanass, of the Honduran freighter Caibo, emphatically declared they had no complaints to make against the American destroyers and that they did not wish to make an incident out of the fact of their being questioned.

Police Find Bullets Linking Suspect to Sniper Slayings

2 Slugs Taken From Tree Bear Marks Similar to Those in Sniping Murders; Man Held Was Seen Shooting at Target

Police last night announced they had uncovered two bullets on a pistol practice range which bore markings similar to bullets fired from the gun of the sniper who killed four persons here in recent weeks.

The bullets, police said, strengthened a chain of circumstantial evidence linking a suspect, being held here, with the shoot-from-behind murders.

It was revealed last night that at least one witness had been found who saw the suspect shooting at a tree, the location of which was not disclosed, and that two bullets removed from it and given a ballistics test last night appeared to have come from the sniper's weapon.

The suspect, a 25-year-old former Washington college student, was arrested Saturday in Baltimore, where he makes his home, and, according to police, he has been partially identified by the companion of the last sniper victim. Police said that the suspect has served a term in an Indiana prison for burglary.

Detectives still were seeking the .38-caliber gun which associates of the suspect said he frequently displayed, but which the suspect denies having. The sniper used a .38-caliber gun in the fatal shootings.

Among the circumstantial evidence against the suspect, police said, is a motive. The sniper shooting victims—seven in all, four of whom died—have been colored persons. Police said they had information that the suspect had vowed repeatedly to "get even" with colored persons because of certain incidents while serving his term in prison.

Also, police assert, the suspect is known to have threatened bombing of a colored church here.

The partial identification of the suspect was made by Mildred Washington, 17-year-old colored girl, whose escort was slain at K Street and Rock Creek Parkway.

Fascist Flight So Rapid Greeks Can't Keep Up; Booty Is Large

Athens, Nov. 20.—The left wing of the Greek army burst through the Italian lines today on a wide sector between Liaskovik and Ersek and in the vicinity of the Hagirs-Georgoutsades junction of the Argyrokastron-Porto Edda road.

Pressing their victory to the fullest advantage, the advancing Evzones beat hard on the heels of the withdrawing Italian units and forced them into headlong retreat.

Tonight it is reported that two Greek army corps have rushed through the gap and five Italian divisions are drawing back into the interior of the country. These statistical estimates cannot yet be confirmed.

Spread Fanwise

Nevertheless, it is known that the victory is great and many Italian units are fleeing so fast that Greek vanguards cannot even find them to establish contact. It is reported that Greek reconnaissance planes have sighted Italians retreating only 7 miles south of Argyrokastron, Italy's major inland base in southern Albania.

Large quantities of booty have been seized all along the front, including tanks, lorries, food, guns and prisoners. So many lorries were captured that a shortage of truck drivers has been found at the front, and a telegraph dispatch has been sent to Athens to round up new chauffeurs.

Behind the Koritza-Liaskovik road toward the center of the front, it is believed that Greek advance units are spreading fanwise into the countryside. Two columns are understood to be marching westward at top speed in the direction of Argyokastron and Berat, although they are a long distance from these important towns.

At the same time, Greek regiments of the extreme left (western) wing, north of the Kalamas River, have been able to punch another hole in the Italian line and now are advancing more rapidly than at

Army Investigates D. C. Captain Accused of Subversive Acts

National Guard Officer Relieved of Command As Military Intelligence Sifts Allegations Of Disloyalty to U. S. Made by Soldiers

By Marshall Andrews

A captain in the District National Guard has been relieved of his command while allegations that he has committed subversive acts and has made statements disloyal to the United States are under investigation by the military intelligence division of the War Department, The Post learned yesterday.

An enlisted man in the same regiment also has been suspected and his case is under consideration by the Army. While the captain has been suspended from command for several days and witnesses have been heard and were being heard yesterday, no formal charges have been brought against him pending outcome of the investigation.

His commanding officer, asked about the matter by The Post, said, "I do know that he has been relieved of command. However, I am not conducting whatever investigation is underway and have not been called into the case. It is entirely out of my hands."

Allegations against the captain, The Post learned, were brought first by enlisted men in his unit. They include statements that he was heard to say publicly that no truck and no weapon among those under his command "would ever go into action against the German army." Other declarations charged to him in a complaint to the War Department are described as "violent" and "damnable."

It was learned that allegations against the officer were first called to the attention of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, which turned them over to Military Intelligence.

While declining to discuss the case, the captain's chief declared him to be "one of the most efficient, if not the most efficient, unit com-

Disclosures Link Embassy And Consuls to Propaganda Agencies; Describe Efforts To Slant Press, Radio

How the United States is being involved in the web of Nazi propaganda, espionage and planning is set forth in detail in the 500-word "white paper" of the House Committee Investigating Un-American Activities which has been following the trail of Nazi effort for the last two years.

In addition to the detailed story, replete with names of German diplomatic and consular representatives, the familiar Bund activities and Nazi attempts to cripple the British convoy system from the Canadian end, the "white paper" uncovers for the first time a plan entitled: "The Reorganization of German Industry in America After the War."

HANS THOMSEN

"The plan outlined," the Dies Committee report notes, "lacks nothing in its effectiveness or in detail for the contemplated organization, not merely of industry and trade, but also proposals to combine these spheres of activity with a great banking institute to underwrite and support the financing of German industry and trade activities.

"In the proposed industry or trade organization plan there is the obvious intent to draw upon all industrial activities in America that are in any way allied with German industry. Relations would arise out of the extension of patent agreements or cross-licensing of patents.

"The plan further contemplates bringing into the organization representatives from such leading industrial activities in the United States as cotton, cellulose, machine tools, the automotive industry, etc. The plan sets forth a very definite link with the industrial life in Germany by providing that all these activities, industry, trade, commerce and academic, shall be directed from a bureau to be established in the German ministry in Berlin.

"There is the very obvious intent to retain control of these activities in the hands of German authorities and not to permit their control to be dissipated or come under American influence."

The German industrial plan, the banking plan and other details, including voluminous notes setting forth the proposed leadership of the various companies to be organized under Nazi domination, was taken by the committee from the files of the Chemical Marketing Co. in New York, of which Dr. F. A. Kertess is president.

The Dies Committee report also designated Dr. Kertess as an influence in the American Fellowship Forum, "one of the most subtle" Nazi organizations in the United States, organized in 1939 by individuals in New York City "for the alleged purpose of establishing a spirit of fellowship amongst American citizens and also to extend that cooperation to citizens of other countries throughout the world."

Intend to Subvert New York's 750,000 'Germans'

The committee investigation showed that the registration papers of the organization were signed by Dr. Kertess, Dr. Edmund E. Kohl, Dr. P. J. Kesseler and Richard Koch.

"The guiding light of the organization since its inception," the committee report states, "was Dr. Frederic E. F. Auhagen."

Auhagen's connection with the forum was portrayed in a hearing before the Dies Committee in New York September last, when he told the committee that he had ceased active participation in its affairs in June, resigning "for fear of being involved in any organization, which, due to hysteria, might be classified as engaging in Fifth Column activities."

Indicative of the thoroughness of "the Nazi planning," to use the Dies Committee's phrase in reference to the scheme for founding a German bank in New York after the war, the document taken from the Chemical Marketing Co. files says:

"In view of the fact that in New York about 750,000 Germans (citizens of the Reich as well as Germans generally) are domiciled—a population equivalent to the cities of Cologne, Munich or Leipzig—it is reasonable to assume that such a banking institution would be assured of a most promising field of operation."

The banking plan visualized branches in all leading American cities, particularly in centers of large German population. The plan was so complete that it included proposed corporation papers under the laws of the State of New York.

Newsman Links Kertess to Spy System

After dealing exhaustively with Dr. Kertess' business activities as head of the Chemical Marketing Co. in Central and South America and its financial status, the committee report states:

"Investigation reveals that Dr. Kertess has interested himself in other than the business of the Chemical Marketing Co. and his sponsorship of the American Fellowship Forum. He not only travels extensively throughout this country, but during the past recent years he has cultivated the friendship of persons in large American corporations."

The testimony of James E. Edmonds, a New York newspaperman, set forth in the report, links Dr. Kertess directly with espionage activities. Edmond's first contact with Dr. Kertess resulted from the work the newspaper writer did for a Japanese newspaper agent. Late in 1939, Edmonds contracted to do research work for Dr. Kertess and Dr. Herbert Gross. This work consisted of checking library records concerning important American chemical patents, according to the report.

Edmonds' testimony revealed that in January, 1940, "I was approached by a representative from Canada of the British intelligence, to whom reports of my connections and activities had been transmitted. This agent of the British intelligence said it was rather useless to try to ensnare Dr. Kertess and Dr. Gross in the United States." The testimony further disclosed that the British agent hoped to "establish the link between the Canadian espionage activities in behalf of Germany and the German

British Check Mass Air Raid On Midlands

Antiaircraft Breaks Up 'Total' Attack On Industrial Area

By the Associated Press

London (Thursday), Nov. 21.—Nazi planes swarmed out of the night for a second "total" attack on Britain's industrial Midlands, but early today it was reported that a terrific antiaircraft barrage had dulled the edge of the new offensive.

Ground guns, firing with new effectiveness, were said to have dispersed waves of planes attempting a mass raid on an East Midlands town after less than two hours of incendiary bomb dropping, which is merely the first step in the "Coventry technique."

The bombs were extinguished and little damage was reported.

How the rest of the Midlands fared was not known.

Decree Signed To End Movie Block-Booking

New York, Nov. 20 (AP).—Elimination of so-called block-booking of motion pictures was provided in a consent decree, signed today by Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard which ends an action under the Sherman Anti-Trust Act against Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Paramount Pictures, Warner Brothers, Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation and R. K. O. Pictures.

The decree provided for the sale to exhibitors of not more than five pictures at a time, instead of 52, as formerly, and afforded opportunity for exhibitors to witness a "trade showing" of a picture before buying.

White Urges Freedom to Act Against Axis

U. S. Can No Longer Stay Aloof, Must Take Sides, He Declares

Copyright by New York Tribune Inc.

New York, Nov. 20.—William Allen White, chairman of the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies, urged today the immediate offering of a joint resolution to Congress providing for "freedom of action to preserve our Republic in any way that seems wise and just against those aggressor tyrants who have violated the peace of countries with whom the United States has treaties of nonaggression."

Speaking at a luncheon of the Union League Club, White said the feeling of the American people against totalitarian aggression was now strong enough so that questions of aid to Great Britain could be decided through "regular parliamentary procedure" rather than executive Presidential order.

[Speculation that White's views probably are fully supported by the White House resulted last night from the fact that White on Tuesday had conferred with President Roosevelt on what Mr. Roosevelt termed White's further activities. Neither he nor White would comment further.

[It was also recalled that Mr. Roosevelt on June 11 voiced high praise for White's leadership of the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies. At that time, the committee was publishing full-page advertisements using the slogan "Stop Hitler Now," and the President, at a press conference, lauded that effort toward what he said was education of the American people.—Editor's note.]

Questioned after the luncheon, White stated that such a resolution would have nothing to do with de-

Meade Hiring Charge Denied

Union officials in Washington last night indignantly denied that taxi drivers, Government clerks and other unqualified workers are being employed in wholesale lots as experienced carpenters to work on the Army's $9,000,000 cantonment construction at Fort Meade, Md.

H. W. Blumenberg, general representative here of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, declared that "hundreds and hundreds of men—I can safely say 1,000—have been discharged at Fort Meade because they were unable to demonstrate within a three-day probationary period that they were competent carpenters."

"You can't tell whether a man's a carpenter simply by looking at him," Blumenberg said. "The only thing you can do is to ask him if he's had at least four years experience in the trade and then put him to work for three days to find out if he's telling the truth."

Blumenberg stated the three-day probation procedure had been agreed upon by him and officials of

Sanitary Grocery Officials, Union Men Meet Today

A Thanksgiving Day conference of Sanitary Grocery Co. and union representatives was scheduled last night as the deadlock in the five-day-old strike of 1,000 clerks and managers continued yesterday.

A conference arranged for 4 p. m. yesterday between Sanico and union representatives was canceled on the advice of Labor Department conciliators who maintained contact with both parties through the day.

Hungary Joins Axis, Japan In War Pact

Rumania, Bulgaria Will Follow Suit, Germans Assert

Berlin, Nov. 20.—The process of constructing a new world order under the direction of Germany, Italy and Japan and with, according to usually well-informed German quarters, "the authoritative cooperation and full approval of the Soviet Union," moved a step in the direction of completion today with the signing in Vienna of a formal alliance between Hungary and the three Axis powers.

Other diplomatic steps in the same direction are expected to follow in rapid succession. Tomorrow or Friday Gen. Ion Antonescu, the Rumanian dictator, is believed scheduled to arrive in Berlin to place Rumania formally on the side of the Axis by signing a protocol similar to that which was festively validified with Hungary today.

In course of the week-end representatives of Slovakia and Bulgaria will, it is anticipated, journey to the Reich in order formally to affix the names of their countries to similar documents of allegiance to the Axis.

Therewith construction of a new European "League of Nations" appears to be making considerable progress. It will be a league, moreover, to which every European nation—excepting England and presently Greece—may be expected sooner or later to belong if the military strength of the Axis shows no sign of waning with relation to the British foe.

The community of peoples which will result from the new European order, it is said here, "will be general and indivisible," and no Euro-

1st Contingent Of 39 Selected In D. C. Draft

Induction Nov. 27-28; 12 Others Are Still to Be Chosen for Quota

Washington Selective Service headquarters last night announced the names of 39 of the District men who are to be inducted into the Army November 27 and 28, in the first increment of the draft.

The 39 men and 12 others to be inducted November 28, compose the 51 Washingtonians to be sworn in for a year's military training in the first draft call for 30,000 Americans this month and next.

Those going first to the new citizen armies from the Capital were qualified for service after rigid physical examinations administered to 260 who had been tentatively placed in Class 1.

The new soldiers will be sworn in at 10 a. m. next Wednesday and Thursday at the headquarters of the Fifth Marine Reserve Battalion, 438

Stocks Plummet Over Nazi Moves Despite Dividends

(Details, Pages 33, 34.)

New York, Nov. 20 (AP).—Stock prices toppled with losses of $1 to $4 for leading shares today despite the richest Thanksgiving fare of dividend announcements since 1937.

Traders seemed to ignore the dividend abundance in a spell of uneasiness over the intensified air attacks on England's industrial centers and the Axis diplomatic activity.

Leading commodities followed stocks lower. In the Chicago grain pit wheat fell 1⅝ to 2 cents a bushel. Soy beans, recently on the upgrade, broke 8 cents. Corn lost 1½ to 2⅛ cents. Cotton futures showed net declines ranging to nearly $1 a bale.

Help Chest Make Touchdown For Humanity, Baugh Pleads

Achievement of the $2,000,000 Community Chest goal is more important to Washington than victory in any football game, Slingin' Sammy Baugh, Redskins' back, said yesterday.

"Your enemies are disease, hunger and poverty," he told 700 volunteer solicitors at the report luncheon in the Willard Hotel. "You have completed six plays in your drive and must push on for the all-important touchdown in this game for humanity."

Pledges listed during the meeting from 101,988 contributors totaled $1,161,133, or 58.56 per cent of the $2,000,000 quota.

Belford V. Lawson, jr., chairman of the Capital Unit, asserted that money gathered by his organization was "real blood money," since it came from the lower income groups of Washington.

He told the luncheers that one member of his unit had risen from a hospital bed, provided by Community Chest funds, to gather $143 in the drive.

"That man," Lawson said, "told me he had benefited from the Community Chest and felt it his duty to aid in the drive."

The Greatest Blessing

Capital and 32 States Give Thanks Today for U. S. Peace

The Nation's Capital and 32 States give thanks today for a country at peace with the world.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt sped from Washington yesterday to their Hyde Park (N. Y.) home for the holiday as planes, automobiles and special trains carried thousands of Government workers to their home firesides for the day of thanksgiving.

Those who remain in the Capital will show gratitude to God with prayers at home or in churches, or through enjoyment of the day's offerings of the traditional Thanksgiving bird, football games and other special events.

Highlighting the local spiritual observance will be the brilliant Pan American mass at historic St. Patrick's Catholic Church, Tenth and G Streets Northwest, opening with a clerical and choral procession from the rectory at 10:30 a. m.

Another evidence of Pan American solidarity will be a good-will broadcast from Santa Rita, Venezuela, dedicated to the United States. The program, arranged by El Hogar Americano (the American Home), a Venezuelan inter-American good-will society, will be broadcast over Station YVQ, Santa Rita, 6670 kilocycles, at 9 p. m., Washington time.

Dies Report Reveals Workings of Germany's Espionage System in U. S.

Nazi Consuls And Thomsen Are Involved

authorities in the United States."

It was suggested that Edmonds make a trip to Canada "supposedly under British auspices, to learn about convoy movements "which would be essential to the Germans in this country."

Edmonds was to have been watched by the British authorities in Canada to learn what German agents contacted him. After three weeks in Halifax, Edmonds returned to the United States at the suggestion of the British authorities because no German agents had made contact and it was feared that further stay in Canada would jeopardize his work with the British intelligence.

Edmonds further testified, "Dr. Gross wanted me, I should make that clear, to try to bribe any employe of the Pan American Airways who might be susceptible to bribe to furnish information." This testimony was offered to the committee in connection with a proposal made to Edmonds to inspect the Bermuda convoy base and defenses about May 1, last, the report said.

"Indicating his foreknowledge of the impending declaration of war," continued the report, "Dr. Kertess cabled associates in Germany May 4, 1939: 'together with friends, ready for war.' The question that naturally arises is how did Kertess know that war was so imminent and secondly, why was it necessary to advise Germany at least four months prior to the outbreak of the war that Kertess felt that he could handle the interests of Germany in the Western Hemisphere so satisfactorily.

"It is quite evident that Dr. Kertess, although now a naturalized citizen, plays a leading part in helping the Nazi government achieve its purpose."

The committee's current report, which is virtually complete and deals solely with the Nazi activities, is the first of a series that Representative Martin Dies (Democrat), of Texas, chairman of the investigating group, has promised to make public covering similar activities by Italian, Russian and Japanese representatives, including diplomatic and consular agents in the United States.

Chairman Dies recently said that the full inquiry will show evidence that German, Italian, Russian and Japanese agents in the United States exchanged information to the common end of advancing the cause of the Axis powers.

Row Delays Report

Considerable confusion regarding the formal publication of the report has been occasioned by a row in the committee and the sudden trip of Chairman Dies to Chicago Tuesday, the day he had scheduled a meeting of his group for a showdown on the report's release, which he favored as the only means of dealing with the threatening situation. A reprinting, made necessary to make what Representative Joe Starnes (Democrat), of Alabama, said yesterday were "typographical changes," resulted in the delay.

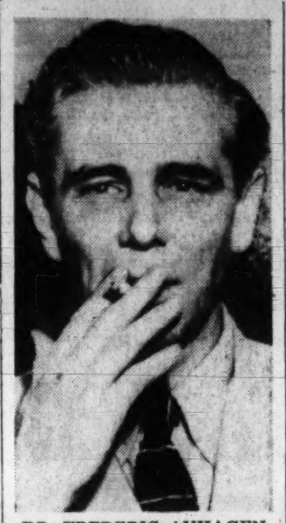
The current report first set out to prove that the Transocean News Service, headed by Dr. Manfred Zapp, is the clearing house for Nazi activities in addition to its more ostensible activity of service as a news agency for Nazi propaganda in North and South America. In this connection the report traces at great length correspondence between Dr. Zapp and members of the German Embassy.

Among the German diplomats specifically mentioned are Dr. Hans Thomsen, charge d'affaires, and Heribert von Strempel, counsellor for the embassy. There is ample correspondence, too, with minor members of the embassy staff and German consulates in Chicago, New York, Cleveland, Boston, New Orleans, and many in Central and South America.

The letters published in the report bring the committee to the conclusion that Dr. Zapp and his agency were operating "in this country and other sections of the Western Hemisphere according to the desires of Berlin and were compelled to abide by direct instructions from Germany." Concluding practically every letter quoted in the Dies committee summary, including several from American citizens, is the revealing greeting: "Heil Hitler."

The committee report says that Zapp and his associates were not only interested in "securing news" for dissemination in the United States and Germany, but also in contacting "persons and organizations in the United States by means of which they could secure confidential information."

Thus the committee found that Zapp was urged by the director of the Amerika Institut in Berlin to persuade Lawrence Dennis, American author of German sympathies, to influence the well-known radio commentator of German-descent (Hans V. Kaltenborn) "to crank up



DR. FREDERIC AUHAGEN

Kaltenborn's engine for your purposes." Dr. Zapp also was encouraged by Berlin, according to the report, "to make the acquaintance of persons in the United States who occupy positions of importance in American industry."

One section of the report deals with the investigation of the activities of the German-American Bund. This in part parallels previous investigations of the committee, although the report is bulwarked by additional documentary exhibits.

"During recent years," said the report, "many investigations have been made into the activities of groups who are alleged to be affiliated with the Nazi government. The attention of the investigating agencies for the most part has been directed toward uncovering the activities of the German bund.

"Up to the present time, there is no available information that the German government had been operating in this country as a well-organized, secret party, the membership of which was under the control of officials of the German government who were attached to the German embassy and the German consulates.

"It is understandable in part why these facts were never available, since the operations of this group were shrouded with diplomatic immunity.

"The organization is known as the Foreign Division of the National Socialist Party. The leader of the party in this country is Dr. F. Draeger, who is attached to the German consulate in New York City."

The committee report also reveals that investigations were conducted into the affairs of the German Library of Information, Seventeen Battery Place, New York City. From May, 1936, to September, 1939, the report states, the library was considered a part of the office of the German consulate general in New York. The ostensible purpose of the library, a creation of the German government, was to distribute information concerning art, literature, science, medicine and other cultural achievements of Germany. From its inception until August, 1940, the library expended $341,894.

Another section deals with the activities of the German railroads information office, an organization which conducted business in the United States for 20 years. The Dies Committee report indicates that unusually large sums were spent by this organization, reaching upwards of $200,000 annually.

In more than one summary, the Dies Committee shows that funds for the support of the Transocean News Service came from Berlin. One letter from Von Strempel is quoted in which Zapp declared: "Berlin has just now sent us $934, a mere drop in the bucket."

There is frequent correspondence with the German Embassy emphasizing the necessity for more funds, and this, the committee concludes, "becomes more interesting in the light of the fact that, in the period from January, 1939, and August 1, 1940, the news service operated in this country at a net expense of $128,251.95."

"The books disclose," the report continued, "that most of the receipts received by the news service were from the German Embassy in Washington and the various German consulates throughout the country."

The committee report further disclosed that the news service "was supplied to the various consulates in the United States at the direction of the German charge. Herr Thomsen, and, furthermore that, in some instances where the consul supplied the service to newspapers in this country, it was incumbent upon the consul either to pay for that service out of his own funds or to take the necessary funds from the client itself."

One of the points stressed in the report was that even the employes of the news service had to be approved by the German consul in New York City. Other evidence of Dr. Zapp's close ties with the consular network was a letter from the office of the German consul general in New York requesting him to report on the dissemination of Nazi news "in accordance with official instructions." In this connection the report pointed out that Zapp had been advised by the German Embassy that his report "would be brought to the attention of the foreign office."

In one letter, according to the committee's interpretation, Zapp was "required by the embassy to make an unofficial distribution" of certain documents, and an unsigned cable from Berlin found in Zapp's files ordered him "to disseminate throughout the United States the fourth German policy atrocity report."

Dr. Zapp, the committee said, denied to committee investigators that his agency was subsidized by the German government and furnished a long list of the names of German businessmen as a board of directors.

Concerned with Election

Throughout the documents there ran references to the interest in the outcome of the last Presidential election, making evident that both Zapp and his chiefs in Berlin were anxious to see a Republican victory. One communication inquired whether President Roosevelt would enter the Illinois primary last April, and another suggested that German literature give "the Republicans a lever in the election fight against the Democrats in the primary."

In a section devoted to Nazi propaganda in South America, the news service was characterized by the Dies Committee as the "chief propagandizing agent of the Nazi government" in Guatemala, Mexico, Havana, Ecuador, Argentina and Brazil. Writing the foreign office, Dr. Zapp told of his difficulties in handling the news in the United States, and said that his work had been easier in Mexico, where his service represented from 15 to 30 per cent of the entire foreign news in the Mexican press. In a letter dated October 17, 1939, he declared that Americans "hold the peculiar subjective notion that only they are objective and consequently they will not read news that does not sail under their own flag." He says that the consul at the embassy urged him "to marry the press if necessary."

From time to time in his correspondence he complimented himself on his contacts in this country relating that he saw President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull at a large dinner and was "very well acquainted" with Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles. "I regard myself," he concluded, "as having arrived at the place where I have always wanted to be. Whether I will go still further I want to leave in the laps of the gods. For the time being I am well satisfied."

Significantly he commented in another letter "that even though Central America is not officially in my jurisdiction, the major part of the task to be performed in Central America goes through my hands."

The committee concluded that Berlin looked to Zapp for the proper broadcasting of materials to South American countries and it quoted numerous documents containing his reports on the audibility of German broadcasts to South America. It contended also that his advice had been solicited by the German consul in New York regarding the establishing of a radio station in South America.

Correspondence between Dr. Zapp and Jujun Furukawa, a Japanese, led the committee to believe that Zapp "took a deep interest in the manner in which the United States handles its diplomatic relations with Japan and, in fact, at times not only gave advice to representatives of the Japanese government but also indicated to his own country certain steps that might be taken to aid his country in the handling of diplomatic affairs."

His suggestion to Berlin was that "the only and at the same time the strongest guarantee for American neutrality appears to be a ruffled United States of America-Japanese relationship which for the present and for an indefinite period will not permit an European involvement of the United States of America."

He urged that if the Japanese "show the Americans definitely a strong and defensive cold shoulder during your negotiations that this will impress them."

Radius of Long-Range, U. S. Bombers to Be Delivered to Britain

46 Big Bombers Freed for British

placed in this country months ago, put Britain in a position to yield these priorities to the United States, it was explained.

The 20 Boeing bombers which are now the subject of negotiations between the British and defense officials here would be released "fully equipped, except for the Norden bombsight," Gen. Marshall reported. He did not say whether the planes under discussion have already been delivered or are coming off the production line at the Boeing plant, but indicated that they would be available to Britain very soon after negotiation of "a basis for relase."

"The primary purpose of this release, from the viewpoint of the United States," he told reporters, "is to obtain an actual service test of this plane, no comparable plane ever having been used in actual operations. Such a fest will enable us to make desired modifications in planes now under contract for future delivery.

"In consideration for such release of planes our Government—in addition to the advantage of the tests mentioned—will receive at least the equivalent of these planes, but the negotiations have not yet proceeded far enough to make any statement on this at the present time."

Gen. Marshall revealed that American observers have been aboard planes of both Brtish and American manufacture in operations over Britain and the English Channel. This country is sending "a constant stream of observers" to the Battle of Britain, he said.

In other defense developments yesterday:

Secretary of the Navy Knox stated that American warships and naval planes are already using some of the bases recently leased from Great Britain as stations for the Atlantic patrol. Development of the bases is going forward under a $25,000,000 allotment, he stated, and announcement of the site for the Trinidad base, only one of the eight not yet selected, is expected shortly.

Test New, Fast Fighter

He disclosed that the Navy is now testing a new fighter plane capable of speeds over 400 miles an hour, which he described as "the toughest looking single-seater I ever saw." He said it was built by the Vought-Sikorsky Aircraft Co. and is powered with 1,800-horsepower Pratt & Whitney engine.

Knox also told reporters that a board of naval officers headed by Capt. C. E. Rosendahl has submitted its report on a site for a nonrigid airship base in southern Florida, but that details are not yet available.

He said the Navy Department is likely to place before Congress at the present session requests for new supplemental appropriations, though he declined to discuss the amount or possible uses of the funds. He announced that additional units of Naval Reserve, numbering 19 officers and 600 men, will be ordered to active duty within the next two months.

The National Defense Commission reported that $2,000,000,000 worth of Federal defense construction is in prospect by June 30, 1942, and that private factory construction this year and in 1941 will probably total an additional $630,000,000.

More than $1,000,000,000 of the Government defense construction program is now under way, including barracks, air and naval stations, aircraft plants and shipyards, according to the commission.

Gen. Marshall took occasion at his press conference to stress the value of the recent tour of defense establishments in this country by Latin-American army chiefs.

"The staff visits were the real foundation for a lasting understanding," he said. "We really got together. The visitors had an intimate look at our Army and demonstrations of anything they wanted to see. There was a feeling of good faith on everybody's part."

Stolen Type Spells Sentence for Two

Pleading guilty to 14 charges of petit larceny involving the theft of close to $3,000 worth of type metal from The Washington Post, two colored men yesterday were each sentenced to serve seven years in prison.

Judge Walter J. Casey imposed the penalty on Leroy Mills, 26, of 1201 I Street Northeast, and Joseph E. Smith, 32, of 43 Defrees Street Northwest, after they changed their original pleas of not guilty.

C. I. O. Cool to Plea For Labor Unity

Hillman Presents Roosevelt Appeal At Convention

By George B. Bookman.
Post Staff Writer

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 20.—The Congress of Industrial Organizations had before it tonight President Roosevelt's program for labor, voiced here by Sidney Hillman, labor commissioner defense, and the reception was not warm.

Hillman, saying "I have the complete support of the President of the United States," rushed here in defense of his record after he had been inferentially attacted yesterday by C. I. O. President John L. Lewis, and told the third annual C. I. O. convention:

"Labor will make progress only when it unites its forces."

Elements whose loyalty is to "Rome, Berlin and Moscow" are a "menace to the labor movement."

"There must be a demand for Philip Murray" to be president of the C. I. O. after John L. Lewis steps down.

After Hillman finished his impassioned, 105-minute appeal there were few informed C. I. O. officials who thought that Hillman had won the assembly from the labor policies of John L. Lewis, who still dominates this convention.

Avowing he had "no bitterness in his heart" toward any C. I. O. officer, Hillman replied to Lewis' attack of yesterday on the Hillman-led Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union for talking labor peace, by declaring:

"The Amalgamated will stay in the C. I. O."

Pleading for the backing of the majority of the C. I. O., the clothing workers' president told them "we will lick" the unemployment proble mbefore another year is out, called on C. I. O. to "do its share" for national defense and drove home his unity message at the end by pointedly shaking hands with Murray and Lewis.

His voice hoarse with earnestness, Hillman, who has the backing here of only a minority of C. I. O. unions, said his record as defense commissioner, was "an open book" for all to see.

He presented a full-length defense of his actions in Washington to answer charges by Lewis and allegations in a resolution adopted by the C. I. O. yesterday that labor has been inadequately represented in the defense commission.

Buttressing his defense, Hillman said he has already invited Eugene Grace and James Larkin, president and vice president of the Bethlehem Steel Company, to "accommodate" their labor policies to those enunciated by the defense commission.

The Ford Motor Company will receive a similar request from him in the very near future, Hillman said.

This was Hillman's way of rebutting criticism that defense contracts recently granted to Bethlehem and Ford have not been hedged with proper safeguards for labor rights.

Hillman begged the C. I. O. to accept a "sense of responsibility" and not to indulge in "the kind of things you will regret in the days to come."

His message throughout was that national defense is paramount, even in labor matters, today.

Reminding the delegates that his labor division of the national defense commission began operations less than five months ago, Hillman announced that he challenged anyone to say his division had not done "a very creditable job."

He recited what the labor division has done to put men back to work, to extend the National Youth Administration program, to clear slum areas, build defense housing and make employers comply with labor laws. He added: "To my knowledge no defense contract is being executed in violation of the wage-hour law or the Walsh-Healy law."

Key union leaders expressed the view that if Murray should consent to head the C. I. O., chances for labor peace and a house-cleaning among C. I. O. officials would be improved.

As one indication, the Amalgamated constitutional amendment to bar Communists, Nazis and Fascists from office has been bottled up in Lewis-appointed committees and may never emerge. Any action taken here against Communism will be in a much milder form, it is understood.

Bringing the Roosevelt philosophy into the very center of the C. I. O. gathering, Hillman warned them what would "happen here" if dictatorships triumph:

"You know what will happen here," he said. "You know that labor will be the first victims. There is only one way to protect ourselves against these human beasts. The only thing they recognize is power. Let us make defenses for this country that even the maniacs of Europe will recognize that this is no hunting ground for men."

Green Warns the Dictators U. S. Will Fight To Preserve Democracy in the New World

By Arthur F. Degreve
United Press Staff Writer

New Orleans, Nov. 20.—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, today warned Old World "dictators, despots and savages" that the people of this Nation are prepared to sacrifice their lives in defense of democracy in the New World.

At the Federation's sixtieth annual convention, Green assured Canada she could expect all assistance from the United States in repelling thrusts from aggressor powers.

The two nations live in harmony, Green said, because we "are a people who think alike, talk alike, speak alike and who are determined that peace shall prevail upon the American continent."

"We have a passion for peace," Green concluded. "But as peace-loving people devoted to the principles of peace and the protection of those principles, we declare that we will defend with our lives America, America's institutions, the democracy in America, our freedom, our liberty and our homeland, both here and in Canada as well."

Green's remarks were inspired by an address of Edward A. Jamieson, of Vancouver, B. C., fraternal delegate from the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, who was confident that the British Empire would triumph in her struggle against the Axis powers.

"There is not the least doubt in our minds about the final outcome of the combat," Jamieson said. "The English-speaking people of the world will not be defeated. Their cause is right and they must succeed."

Delegates applauded Jamieson when he described how the Canadian trade Congress had purged Congress of Industrial Organizations unions from the organization. It was the only reference in the day to the conflict between the warring factions of labor which was heightened last night when C. I. O. President John L. Lewis invited peace-seeking C. I. O. unions to take a walk.

At the close of today's session, the convention adjourned over the Thanksgiving holiday until Friday.

Earlier, Sol Rosenblatt, general counsel of the Democratic National Committee, was applauded for his declaration that the reelection of President Roosevelt was proof that democracy was functioning in the current world emergency.

He also drew applause when he criticized the opposiiton of the press to Roosevelt's Presidential candidacy in 1936 and 1940. Declaring newspaper publishers were "greatly shocked" on awakening on the morning of November 4, 1936, "to discover that they had no influence in the Presidential election," Rosenblatt added:

"If the press is to remain an instrument of public opinion, it is about time that those who read the papers should make their voices heard on the issue as to whether or not some of our newspapers are fulfilling their mission. When a publisher takes refuge behind the freedom of the press, the public has a right to ask: 'Freedom for whom and freedom for what?'"

Rosenblatt said:

"I know that the overwhelming majority of you must feel as I do: that in this emergency democracy has again justified itself. We have chosen again as our leader, Franklin Delano Roosevelt!"

The first real work of the convention was done today when delegates voted to recommend to Congress changes in the Social Security Act that would establish a permissive system governing the blanketing under the law of millions of Federal, State and municipal government employes.

The federation originally asked Congress to embrace all those public servants not yet covered, but this brought howls of protests from those who already were protected by local pension arrangements and who did not want these setups endangered by Federal action. The compromise would allow Congress to include those groups not now protected who wished to be brought in.

Reed Committee Report on Merit System Is Nearly Ready

By Edward Ryan
Post Staff Writer

A long-awaited report by the Reed committee intended to guide the President in carrying out the newly approved Ramspeck civil service bill is nearly ready for the White House, it was learned yesterday.

The committee, headed by Supreme Court Justice Stanley Reed, was appointed by the President early last year, to unearth new ideas and methods for improving the merit system.

Their report, held up for several months pending passage of the Ramspeck civil service bill, is ready to be approved with one more meeting of the committee, officials said, and while no date for their meeting has yet been fixed, it will probably be called within the next couple of weeks.

Among the Government employe groups expected to be first affected by whatever the Reed committee has to say are the lawyers, scientists, technicians and administrators, now outside the civil service but eligible for admission under the Ramsbeck bill.

It was the problem of recruiting these professional men through civil service, and keeping them in the Government by giving them a chance to find careers there, that brought appointment of the committee. From this assignment, the committee, working mostly in rigid secrecy, branched out to a general investigation of the Government's personnel management.

Some of its discoveries have already produced policy shifts in the Government's personnel program. The Civil Service Commission, central recruiting agency for the Government, came under the committee's investigation, partly as a result of the committee's findings, partly to speed its operations in the national defense program, the commission has been decentralizing its business and reducing the amount of work that has to be cleared through Washington.

While the committee was expected at one time to have its report ready early this year, delay in passing the Ramspeck bill kept the group at work. Their recommendations, officials said, have kept pace with the bill, and will go into only those problems which can be worked out under the legal authority contained in the Ramspeck measure.

It's usually easy to get on a Government mailing list, but here's an example of what can happen, if you're not careful, or if you are careful:

A young Government economist employed by the Wage-Hour Division had his name put on the list to receive the reports of the Temporary National Economic Committee, whose total production is expected to run around 70 volumes.

After receiving the first few volumes, the economist found his office crowded. He wrote the committee and asked them to send new volumes to his home.

They agreed promptly, thereafter sent one volume to his home, one to his office. For awhile he was able to give the office copy away.

Finally he changed jobs, and about the same time moved to a new home. He called the committee again, asked them to strike out the first two addresses, and send their reports to his new home address.

He made the mistake of leaving a forwarding address at his old home, also at his old office. Now he receives, regular as clock work, three copies of every volume. He plans to pass word around that he has forgotten how to read.

The Civil Service Commission announced yesterday that it was starting immediately to substitute fingerprints for photographs as a method for identifying applicants for Government jobs.

Dies Report Reveals Workings of Germany's Espionage System in U. S.

authorities in the United States."

It was suggested that Edmonds make a trip to Canada "supposedly under British auspices, to learn about convoy movements "which would be essential to the Germans in this country."

Edmonds was to have been watched by the British authorities in Canada to learn what German agents contacted him. After three weeks in Halifax, Edmonds returned to the United States at the suggestion of the British authorities because no German agents had made contact and it was feared that further stay in Canada would jeopardize his work with the British intelligence.

Edmonds further testified, "Dr. Gross wanted me, I should make that clear, to try to bribe any employe of the Pan American Airways who might be susceptible to bribe to furnish information." This testimony was offered to the committee in connection with a proposal made to Edmonds to inspect the Bermuda convoy base and defenses about May 1, last, the report said.

"Indicating his foreknowledge of the impending declaration of war," continued the report, "Dr. Kertess cabled associates in Germany May 4, 1939: 'together with friends, ready for war.' The question that naturally arises is how did Kertess know that war was so imminent and secondly, why was it necessary to advise Germany at least four months prior to the outbreak of the war that Kertess felt that he could handle the interests of Germany in the Western Hemisphere so satisfactorily.

"It is quite evident that Dr. Kertess, although now a naturalized citizen, plays a leading part in helping the Nazi government achieve its purpose."

The committee's current report, which is virtually complete and deals solely with the Nazi activities, is the first of a series that Representative Martin Dies (Democrat), of Texas, chairman of the investigating group, has promised to make public covering similar activities by Italian, Russian and Japanese representatives, including diplomatic and consular agents in the United States.

Chairman Dies recently said that the full inquiry will show evidence that German, Italian, Russian and Japanese agents in the United States exchanged information to the common end of advancing the cause of the Axis powers.

Row Delays Report

Considerable confusion regarding the formal publication of the report has been occasioned by a row in the committee and the sudden trip of Chairman Dies to Chicago Tuesday, the day he had scheduled a meeting of his group for a showdown on the report's release, which he favored as the only means of dealing with the threatening situation. A reprinting, made necessary to make what Representative Joe Starnes (Democrat), of Alabama, said yesterday were "typographical changes," resulted in the delay.

The current report first set out to prove that the Transocean News Service, headed by Dr. Manfred Zapp, is the clearing house for Nazi activities in addition to its more ostensible activity of service as a news agency for Nazi propaganda in North and South America. In this connection the report traces at great length correspondence between Dr. Zapp and members of the German Embassy.

Among the German diplomats specifically mentioned are Dr. Hans Thomsen, charge d'affaires, and Heribert von Strempel, counsellor for the embassy. There is ample correspondence, too, with minor members of the embassy staff and German consulates in Chicago, New York, Cleveland, Boston, New Orleans, and many in Central and South America.

The letters published in the report bring the committee to the conclusion that Dr. Zapp and his agency were operating "in this country and other sections of the Western Hemisphere according to the desires of Berlin and were compelled to abide by direct instructions from Germany." Concluding practically every letter quoted in the Dies committee summary, including several from American citizens, is the revealing greeting: "Heil Hitler."

The committee report says that Zapp and his associates were not only interested in "securing news" for dissemination in the United States and Germany, but also in contacting "persons and organizations in the United States by means of which they could secure confidential information."

Thus the committee found that Zapp was urged by the director of the Amerika Institut in Berlin to persuade Lawrence Dennis, American author of German sympathies, to influence the well-known radio commentator of German-descent (Hans V. Kaltenborn) "to crank up

Kaltenborn's engine for your purposes." Dr. Zapp also was encouraged by Berlin, according to the report, "to make the acquaintance of persons in the United States who occupy positions of importance in American industry."

One section of the report deals with the investigation of the activities of the German-American Bund. This in part parallels previous investigations of the committee, although the report is bulwarked by additional documentary exhibits.

"During recent years," said the report, "many investigations have been made into the activities of groups who are alleged to be affiliated with the Nazi government. The attention of the investigating agencies for the most part has been directed toward uncovering the activities of the German bund.

"Up to the present time, there is no available information that the German government had been operating in this country as a well-organized, secret party, the membership of which was under the control of officials of the German government who were attached to the German embassy and the German consulates.

"It is understandable in part why these facts were never available, since the operations of this group were shrouded with diplomatic immunity.

"The organization is known as the Foreign Division of the National Socialist Party. The leader of the party in this country is Dr. F. Draeger, who is attached to the German consulate in New York City."

The committee report also reveals that investigations were conducted into the affairs of the German Library of Information, Seventeen Battery Place, New York City. From May, 1936, to September, 1939, the report states, the library was considered a part of the office of the German consulate general in New York. The ostensible purpose of the library, a creation of the German government, was to distribute information concerning art, literature, science, medicine and other cultural achievements of Germany. From its inception until August, 1940, the library expended $341,694.

Another section deals with the activities of the German railroads information office, an organization which conducted business in the United States for 20 years. The Dies Committee report indicates that unusually large sums were spent by this organization, reaching upwards of $200,000 annually.

In more than one summary, the Dies Committee shows that funds for the support of the Transocean News Service came from Berlin. One letter from Von Strempel is quoted in which Zapp declared: "Berlin has just now sent us $934, a mere drop in the bucket."

There is frequent correspondence with the German Embassy emphasizing the necessity for more funds, and this, the committee concludes, "becomes more interesting in the light of the fact that, in the period from January, 1939, and August 1, 1940, the news service operated in this country at a net expense of $128,251.95."

"The books disclose," the report continued, "that most of the receipts received by the news service were from the German Embassy in Washington and the various German consulates throughout the country."

The committee report further disclosed that the news service "was supplied to the various consulates in the United States at the direction of the German charge, Herr Thomsen, and, furthermore that, in some instances where the consul supplied the service to newspapers in this country, it was incumbent upon the consul either to pay for that service out of his own funds or to take the necessary funds from the client itself."

One of the points stressed in the report was that even the employes of the news service had to be approved by the German consul in New York City. Other evidence of Dr. Zapp's close ties with the consular network was a letter from the office of the German consul general in New York requesting him to report on the dissemination of Nazi news "in accordance with official instructions." In this connection the report pointed out that Zapp had been advised by the German Embassy that his report "would be brought to the attention of the foreign office."

In one letter, according to the committee's interpretation, Zapp was "required by the embassy to make an unofficial distribution" of certain documents, and an unsigned cable from Berlin found in Zapp's files ordered him "to disseminate throughout the United States the fourth German policy atrocity report."

Dr. Zapp, the committee said, denied to committee investigators that his agency was subsidized by the German government and furnished a long list of the names of German businessmen as a board of directors.

Concerned with Election

Throughout the documents there ran references to the interest in the outcome of the last Presidential election, making evident that both Zapp and his chiefs in Berlin were anxious to see a Republican victory. One communication inquired whether President Roosevelt would enter the Illinois primary last April, and another suggested that German literature give "the Republicans a lever in the election fight against the Democrats in the primary."

In a section devoted to Nazi propaganda in South America, the news service was characterized by the Dies Committee as the "chief propagandizing agent of the Nazi government" in Guatemala, Mexico, Havana, Ecuador, Argentina and Brazil. Writing the foreign office, Dr. Zapp told of his difficulties in handling the news in the United States, and said that his work had been easier in Mexico, where his service represented from 15 to 30 per cent of the entire foreign news in the Mexican press. In a letter dated October 17, 1939, he declared that Americans "hold the peculiar subjective notion that only they are objective and consequently they will not read news that does not sail under their own flag." He says that the consul at the embassy urged him "to marry the press if necessary."

From time to time in his correspondence he complimented himself on his contacts in this country relating that he saw President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull at a large dinner and was "very well acquainted" with Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles. "I regard myself," he concluded, "as having arrived at the place where I have always wanted to be. Whether I will go still further I want to leave in the laps of the gods. For the time being I am well satisfied."

Significantly he commented in another letter "that even though Central America is not officially in my jurisdiction, the major part of the task to be performed in Central America goes through my hands."

The committee concluded that Berlin looked to Zapp for the proper broadcasting of materials to South American countries and it quoted numerous documents containing his reports on the audibility of German broadcasts to South America. It contended also that his advice had been solicited by the German consul in New York regarding the establishing of a radio station in South America.

Correspondence between Dr. Zapp and Jujun Furukawa, a Japanese, led the committee to believe that Zapp "took a deep interest in the manner in which the United States handles its diplomatic relations with Japan and, in fact, at times not only gave advice to representatives of the Japanese government but also indicated to his own country certain steps that might be taken to aid his country in the handling of diplomatic affairs."

His suggestion to Berlin was that "the only and at the same time the strongest guarantee for American neutrality appears to be a ruffled United States of America-Japanese relationship which for the present and for an indefinite period will not permit an European involvement of the United States of America."

He urged that if the Japanese "show the Americans definitely a strong and defensive cold shoulder during your negotiations that this will impress them."

Radius of Long-Range, U. S. Bombers to Be Delivered to Britain

placed in this country months ago, put Britain in a position to yield these priorities to the United States, it was explained.

The 20 Boeing bombers which are now the subject of negotiations between the British and defense officials here would be released "fully equipped, except for the Norden bombsight," Gen. Marshall reported. He did not say whether the planes under discussion have already been delivered or are coming off the production line at the Boeing plant, but indicated that they would be available to Britain very soon after negotiation of "a basis for relase."

"The primary purpose of this release, from the viewpoint of the United States," he told reporters, "is to obtain an actual service test of this plane, no comparable plane ever having been used in actual operations. Such a test will enable us to make desired modifications in planes now under contract for future delivery.

"In consideration for such release of planes our Government—in addition to the advantage of the tests mentioned—will receive at least the equivalent of these planes, but the negotiations have not yet proceeded far enough to make any statement on this at the present time."

Gen. Marshall revealed that American observers have been aboard planes of both Brtish and American manufacture in operations over Britain and the English Channel. This country is sending "a constant stream of observers" to the Battle of Britain, he said.

In other defense developments yesterday:

Secretary of the Navy Knox stated that American warships and naval planes are already using some of the bases recently leased from Great Britain as stations for the Atlantic patrol. Development of the bases is going forward under a $25,000,000 allotment, he stated, and announcement of the site for the Trinidad base, only one of the eight not yet selected, is expected shortly.

Test New, Fast Fighter

He disclosed that the Navy is now testing a new fighter plane capable of speeds over 400 miles an hour, which he described as "the toughest looking single-seater I ever saw." He said it was built by the Vought-Sikorsky Aircraft Co. and is powered with 1,800-horsepower Pratt & Whitney engine.

Knox also told reporters that a board of naval officers headed by Capt. C. E. Rosendahl has submitted its report on a site for a nonrigid airship base in southern Florida, but that details are not yet available.

He said the Navy Department is likely to place before Congress at the present session requests for new supplemental appropriations, though he declined to discuss the amount or possible uses of the funds. He announced that additional units of Naval Reserve, numbering 19 officers and 600 men, will be ordered to active duty within the next two months.

The National Defense Commission reported that $2,000,000,000 worth of Federal defense construction is in prospect by June 30, 1942, and that private factory construction this year and in 1941 will probably total an additional $830,000,000.

More than $1,000,000,000 of the Government defense construction program is now under way, including barracks, air and naval stations, aircraft plants and shipyards, according to the commission.

Gen. Marshall took occasion at his press conference to stress the value of the recent tour of defense establishments in this country by Latin-American army chiefs.

"The staff visits were the real foundation for a lasting understanding," he said. "We really got together. The visitors had an intimate look at our Army and demonstrations of anything they wanted to see. There was a feeling of good faith on everybody's part."

Stolen Type Spells Sentence for Two

Pleading guilty to 14 charges of petit larceny involving the theft of close to $3,000 worth of type metal from The Washington Post, two colored men yesterday were each sentenced to serve seven years in prison.

Judge Walter J. Casey imposed the penalty on Leroy Mills, 26, of 1201 I Street Northeast, and Joseph E. Smith, 32, of 43 Defrees Street Northwest, after they changed their original pleas of not guilty.

C. I. O. Cool to Plea For Labor Unity

Hillman Presents Roosevelt Appeal At Convention

By George B. Bookman.
Post Staff Writer

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 20.—The Congress of Industrial Organizations had before it tonight President Roosevelt's program for labor, voiced here by Sidney Hillman, labor commissioner defense, and the reception was not warm.

Hillman, saying "I have the complete support of the President of the United States," rushed here in defense of his record after he had been inferentially attacted yesterday by C. I. O. President John L. Lewis, and told the third annual C. I. O. convention:

"Labor will make progress only when it unites its forces."

Elements whose loyalty is to "Rome, Berlin and Moscow" are a "menace to the labor movement."

"There must be a demand for Philip Murray" to be president of the C. I. O. after John L. Lewis steps down.

After Hillman finished his impassioned, 105-minute appeal there were few informed C. I. O. officials who thought that Hillman had won the assembly from the labor policies of John L. Lewis, who still dominates this convention.

Avowing he had "no bitterness in his heart" toward any C. I. O. officer, Hillman replied to Lewis' attack of yesterday on the Hillman-led Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union for talking labor peace, by declaring:

"The Amalgamated will stay in the C. I. O."

Pleading for the backing of the majority of the C. I. O., the clothing workers' president told them "we will lick" the unemployment proble mbefore another year is out, called on C. I. O. to "do its share" for national defense and drove home his unity message at the end by pointedly shaking hands with Murray and Lewis.

His voice hoarse with earnestness, Hillman, who has the backing here of only a minority of C. I. O. unions, said his record as defense commissioner, was "an open book" for all to see.

He presented a full-length defense of his actions in Washington to answer charges by Lewis and allegations in a resolution adopted by the C. I. O. yesterday that labor has been inadequately represented in the defense commission.

Buttressing his defense, Hillman said he has already invited Eugene Grace and James Larkin, president and vice president of the Bethlehem Steel Company, to "accommodate" their labor policies to those enunciated by the defense commission.

The Ford Motor Company will receive a similar request from him in the very near future, Hillman said.

This was Hillman's way of rebutting criticism that defense contracts recently granted to Bethlehem and Ford have not been hedged with proper safeguards for labor rights.

Hillman begged the C. I. O. to accept a "sense of responsibility" and not to indulge in "the kind of things you will regret in the days to come."

His message throughout was that national defense is paramount, even in labor matters, today.

Reminding the delegates that his labor division of the national defense commission began operations less than five months ago, Hillman announced that he challenged anyone to say his division had not done "a very creditable job."

He recited what the labor division has done to put men back to work, to extend the National Youth Administration program, to clear slum areas, build defense housing and make employers comply with labor laws. He added: "To my knowledge no defense contract is being executed in violation of the wage-hour law or the Walsh-Healy law."

Key union leaders expressed the view that if Murray should consent to head the C. I. O., chances for labor peace and a house-cleaning among C. I. O. officials would be improved.

As one indication, the Amalgamated constitutional amendment to bar Communists, Nazis and Fascists from office has been bottled up in Lewis-appointed committees and may never emerge. Any action taken here against Communism will be in a much milder form, it is understood.

Bringing the Roosevelt philosophy into the very center of the C. I. O. gathering, Hillman warned them what would "happen here" if dictatorships triumph:

"You know what will happen here," he said. "You know that labor will be the first victims. There is only one way to protect ourselves against these human beasts. The only thing they recognize is power. Let us make defenses for this country that even the maniacs of Europe will recognize that this is no hunting ground for men."

Green Warns the Dictators U. S. Will Fight To Preserve Democracy in the New World

By Arthur F. Degreve
United Press Staff Writer

New Orleans, Nov. 20.—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, today warned Old World "dictators, despots and savages" that the people of this Nation are prepared to sacrifice their lives in defense of democracy in the New World.

At the Federation's sixtieth annual convention, Green assured Canada she could expect all assistance from the United States in repelling thrusts from aggressor powers.

The two nations live in harmony, Green said, because we "are a people who think alike, talk alike, speak alike and who are determined that peace shall prevail upon the American continent."

"We have a passion for peace," Green concluded. "But as peace-loving people devoted to the principles of peace and the protection of those principles, we declare that we will defend with our lives America, America's institutions, the democracy in America, our freedom, our liberty and our homeland, both here and in Canada as well."

Green's remarks were inspired by an address of Edward A. Jamieson, of Vancouver, B. C., fraternal delegate from the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, who was confident that the British Empire would triumph in her struggle against the Axis powers.

"There is not the least doubt in our minds about the final outcome of the combat," Jamieson said. "The English-speaking people of the world will not be defeated. Their cause is right and they must succeed."

Delegates applauded Jamieson when he described how the Canadian trade Congress had purged Congress of Industrial Organizations unions from the organization. It was the only reference in the day to the conflict between the warring factions of labor which was heightened last night when C. I. O. President John L. Lewis invited peace-seeking C. I. O. unions to take a walk.

At the close of today's session, the convention adjourned over the Thanksgiving holiday until Friday.

Earlier, Sol Rosenblatt, general counsel of the Democratic National Committee, was applauded for his declaration that the reelection of President Roosevelt was proof that democracy was functioning in the current world emergency.

He also drew applause when he criticized the opposiiton of the press to Roosevelt's Presidential candidacy in 1936 and 1940. Declaring newspaper publishers were "greatly shocked" on awakening on the morning of November 4, 1936, "to discover that they had no influence in the Presidential election," Rosenblatt added:

"If the press is to remain an instrument of public opinion, it is about time that those who read the papers should make their voices heard on the issue as to whether or not some of our newspapers are fulfilling their mission. When a publisher takes refuge behind the freedom of the press, the public has a right to ask: 'Freedom for whom and freedom for what?'"

Rosenblatt said:

"I know that the overwhelming majority of you must feel as I do: that in this emergency democracy has again justified itself. We have chosen again as our leader, Franklin Delano Roosevelt!"

The first real work of the convention was done today when delegates voted to recommend to Congress changes in the Social Security Act that would establish a permissive system governing the blanketing under the law of millions of Federal, State and municipal government employes.

The federation originally asked Congress to embrace all those public servants not yet covered, but this brought howls of protests from those who already were protected by local pension arrangements and who did not want these setups endangered by Federal action. The compromise would allow Congress to include those groups not now protected who wished to be brought in.

Reed Committee Report on Merit System Is Nearly Ready

By Edward Ryan
Post Staff Writer

A long-awaited report by the Reed committee intended to guide the President in carrying out the newly approved Ramspeck civil service bill is nearly ready for the White House, it was learned yesterday.

The committee, headed by Supreme Court Justice Stanley Reed, was appointed by the President early last year, to unearth new ideas and methods for improving the merit system.

Their report, held up for several months pending passage of the Ramspeck civil service bill, is ready to be approved with one more meeting of the committee, officials said, and while no date for their meeting has yet been fixed, it will probably be called within the next couple of weeks.

Among the Government employe groups expected to be first affected by whatever the Reed committee has to say are the lawyers, scientists, technicians and administrators, now outside the civil service but eligible for admission under the Ramsbeck bill.

It was the problem of recruiting these professional men through civil service, and keeping them in the Government by giving them a chance to find careers there, that brought appointment of the committee. From this assignment, the committee, working mostly in rigid secrecy, branched out to a general investigation of the Government's personnel management.

Some of its discoveries have already produced policy shifts in the Government's personnel program. The Civil Service Commission, central recruiting agency for the Government, came under the committee's investigation, partly as a result of the committee's findings, partly to speed its operations in the national defense program, the commission has been decentralizing its business and reducing the amount of work that has to be cleared through Washington.

While the committee was expected at one time to have its report ready early this year, delay in passing the Ramspeck bill kept the group at work. Their recommendations, officials said, have kept pace with the bill, and will go into only those problems which can be worked out under the legal authority contained in the Ramspeck measure.

It's usually easy to get on a Government mailing list, but here's an example of what can happen, if you're not careful, or if you are careful:

A young Government economist employed by the Wage-Hour Division had his name put on the list to receive the reports of the Temporary National Economic Committee, whose total production is expected to run around 70 volumes.

After receiving the first few volumes, the economist found his office crowded. He wrote the committee and asked them to send new volumes to his home.

They agreed promptly, thereafter sent one volume to his home, one to his office. For awhile he was able to give the office copy away.

Finally he changed jobs, and about the same time moved to a new home. He called the committee again, asked them to strike out the first two addresses, and send their reports to his new home address.

He made the mistake of leaving a forwarding address at his old home, also at his old office. Now he receives, regular as clock work, three copies of every volume. He plans to pass word around that he has forgotten how to read.

The Civil Service Commission announced yesterday that it was starting immediately to substitute fingerprints for photographs as a method for identifying applicants for Government jobs.

Tax Asked to Cover All Non-Arms Outgo

Doughton Makes Proposal After Visit To White House

By Robert C. Albright

Post Staff Writer

Increased taxes to balance all non defense appropriations were advocated yesterday by Chairman Robert L. Doughton of the House Ways and Means Committee.

After a conference with the President, Doughton proposed upward revision of taxes and reasonable economies to bring revenues into line with the "normal" budget.

While some start might be made on financing emergency defense spending, the Ways and Means chairman indicated that no thought is being given to levies to carry the entire load.

Woodrum Calls for Savings

Doughton said he spoke as an individual and not for the Administration. His statement coincided with a call by Representative Woodrum, of Virginia, ranking member of the House Appropriations Committee, for all possible economies in nondefense spending.

Woodrum, who shortly will convene his Independent Offices subcommittee for a preview of 1942 fiscal year needs, said the spurt in the defense program should make possible savings elsewhere. He said relief needs should diminish as men take defene jobs and farm expenditures may be less heavy.

Tax action, social security legislation and all other formal Administration recommendations meanwhile were postponed until the next regular session of Congress in January.

Democrats Irked

House Majority Leader McCormack told the House that so far as he knew no legislation is in store for tomorrow, Monday "or in the future" and members can "govern themselves accordingly."

McCormack will move in the House tomorrow for a resumption of three-day recesses. Speaker Sam Rayburn disclosed last night. Republican leaders, who balked adjournment Tuesday, plan no opposition to the recess move. But some individual Democrats, irked at the adjournment failure, may seek to tie down the "no adjournment" voters by daily quorum calls. The first came yesterday, disclosing 67 Representatives had fled the Capitol since Tuesday's showdown.

Other developments:

Representative McCormack, who holds a key seat on the tax-raising Ways and Means Committee, it was learned will relinquish his committee connection to devote full time to his new majority leadership post.

Representative Jere Cooper, of Tennessee, said he had no immediate plans to call his tax subcommittee together, but the Treasury and the Joint Congressional Committee on Internal Revenue are proceeding with basic surveys.

Morgenthau Views Echoed

Doughton, following his White House trip, said a series of conferences with Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Chairman Harrison of the Senate Finance Committee on their return to Washington will precede any specific tax recommendations.

Speaking only for himself, he said his committee probably will consider tax proposals ahead of proposed Social Security amendments expanding the old age benefit base. The Federal Security agency as yet has presented no recommendations.

Doughton, who last week echoed Morgenthau's views that added taxes are necessary next session, said yesterday he believed that after proper economies "we should raise sufficient additional revenue at least to meet the regular expenses of Government."

He said he did not believe that "future generations should be made to shoulder any debts that we can take care of ourselves." He said he thought that business improving along with the defense program step-up ought to bring down relief costs below present year outlays.

Revenue Field Explored

The tax proposals were in harmony with one of the five "steps" proposed by Wendell Willkie in his first post-election speech. Willkie said taxes "should be levied so as to approach as nearly as possible the pay-as-you-go plan. Obviously, we cannot hope to pay for all of the defense program as we go. But we must do our best."

Treasury and joint committee experts for weeks have been exploring every possible field of new revenue, to add to the approximately $2,000,000,000 revenue to be raised from the two tax bills already enacted this year by possibly another billion.

Suggested tax changes have included removal of present individual income surtax exemptions, elimination of tax exemptions on Federal securities, increase in the transactions tax, upward revision of the excess profits tax, return of the bank check tax, reduction in estate tax exemptions, a tax on soft drinks and possible increase in the gasoline tax.

Ickes Brands Col. Lindbergh A 'Fascist'

Father Coughlin, Lawrence Dennis Also Accused

New York, Nov. 20.—Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior named Colonel Charles A. Lindberg, Father Charles E. Coughlin, radio priest of Royal Oak, Mich.; Mervin K. Hart, president of the New York State Economic Council; and Lawrence Dennis, author and lecturer, among the leaders of "native Fascist groups" which he catalogued as "Fifth Columnist" in an address today at the Town Hall, Inc., morning lectures.

Altogether, Ickes said the United States "harbors four large groups that are subversive as to our institutions and openly hostile to democracy itself." In addition to the "native Fascist groups such as the Silver Shirts, The Knights of the White Camelia, certain Ku Klux Klans, The Christian Front etc.", he listed the "German-American Bund," the "Italian Fascists," and "The Communists and Their Fellow travelers."

The secretary said there was no evidence of a general headquarters in this country for the "Fifth Columnists" but he believed there was "a loose united front along among them" and "much evidence indicates the existence of a totalitarian tie-up in this country."

"Most, perhaps even all, of these groups are instrumentalities of foreign intrigue," he said. "Most, perhaps even all, are financed by funds from abroad. They engage themselves in espionage, and are even ready to sabotage our efforts to supply England with war materials and to arm ourselves. All of them are enemies of America and believers in totalitarianism."

Cautions Against Hysteria

While not reporting on the Government's activities against intrigue, Ickes cautioned against "hysteria" and "professional patrioteers." He added: "The rights of a free press and free speech and free assemblage are particularly important at a time like this. We must show those rights the reverence that is their due—the reverence of respect and compliance."

There was a gasp from the audience of Town Hall lecture subscribers, composed mostly of women, as Ickes in his paid lecture mentioned Col. Lindbergh. There was applause and hisses as he remarked that the famous aviator "has had neither the training nor the experience to qualify him as an international statesman."

He said Hart, "misses few occasions to sneer at democracy" and Lawrence Dennis, he termed "the brains of American Fascism." He recalled that this former United States Embassy secretary had written the book "The Coming American Fascism."

He described the German-American Bund as "Hitler's chief organization in the United States" and estimated "it has 25,000 well-drilled members and 71 cells that are strategically located in industrial centers and near munitions plants." In addition, he said, "there are tens of thousands of unaffiliated Nazis in this country."

Dewey's Office Accused of Ignoring Grand Jury in Wire-Tapping Case

By John B. Oakes

Post Staff Writer

The office of New York District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey was accused yesterday of ignoring the grand jury by a Democratic member of the Senate Committee to Investigate Wire-Tapping.

The charge was leveled by Senator Schwartz, of Wyoming, while Sol Gelb, one of Dewey's high-ranking aides, was on the stand vigorously protesting against the "imputation" that the Republican district attorney had been derelict in his duty.

Gelb, assistant district attorney of New York, warmly asserted that there was "insufficient evidence" in a case concerning purported wire-tapping activities of Robert C. LaBorde, head of the Investigators Technical Service. Testimony revolving about LaBorde has been occupying the committee's attention for the last three days.

"I examined the facts and concluded that there was not sufficient evidence of the commission of a crime and that's the reason for not submitting it to the grand jury," Gelb told the committee.

Senator Disagrees

"With all the evidence here, it does present a case that might have been offered to the grand jury," observed Senator Schwartz.

"You mean you think the province of the grand jury has been invaded?" suggested Senator Stewart (Democrat), of Tennessee, chairman of the committee.

"Ignored," snapped Senator Schwartz.

"Don't you think it would be a good idea to place this evidence before a grand jury?" Committee Counsel William P. Maloney asked Gelb. "We'll be glad to give you a transcript."

"No, I do not," the witness retorted, "because there's not sufficient evidence as a matter of law to warrant indictments."

And there the matter rested—at least until Tuesday, when the hearings begin again.

Two possible violations of law were involved, Gelb implied. One was the alleged bribery of two employes of the New York Telephone Co. (who have since been discharged) for information regarding certain telephone connections. One of the employes was said to have confessed that he and his accomplice were paid $700 for the information in 1938.

"If it's a crime, it's commercial bribery which has a two-year statute of limitations; and furthermore, under New York law, you can't convict a man under his own admission," said Gelb.

The other possible violation of law, Gelb indicated, was in connection with alleged wire-tapping by LaBorde, or associates, of the telephones of Mrs. Pierpont Morgan Hamilton, of New York, and of L. P. Fels, a New York attorney.

Mrs. Hamilton has stated that she requested the tapping of her wire, said Gelb, adding that that would remove any taint of illegality.

"There is some evidence that the Fels wire was tapped," he admitted.

"There certainly is," interjected Maloney. Gelb's testimony "sounds like a summation for the defense to me," the committee counsel observed, adding that Gelb "apears to be talking for Mr. Dewey—is he the defendant here?"

"If you don't like the way the District Attorney of New York behaved in this case, I disagree with you," Gelb replied.

Edmond O'Connor, former telephone company employe, admitted he had been asked by LaBorde to get the names off the switchboard extensions of the Amtorg Trading Co., American commercial agents of the Russian government. Hyman Fischbach, LaBorde's attorney, said the information had been sought for the purpose of turning it over to the Dies Committee. O'Connor said he never obtained the Amtorg information and denied he had received any money from LaBorde other than in loans.

Crucible Steel Strike Called Off

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 20 (AP).—Striking C.I.O. workers in the Crucible Steel Co.'s Halcomb plant voted tonight to return to work at 8 a. m. Friday.

They made their decision to end the walkout, now in its third day and affecting the production of national defense orders, after union leaders conveyed, with recommendations, company assurances that workers' grievances would be settled "within five days."

The union action came after the company had promised swift negotiation on condition the men return to work, and followed State Labor Mediator John N. Foster's counsel that the arrangement be accepted.

Wage Readjustment At Yard Unlikely

Board's Adjustments Appear Equitable, Knox Asserts

Secretary Knox declared yesterday that there was "no likelihood" at present of wage readjustments for 4,0000 Washington Navy Yard machinists who have protested a new scale, granting them a 16-cents-a-week increase.

Referring to the Navy Department wage board of review, which set the new scale effective this week, the Secretary said, "My judgment, after considering the report, is that they did a pretty good job. You can't make everybody happy, you know."

Machinists' Charges Answered

At the same time, Commander R. W. Hayler, commandant of the Alexandria Naval Torpedo Station, replied to charges of machinists there that new men are subjected to "hidden" wage cuts, through classification of first-grade machinists as third-grade workers.

Commander Hayler said that first-grade machinists coming from other Government shops are given first-grade ratings if their efficiency rating at their previous place of employment was average or better. Men coming from private plants, he said, are usually given third-grade ratings until they gain experience in the new type of work.

First-grade machinists receive $8.56 a day, while third-grade workmen receive $6.99 a day.

Knox told his press conference that the wage board was organized for the purpose of adjusting wages of Navy Yard employes so that rates would conform "as nearly as is consistent with the public interest" with those of private establishments "in the immediate vicinity."

"After detailed study, careful examination, analysis and consideration of the data and recommendations," he said, "the board submitted its report, which received the unanimous approval of its members, to the Secretary of the Navy.

"This report was given careful consideration and from the thorough study made by the board, it appears that equitable adjustments of wages, consistent with the wages of commensurate level in nearby private establishments, has been made."

Union Were Represented

The Secretary added that he had "complete confidense in the impartial and unbiased recimmendations" of the five board members, and he pointed out that two of them were representatives of the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

These were W. A. Calvin, secretary-treasurer of the metal trades department of the A. F. L., and Jacob Baker, president of the United Federal Workers of America. The other board members were William D. Bergman, chief clerk of the Navy Department; F. W. Dyer, employe relations chief of the Navy Department, and Capt. J. A. Furer, senior naval representative.

The machinists, meeting Sunday at the Avenue Grand Theater, adopted a resolution asking Secretary Knox to order the wage board to reopen consideration of their case.

They declared that "low wage rates" were driving machinists out of Government service, handicapping the defense program, but Navy Yard officials Monday denied that this was so and said they have had no difficulty in hiring as many machinists as they have needed.

China to Fight As Long as War In Europe Lasts

Copyright by New York Times

Singapore, Nov. 20.—Japan's peace approaches to the Chungking Government, both the present tentative moves and any future approaches, will all be rejected, until peace is also achieved in Europe.

China feels deeply indebted to Britain and the United States and thus refuses to make peace with one of the Axis aggressors, thereby embarrassing the democracies in the continuance of their struggle against the others.

A second motive is the conviction that if an honorable peace were offered, acceptance would leave Japan free to use her military and naval forces to expand and grab all of French Indo-China, Thailand (Siam), the Dutch East Endies and probably the Phillippines. Leave the entire China coast blanketed with Japanese possessions and China a virtual prisoner.

Hungary Joins Axis, Japan In War Pact

pean country may divorce itself from it. Each nation in Europe, it is added, is faced with making the choice whether "of its own free will and with clear recognition" of the issues involved, it wishes to participate in the rebuilding of Europe.

The extent to which this choice will be dictated to each nation by external circumstances is indicated, perhaps, by an editorial in the Voelkischer Beobachter, which declares:

"Germany and Italy will not for a moment allow unreasonableness or even lack of understanding, let alone malevolence, sabotage this work of reconstruction."

Swiss, Swedes Chided

Even "silent partnership" in the British "firm," the Germans assert, will no longer be allowed. Those countries which may find themselves in such a predicament, it is said here, will lose for the future the right to play even the most minor role in Europe.

It may be assumed that the result of the present Axis diplomatic offensive will not pass unnoticed in Turkey. The Germans obviously expect that they will be just as seriously regarded in Denmark, the Netherlands, France and Yugoslavia, where, it had been said here, the forces representing "the new order" are experiencing some difficulty in making themselves effectively felt, and also in Switzerland and Sweden, where "the old prepresent war concept of neutrality," it is suggested, is still held.

How France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Norway will be treated, it is stated, will depend on the attitude they adopt toward Germany.

That the Russians have agreed to the erection of a "new order" in the wold by Germany, Italy and Japan is suggested by portions of the German press.

Hungary became a member of the Axis-Nipponese pact originally concluded between Germany, Italy and Japan in Berlin on September 27 through an exchange of signatures between her foreign minister, Count Csaky, and representatives of the Eurasian pact powers.

The signatures were exchanged in the form of a protocol to which a copy of the original three-power pact was attached.

On behalf of Hungary, Count Csaky signed in the presence of his prime minister, Count Teleki. Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop signed for Germany; Count Ciano, the Italian foreign minister, for Italy, and the Japanese ambassador to Berlin, Saburo Kurusu, for Japan.

To emphasize the occasion's importance, Fuehrer Hitler arranged a trip to Vienna to coincide with the signing.

He did not witness the signing, but received representatives of the signatory powers as his guests at a buffet luncheon.

The Hungarians issued a statement saying "Hungary joins the Berlin three-power pact with the intention now, and also in liquidation of the war, to contribute within the limits of her power toward a better and happier political and economic reorganization of southeastern Europe."

Hungary, the statement recalled, "thrown to the ground through the injust, demoralizing Paris peace dictates" had turned to those powers "suffering from an equal fate" and, by German and Italian support, had regained territory from vanished Czecho-Slovakia and recovered from Rumania the province of Transylvania "without spilling blood."

Text of Pact Making Hungary Member of German-Italian-Japanese Alliance

Vienna, Nov. 20.—Following is the text of the protocol making Hungary a member of the German-Italian-Japanese alliance:

The governments of Germany, Italy and Japan on one side and the government of Hungary on the other side acknowledge the following through the undersigned plenipotentiaries:

ARTICLE ONE

Hungary joins the three-power pact signed in Berlin September 27, 1940, between Germany, Italy and Japan.

ARTICLE TWO

Insofar as joint technical commissions are provided for in article four of the three-power pact dealing with questions touching upon Hungary's interest, representatives of Hungary will be called in for commission conferences.

ARTICLE THREE

The text of the three-power pact is added to this protocol as a supplement. The protocol at hand is drawn up in German, Italian, Japanese and Hungarian languages, of which each text is original. The protocol is effective the day of signing. (End text.)

Text of Declaration By Hungarians

The Hungarian government, on the occasion today of its signing up with the German-Italian-Japanese alliance, issued the following declaration:

Germany, Italy and Japan concluded an alliance to call a halt to further expansion of the war, which is severely burdening humanity, and thus give the world a lasting, just peace as fast as possible.

The big powers are fighting for the establishing of a new order promoting the development of peoples in regions to which they are entitled and in the furtherance of their wellbeing.

Hungary was thrown to the ground through the unjust, demoralizing Paris peace dictates and during two decades turned to those powers for help which were suffering an equal fate and the same injustices while fighting for their vital rights and revision of the (Paris) dictates.

These alone were earnestly willing and able to help their weakened and hard-fighting fellow sufferers to better living possibilities.

In fact, in the course of the last two years, Hungary, supported by the German Reich and Italy, succeeded in bringing about a revision of territorial clauses of the Trianon peace dictate without spilling blood and through peaceful means.

These two big powers thereby not only put Hungary under eternal obligation, but also proved through deeds that they are aiming at revision by peaceful means wherever the slightest possibility offered.

Thereby, they created a new epoch in the history of European peoples, since in place of a policy of hatred born through bloodshed they introduced a policy of understanding and insight.

Italy and Germany during past decades advocated a policy of understanding which resulted in an alliance with Japan, the final aim of which is world peace, based on justice.

This alliance, therefore, is not directed against anybody. The same aims and mutual past determine Hungary's standing.

Hungary desires to maintain good relations with all neighbors who respect her rights and historic development. From this viewpoint, the Hungarian government, with special satisfaction, welcomes Article Five of the Berlin three-power pact. (This section recognizes that the existing statute between Russia and the treaty signatories remain unchanged.)

In keeping with her unbroken and unchanged foreign and political past and her peaceful aims, strengthened through previous successes and in a firm belief in the future, Hungary joins the Berlin three-powers pact.

She has the intention now, and also at the end of the war, to contribute within the limits of her power toward better and happier political and economic reorganization of southeastern Europe.

Turks Sarcastic Over Hungary

By the Associated Press

Istanbul, Turkey, Nov. 20.—The official Turkish radio took a strongly sarcastic anti-Axis tone tonight in discussing Hungary's adherence to the German-Italian-Japanese alliance.

Shortly before the broadcast the Turkish cabinet met in a one-hour extraordinary session and later Premier Refik Saydam addressed a private meeting of a parliamentary committee.

The radio predicted that Rumania would follow Hungary in signing up with the Axis but "there is still no sign that Bulgaria is going to change her policy. It is true that Bulgaria wishes certain territories, but it is also true that Bulgaria does not wish to lose entirely her independence."

Sources close to the Turkish government said today Turkey would regard passage of German troops through Bulgaria as harmful to Turkish interests.

They said Turkey would refuse to approve such a movement, even though Germany might guarantee that Turkey would in no way be involved.

Moreover, if Bulgaria herself makes any move toward the Mediterranean Turkey will consider herself bound to "take measures," the sources added.

Informed quarters said Turkey has regarded Hungary as bound to the Axis and that the actual signing of the treaty merely vindicates the Turkish view that Germany has been planning a campaign in the Near East.

Today's statement on the Turkish attitude also prompted the belief that when Ambassador Franz von Papen returns to his post at Ankara he will present certain "proposals" designed to bring Turkey into the "new order."

More Bulgars Call Up

Sofia, Bulgaria, Nov. 20 (U.P.).—Tension in Bulgaria mounted tonight as additional Bulgarians were called to the colors, concident with Berlin press statements that the time is approaching when Bulgaria must deliver service in exchange for the territorial awards she hopes to obtain after the war.

The possibility that Germany will march through Bulgaria toward the Dardanelles and Turkey is not overlooked.

Authoritative Bulgarian quarters, impressed by Hungary's adherence to the German-Italian-Japanese laliance, declared tonight that Bulgarian foreign policy now would be one of nonbelligerency rather than neutrality, although they denied Bulgarian statesmen were en route to Germany.

Foreign observers here, regarding Hungary's adherence as a natural result of her position and policy, believed that for the same reasons it was entirely possible that Bulgaria and Rumania would join the alliance later.

mander in the regiment."

Should the investigation indicate desirability of further action the officer could be permanently relieved of his command by one of several methods. Charges against him could be threshed out before a court-martial or he could be stripped of his commission in the National Guard of the United States, which would disqualify him for active duty with his regiment.

In case the allegations be found without merit on the basis of evidence disclosed to the investigators, he would be restored to command of his unit.

Union Denies Indiscriminate Meade Hiring

Incompetents Fired By Thousands, Says Carpenters' Official

The Consolidated Engineering Co., of Baltimore, Fort Meade contractors, "for the very purpose of keeping incompetents off the job."

Blumenberg charged that a Washington newspaper man who stated he had joined the carpenters' union and had been hired at Fort Meade without being asked if he had any experience, had actually signed a union membership application blank stating he had worked four years as a carpenter.

The reporter had not worked at Fort Meade and had not, therefore, put his ability as a carpenter to the test, Blumenberg said.

At the same time, The Post heard reports from two laborers at Fort Meade that gave another picture of construction operations at the Army post that in a few weeks will receive Selective Service trainees and National Guardsmen from the Washington area.

The workmen, whose names cannot be revealed for obvious reasons, told of improper or insufficient supervision of the work by construction foremen, of widespread loafing on the job, of drunkenness and of construction errors that have required three partially-built barracks to be torn down.

One of the laborers who said they are paid at the rate of $10 a day, quoted an acquaintance, a Baltimore laborer, who drew $72.42 for one week's wages and overtime and "didn't work half the time."

The men, who live in nearby Virginia, charged that truck drivers are paid $85 a week and helpers $25 a week while, in many instances, trucks are left idle for long periods of time. Drivers of the trucks, they said, occasionally run the motors to give the appearance of being busy.

In some cases, it was reported, drivers of the trucks and their helpers draw full pay while sleeping in idle machines.

The men cited what they said was a typical truck operation:

"A load of lumber comes in on a freight car. It costs $10 for wages of two laborers to unload the lumber and dump it in a side yard. It costs $10 more in wages to load the lumber on a truck in which it is taken to the building site. At the site it is discovered that instead of loading board 2 inches thick by 12 inches wide, as needed, the crew had loaded 'one-by-twelves' and the whole operation has to be undertaken again."

Blumenberg said the initiation fee, exclusive of a small charge for a "work card," is $55, payable $23.50 after the first week of employment and $8.50 a week thereafter.

Even Unto Death, Coventry Is British

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

A SINGLE GRAVE FOR 172—In a simple ceremony, 172 of the 300 victims of Germany's devastating raid on Coventry last Thursday were buried yesterday in a single grave. Antiaircraft guns booming at a single raiding plane circling over the town's cemetery sounded the only last salute. Mourners pass along the long trench in which coffins are stacked three deep. Note that none of the women are hysterical, even though their loved ones are gone . . . Britain can take it!

Grim Coventry Buries 200 In One Grave

By Raymond Daniell.
Copyright by New York Times

Coventry, England, Nov. 20.—This correspondent went to the funeral today for 200 victims of German bombs. They were all buried in one grave—a long, narrow, deep gash cut in the red earth with a steam shovel and shored up with rough boards, so that it looked like an excavation for a water main. The dead lay in plain pine boxes, placed so that while they did not touch, they were so close together that each two coffins supported a third on top of them.

Beside this ugly sepulechre stood some 800 to 1,000 mourners, almost every one clutching a bunch of chrysanthemums, dahlias or carnations.

Most of them were dry-eyed but thin-lipped and grim-faced. A few wept, but they were bitter tears in which hatred mingled with sorrow. I saw the same look in the eyes of women at the mass funeral in Chicago for 13 steel strikers killed by the police one day in 1937.

The road to that bleak windswept cemetery goes through the very heart of this industrial city, where Nazi dive bombers dropped more than 400 tons of bombs a week ago tomorrow night.

It is a town of dingy brick factories and drab, uninteresting two-story brick dwellings, but it was hard today to discover the shape of things as they were before. In some places it was difficult to tell where the road had been, so complete was the demolition. There were heaps of broken bricks, without anything left to tell whether what had stood there had been shop, factory, or home.

Such was the atmosphere of the stricken town that it seemed as though the living moved self-consciously and diffidently, as people walk in churches and holy places. It was like a ghost town whose populace had fled, although salvage crews clearing away the wreckage were hints of a resurrection of its activity at some future date.

There is no word in the English tongue to describe the scene that Coventry presents to a visitor, with its sooty face bashed in and mutilated.

Germany has two words that convey something of its meaning. They are "totalifireig" and "blitzkrieg." Coventry knows now what they mean—knows and has taken a tacit vow to crush the breed that coined these words.

You could see that in their faces and hear it on their lips as they stood among the ruins, with Union jacks flapping dankly in the autumn drizzle, whipped by freshening breeze.

Hollywood, Nov. 20 (AP).—Actor James Stephenson picked up a newspaper with an Associated Press Wirephoto showing King George viewing the ruins of bomb-destroyed, five-centuries-old St. Michael's Cathedral in Coventry, England.

Stephenson looked more closely at the church dignitaries with the King and saw his brother, Alan Stephenson, cathedral organist.

He said it was his first assurance that his brother survived the bombing.

Greeks Report Wild Rout of Fascists

any time in the last week. One column is understood to be pushing due north toward Argyrokastron to accomplish the encirclement of an Italian force believed to be at least as large as four battalions. This army is now understood to be faced with the choice of capture or annihilation.

In the immediate vicinity of Koritza, at the northern end of the front, the advance has been less sensational but nevertheless concrete. Evzones have crept closer to the town from the northeast and are understood to be about 2 kilometers from its limits.

The Ersek Road southward has been cut off and the Pogradetz Road westward is under constant shellfire, limiting the amount of reinforcements the Italians are able to send. Dozens of troop-carrying transport planes have brought new contingents to defend the beleagured city in the course of the day.

Heavy Guns Brought Up

Along the Morava ridges the Greek mountaineers began to drag out heavy guns from the south and north in preparations for a new assault on the last enemy positions held on Mount Ivan. As this artillery was being slowly moved into position the infantry sought to complete the encirclement of the town from the north.

[Koritza, the United Press said, was under Greek rifle fire from former Fascist defenses a mile outside the town. A Belgrade dispatch of the same service said Koritza, reported almost deserted, was under heavy air bombardment while Greek artillery shelled all roads over which remaining Fascist troops could retreat.]

The advance is general and marks a complete break in the deadlock which has obtained more or less in the last few days, thanks to heavy installation of Italian reinforcements and fierce attacks by Fascist planes. The Athens radio says the Greek army is moving forward all along the front.

Fascist Planes Less Active

Enemy aircraft was far less active than in the last 48 hours and joint Royal Air Force and Greek action dispersed the only serious formation, knocking down four Italian bombers. Fascist planes bombed a village in Thessaly and one in Macedonia, but the damage was slight.

The Allied air force is now attacking in greater strength at the front and the results are evident. It is announced that R. A. F. fighter aircraft attacked a large Italian force of fighter planes yesterday, shooting down nine and seriously damaging another two. The Italian planes destroyed are among Italy's newest models. No British planes were lost, but one pilot was slightly wounded.

[Long range British bombers raided Bari, the Italian port, opposite Albania, it was revealed in Cairo today, placing bombs on the main jetty, causing a series of fires and explosions, and probably damaging ships alongside. One British warplane was lost. In further raids on Durazzo, Albania, the wharves were attacked, and Valona was also bombed, resulting in fires and explosions that caused much damage.]

Salt for Duce's Wounds

Once more the war seems to be going all in Greece's favor despite the unquestionable material and air superiority of the enemy. Greek equipment improves daily as captured Italian guns and motorized vehicles are turned against their original owners.

Indiana Avenue Northwest.

Before the ceremony, they will undergo a second physical examination, and will face still another check-up after their arrival at Fort George G. Meade, Md., reception center for the Third Corps Area comprising the District, Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania.

Meanwhile, it was learned the 260th Coast Artillery, Washington National Guard regiment, is to be raised near to its war strength of 1,800, soon after its arrival at Fort Bliss, Tex., between January 3 and 10.

The antiaircraft regiment now numbers approximately 1,100 men, its allotted strength in the Guard framework. It is to be boosted by the addition of 613 selectives.

As far as possible the 260th is to be filled out by the addition of Washington trainees, rather than Texans, or persons from other States, War Department officials said last night.

In a move interpreted as an effort to maintain regimental esprit, Secretary of War Stimpson last week indicated replacements to Guard units would come mainly from home States and cities.

Nevertheless, Army men pointed out that the District would have great difficulty in supplying 631 trainees for the 260th—far above its quota for the first year of the draft. Replacements from the Capital going to the 260th would, therefore, have to be augmented by trinees from other regions, it was predicted.

Thirty-nine of the 51 men to be inducted in the first increment, on November 27 and 28 are:

Board No. 1—Francis E. Westlake, 1233 Wisconsin Avenue Northwest, and James E. Williams, 3008 W Street Northwest.

Britain Cools on India Offer

By the Associated Press

London, Nov. 20.—The House of Commons was told today that in this moment, when the Battle of Britain was fast spreading into a battle of the Empire, the government had withdrawn its offer to give India's political leaders a greater voice in the war effort—and that to plan on American ships and troops coming to Europe was a pipe dream."

The Marquess of Linlithgow, Viceroy of India, declared "we note with regret" that the offer of last August 8 to give India "free and equal" partnership in the British Commonwealth of Nations has failed to gain "sufficient representative support."

The offer had been announced in an appeal to India's millions to bolster the Empire's fight against the Axis powers.)

The Viceroy said Britain was still prepared to give effect to the proposals looking toward eventual dominion status for India, as soon as general support was forthcoming.

"But that degree of support has evidently not yet manifested itself," he added. "His Majesty's government have decided that I should not be justified in expansion of my executive council, or establishment of a war advisory council at the present moment."

Speaking in the India debate, L. S. Amery, secretary of state for India, told the House India now has 60,000 troops serving overseas and is "rapidly expanding" its army to 500,000 "trained, equipped and mechanized modern troops.

"The battle of Britain," he said, "is leading to the battle of the empire."

The reference to American participation came when Earl Winterton, member of the Irish peerage and conservative member of the House of Commons, urged raising of another 500,000 troops from the colonies.

Defense Sidelights

Legion Leaders Ask Uniforms For New Guard

Indianapolis, Nov. 20 (AP).—Commanders and adjutants of the American Legion's 58 departments adopted a resolution today asking that the War Department provide a national uniform "for the purpose of equipping such State Guard units as may be organized."

The resolution was presented as the closing session of the annual conference of the post commanders and adjutants and was referred to the legion's national defense committee for further action.

Another resolution urged the Federal Government to issue in 1943 a commemorative stamp to mark the legion's twenty-fifth anniversary.

New Ships May Join Fleet 6 Months Early

Philadelphia, Nov. 20 (AP).—Two 45,000-ton superbattleships may join the United States fleet a half-year ahead of schedule.

The Navy Yard announced the purchase of duplicate machinery for construction of the giants—the New Jersey, whose keel was laid last September, and the Wisconsin, whose keel will be laid next year.

Authorities said the new arrangement should mean completion of the New Jersey early in 1944, with the launching of the Wisconsin shortly thereafter. Present schedules call for both to be ready in 1945.

Navy Seeks Dirigible Base in New England

Boston, Nov. 20 (AP).—U. S. Navy sources disclosed today a survey was now in progress to determine the possibilities of establishing a dirigible base in New England.

Capt. C. E. Rosendahl, commander of the Navy's huge lighter-than-air base at Lakehurst, N. J., was in charge of the survey in the greater Boston area. He conferred at the Boston Navy Yard today with a group of officers before looking over possible sites in this section.

Puerto Rican Men Register for Draft

San Juan, Puerto Rico, Nov. 20 (AP).—Five weeks after registration for the draft, in the United States, Puerto Rico males from 21 through 35 registered today under the Selective Service Act.

Opposition to the registration appeared yesterday in a Nationalist Party declaration urging Puerto Ricans not to comply with the act.

Census figures indicate approximately 210,000 men come under terms of the act.

Military authorities said Puerto Rico's quota for training would be approximately 4,800.

French Envoy, Welles Confer; Bullitt Successor Seen Topic

Gaston Henry-Haye, French Ambassador, late yesterday discussed with Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State, what he termed a "pleasant subject" and he predicted there would be an important announcement on the subject within a few days.

It was believed in informed quarters that the conversations centered around the appointment of a new Ambassador to Vichy to succeed William C. Bullitt. Bullitt announced recently that he had submitted his resignation to the President, but that it had not been accepted yesterday. Bullitt called at the White House and talked with the President, presumably concerning the naming of a new envoy, but no final decision was announced.

"I still remain the Ambassador to France," he said as he left the White House. He added that he planned to take a two or three week vacation, starting immediately.

After his meeting with Welles the French Ambassador said the question of the future of the French island possession of Martinique in the Caribbean came up, but only "incidentally." He said the problem was no longer as important as it had been. The appointment was made at the request of Welles, the French envoy concluded.

The naming of a new Ambassador to the Court of St. James's to succeed Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy also was the subject of considerable discussion in Washington during the day, and Marshall Field, who has been active in work bringing British children to the United States; Gen. John J. Pershing, a World War friend of Marshal Henri Petain, and Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, now Ambassador to Poland, all were being mentioned.

Henry-Haye's call on Welles was preceded by State Department disclosure that Robert D. Murphy had been ordered to Vichy to take up the duties of Charge d'Affaires. Murphy has been in this country for some time after serving as Counselor to the embassy in France.

New York, Nov. 20.—Emphatically denying a report published in Chicago saying he would not return to England "under any circumstances," Joseph P. Kennedy, United States Ambassador to Great Britain, arrived at LaGuardia Field this afternoon from Los Angeles, where he had been visiting his son, John Kennedy.

"I certainly did not say anything like that," Kennedy told reporters who asked him about the Chicago report.

Asked to comment on dispatches from Chicago saying that Marshall Field, of Chicago, was being considered as his successor at the Court of St. James's, Kennedy replied, "I don't know anything about that."

Gov. Ratner Takes Lead in Kansas

Topeka, Kans., Nov. 20 (AP).—Absentee ballots still being counted 15 days after the election edged Republican Gov. Payne H. Ratner into an eyelash lead tonight over his Democratic rival, William H. Burke.

The tabulation gave Ratner 425,213 votes to 425,160 for Burke.

The State canvassing board, tabulating votes cast by Kansans outside the State, quit for the night, with Ratner ahead by 53 votes.

Thus, for the first time in 13 days, Ratner held an advantage over the Little River banker and stockman who at one time led by nearly 3,000 votes. Wendell Willkie's Kansas lead over President Roosevelt at the same stage approximated 120,000.

Capehart Panamuse
A SUPERB PHONOGRAPH-RADIO MADE BY CAPEHART

Greeks Repulsed, Italians Assert

Rome Also Claims Success in North Africa

By the Associated Press

Rome, Nov. 20.—Italian forces, on the defensive along the Greek-Albian frontier, were reported today to have repulsed their foe with heavy Greek losses.

"Strong repeated attacks southeast of Koritza (in Albania) and straddling the Kalibaki Highway (in Epirus, Greece), were repelled with many serious losses for the enemy," the high command said in its daily communique.

Reviewing yesterday's action by the air force on the Greek battlefront, the high command said it "hit enemy troops under its bombing, scatter-bombing and machine gunning action, hitting roads, barracks and troop concentrations."

Eight "enemy" planes were said to have been shot down in flames, while only one Italian plane failed to return.

Elsewhere, in Italy's far-flung war effort, the high command reported:

North Africa—a "strong" force of British armored cars damaged and scattered first by aerial bombardment, south-southeast of Sidi Barrani, Egypt, and later engaged and routed by an Italian land force.

[The British command in Cairo issued a communique saying: "In the western desert one of our advanced reconnoitering detachments yesterday engaged an enemy column, capturing guns and prisoners. Full details of the action are not yet available.]

Six British planes shot down in flames by a "protective" fighter patrol.

Five British tanks, a dozen armored cars and several pieces of artillery destroyed by aerial attacks.

"Fires, explosions and visible damage" at Alexandria and among other objectives linked with the British defense of the Suez Canal.

One the home front—"enemy" planes beaten off in attempt to bomb the southeast coast.

The high command acknowledged British aerial bombardment of Tobruk and Bengasi, in Libya, and other points in Italian Africa and a cruiser bombardment of a salt works in Italian Somaliland, but minimized the results.

Australians Down Five

Copyright by New York Times

Cairo, Nov. 20.—Four planes of the Royal Australian Air Force yesterday shot down five Italian Fiat fighters during one of the Australians' first engagements in the western desert, according to tonight's communique. One gladiator was shot down, and another forced down with the pilot saved.

Libyan coastal seaports and airports were again raided, including Tobruk, Barce, Benina, Berka and Benghasi.

Gura in Eritera was again raided yesterday morning, with a large warehouse set on fire. Merchant shipping at Massawa and military stores at Kassala also were bombed on the same night.

A wireless station and administrative buildings were damaged during a South African air force raid on Bardera, on the Juba River in southern Italian Somaliland.

De Gaulle Offer Is Blackmail, Vichy Contends

Hint of Reprisals Against Prisoners Answered by Platon

By G. H. Archambault

Copyright by New York Times

Vichy, Nov. 20.—To a message from Gen. Charles De Gaulle, leader of "Free Frenchmen," hinting that any action against his partisans taken prisoner in Africa would be followed by immediate reprisals, the French government will not deign to reply, it was announced today.

This is the gist of a broadcast today by Rear Admiral Rene Platon, colonial secretary, after the dissident leader's message had been transmitted here through the intermediary of the Governor of British Nigeria.

It may be noted that this is the first time that De Gaulle has addressed himself to the Vichy government.

De Gaulle's communication declares that "he understands" that some of his supporters are about to be tried by court martial, and he warns that he also has prisoners, including a bishop; moreover he proposes an exchange.

Mere Blackmail, He Says

Platon's rejoinder is, in brief, that the proposal is mere blackmail. He adds that the greatest measure of clemency will continue to be extended to the rank and file of the De Gaullists, but that the leaders cannot expect mercy.

Late tonight word was received here from Paris that evictions of Lorraine residents from their homes into the unoccupied zone of France will be "interrupted" as from tomorrow. The precise signification of the word "interrupted" has yet to be made clear, since at first sight it does not imply "cease."

Prior to this announcement, evictions of citizens of Lorraine continued, although in fewer numbers, and trains filled with refugees were still arriving in Lyons today.

Budget Unit Named

Contrary to certain reports, it is asserted here that the refugees come exclusively from that part of Lorraine which was annexed by Germany after the war of 1870-71. There may be some isolated residents from other parts of the province, but it is explained that they have been expelled because they originated from districts previously annexed.

Appointment of a budget committee to examine and report to Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, as chief of state, on the budget of 1941, is announced today in the official journal.

With this action passes the principal feature of the old parliamentary system in France. Under that regime the chief function of the parliament was the control of expenditures, and a large proportion of the annual session was devoted to the discussion of the budget.

Woman Driver Fined in Deaths Of Two Children

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 20 (AP).—Mrs. Hilda J. Ruth, Green Haven, was convicted of manslaughter today in the death of two Anne Arundel County schoolchildren November 7 and was fined $500 by Circuit Judge Ridgely P. Melvin.

The children, Theresa Miles, 6, and Richard Hoffman, 7, were killed instantly by Mrs. Ruth's automobile, after they alighted from a school bus at Sloney Creek and Orchard Beach Roads.

Mrs. Ruth testified she did not know of the law requiring motorists to stop their cars behind school buses when passengers are discharged.

Judge Melvin said Mrs. Ruth had no intention to violate the law and, therefore, found her guilty of involuntary manslaughter.

Couple to Seek Lindy's Lost City

Tustin, Calif. (AP).—A city in the Mayan jungle, photographed from the air by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh but never reached on foot, is the objective of Mr. and Mrs. Dana Lamb.

The couple recently traveled some 1,800 miles toward its site near the Mexico-Guatemala frontier but were summoned home because of a death in the family. They'll try again.

Russia Balked At Nazi Pact, Diplomats Feel

Rumpus Over Hungary May Be a Disguise For Parley's Failure

By J. C. Stark
Associated Press Staff Writer.

Hungary's admission to the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo alliance was looked upon by informed diplomats here last night as a possible indication that other countries involved in talks with Germany, notably Russia, had balked at formally joining in the triple pact.

Some significance was attached by these sources to the fact that out of all the negotiations going on in Germany and elsewhere for some time, Hungary should be the first to become a full-fledged partner since Japan joined the Axis.

Hungary was a member of the original German-Italian-Japanese anti-Comintern pact which Germany promoted against Russia before those two countries were reconciled in 1939 and long has been regarded here as an obedient associate of Germany.

Display Puzzles Diplomats

The Vienna ceremony which took Hungary into the pact was interpreted here also as a probable forerunner of a German military move southeast to help the Italians against Greece.

But diplomats speculated on why such formal display was considered necessary to permit this.

It thus was regarded as a sign that Russia and possibly Spain might have demurred at joining the alliance and that Germany, wanting something to display as a diplomatic achievement, had chosen Hungary for this immediate role.

It was pointed out in these quarters that in the week since Russian Premier Molotoff was in Berlin the only public announcement of the results of his talks was the noncommittal communique that "mutual accord" had been reached "on all important questions of interest" to both countries.

Might Act Later

Spain's foreign minister, Ramon Seranno Suner, has made two recent trips to Germany in circumstances which indicated the Axis was seeking to bring Spain into the war or at least into the Triple Alliance, but no change in its status has yet become apparent.

Diplomatic quarters explained that both Russia and Spain appeared to be cooperating with the Axis and might yet become more active partners, but they considered it possible that neither was ready yet for such a development.

Spain's internal situation and especially its lack of food was given in these quarters as a reason for that country's possible reluctance to enter a more active relationship with the Axis.

In the case of Russia, diplomats here said there appeared to be no advantage to be gained by that country in joining the triple alliance or otherwise assuming a more important role in Germany's "new order."

Today Heralds Opening of Yule Shopping Season

Today, Thanksgiving, marks the "kick off" for the 1940 Christmas Shopping season, Edward D. Shaw, secretary of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, stated yesterday.

He warned that 28 shopping days remain before Christmas. Most of the local stores, he said, will have their formal Christmas sales opening tomorrow and shelves will be stocked with complete Christmas gift lines.

Although the shopping public until this week has given little serious thought to the rapidly approaching holiday, Shaw said merchants of the city have for many months been preparing for the Christmas needs of their patrons. He admonished shoppers to "come early and avoid the rush."

R. A. F. Bombers Again Pound Skoda Works In Far-Flung Raids on Nazi Objectives

By James MacDonald
Copyright by New York Times

London, Nov. 20.—Royal Air Force bombers hammered the great Skoda armament factory in Pilsen, Bohemia, during widespread raids this morning and last night.

The Skoda plant, which produced the big guns that pulverized Liege and Namur in the last war and which conceivably might be making the Big Berthas that are hurling shells across the Straits of Dover from German-occupied vantage points at Cap Gris-Nez in this conflict, was one among a dozen or more points attacked by British bombers.

According to information given out by the air ministry today, other places bombarded from the air during the night included munitions stores and railroad junctions in Berlin; shipyards and docks at Hamburg, Bremen, Bremerhaven, Kiel and Hamburg; synthetic oil plants at Gelsenkischen; an electric power station at Hamborn; the inland port of Duisberg—Ruhrort; the submarine base at Lorient and the harbor of Basfleur, in Normandy, as well as railroad crossings at Aurich and other places.

From all raids, British officials said, three planes failed to return.

The trip to the Skodoa works involved a 1,400-mile return flight from German-held Czecho-Slovakia. Direct hits caused violent explosions and large fires, according to the air ministry, but actual details of the damage were not even hinted at.

Ford Urges U.S. To Arm, Then Police World

Motor Magnate Blames War on 'Greedy Financiers'

New York, Nov. 20 (AP).—Henry Ford says he believes the United States soon will take "its rightful place" in the world as a "big brother" able to "bang together the heads of any powers that would stir up war."

"But make no mistake about this," he added in an article in the December issue of Scribner's Commentator, "we are not now in the position where we can adopt that 'big brother' attitude toward anybody and until and unless we are, we should not meddle in the affairs of other people."

As an aid to building up the Nation's strength for the "big brother" role, the automobile manufacturer suggested $5 a day should be paid every young man taken from a good job for compulsory military training.

"Where will the money come from to pay that sum?" he asked.

"It should come out of the millions of dollars that will yet be squandered upon politics before we manage to force that out-moded philosophy into the scrap heap . . . The horse has virtually disappeared; the cow is next, and politics will follow."

Ford predicted a "better civilization than any the past has ever known," and called the "parliament of man" the goal "toward which we are striving now."

"It is a future in which science and education, a closer alliance of the soil and industry, and a better common fellowship will enable us to benefit more fully from the experience we have gained and the knowledge we have inherited from those generations that have preceded us," he wrote.

"The accumulation of experience and knowledge has been going on for thousands of years, with each generation a little better off than the preceding one; it will go on for many more thousands of years. Thus, despite the tragedy that is going on today, the future is safe."

He blamed the present war on European peoples who had "fallen into the habit of taking things as they came."

"They were duped by the greedy financial groups, seeking to extend their domination over people and lustful for power in every branch of human endeavor," he went on. "These groups are the real 'dictators.'

"They are the creators of all labor organizations and the instigators of strikes that paralyze productive processes. They seek to dominate not only all business, but every individual engaged in it, at the bench or at the desk. Through this domination they would increase prices and lower wages."

Gen. Haraguchi Thanks Vestris Disaster Hero

A 12-year-old disaster at sea was recalled again here yesterday when a Japanese general thanked an American admiral for rescuing his daughter from the storm-tossed waters that closed over the S. S. Vestris.

Lieut. Gen. H. Haraguchi, former Japanese army leader, and now a member of the Nipponese Parliament, told of his "profound gratitude to the United States Navy, particularly to Admiral Taylor" for the rescue work of the latter's battleship, the U. S. S. Wyoming, after the Vestris sank in a gale off the Virginia Capes on Nov. 12, 1928.

The general also took occasion to decry the "present impossible impasse" between his country and this, and the "chilly prospects if winter comes between two friends," at a luncheon at the Shoreham Hotel.

Later he told of the heroism of his daughter, Mrs. Teruko Inouye, wife of a Japanese army major, during the sinking and it aftermath.

Mrs. Inouye, and her husband, were bound from this country to Buenos Aires where the latter was to serve as an attache, when the gale overtook the British passenger ship, sinking it with the loss of 110 lives.

But this was only the beginning of a two-day ordeal for Mrs. Inouye, her father related yesterday.

Forced to leap into the sea after donning life belts Mrs. Iouye and her husband supported two other women until the major died seven hours later. But Mrs. Inouye was able to fight off the battering of the sea, and keep the two other survivors afloat, until a lifeboat crew from the Wyoming picked up the three women and the body 24 hours after the sinking.

Mrs. Inouye now lives in Tokyo, where her father "had been very busy" the last 12 years. Last night, at the Japanese Embassy his appreciation expressed, the general was happy.

White Urges End Of False Neutrality

claring war. He said that he deliberately refrained from making his suggestions any more specific, since he felt that it was up to either President Roosevelt or a Congressional committee to frame the wording of the resolution.

Recollecting that the Union League Club was formed in the Civil War by stanch Republicans who wished to prevent any spirit of appeasement toward the slavery question in the South, White drew the analogy that the question of existing "half-slave half-free" again faced America, but this time on a world scale.

"Appeasement today," he said, "as it was in 1863, is treason not only to democracy in general, but to the principles on which this republic was founded."

"Our country can no longer hold itself aloof." White stated, "which does not mean necessarily we are expected to take up arms. But we must take definite sides. We cannot remain isolated."

White was introduced by Thomas W. Lamont, partner of J. P. Morgan & Co., also on the dais were Herbert L. Satterlee, former president of the Union League Club and a brother-in-law of Morgan, and Maj. Gen. James G. Harbord, U. S. A. (retired).

Club Picketed

During White's speech, six pickets from the Youth Committee Against War, led by Miss Fay Bennett, executive chairman, paraded before the Thirty-seventh Street facade of the imposing brick club building. They carried such signs as "Steps short of war are getting shorter" and "William Allen White contemplates war—we demand peace." The pickets waited for White to come out, but he left by a side entrance and missed seeing them. Miss Bennett exclaimed that the organization was not Communistic but Christian, and was affiliated with the War Registers League and the Fellowship of Conciliation.

Townspeople Tired Of Student Rallies

Berkeley, Calif. (AP).—"Outside Sather gate" has become a traditional scene of noisy student meetings prohibited on the University of California campus.

Now a long-patient populace has gotten tired—not of self-expression but of plain racket. An ordinance by the Berkeley city council prohibits "unnecessary noise" in certain zones.

Like Raids to Follow Coventry And Birmingham, Nazis Say

By Percival Knauth
Copyright by New York Times

Berlin, Nov. 20.—With the ruins of Birmingham and Coventry reported to be still burning after their night's of terror under a rain of German bombs, threats of further "retaliatory" attacks on a similar scale appear in the Berlin press tonight.

For Berlin, and particularly Potsdam, were raided last night by the Royal Air Force, the latter city, it is stated, bore the brunt of the British attack, in the course of which, according to official reports, bombs were dropped on several hospitals as well as on a number of civilian dwellings.

As the bombing of Munich was avenged by that of Coventry, and those of Hamburg, Bremen and Kiel by Birmingham, so runs the tenor of the threatening press comment, so will Potsdam and Berlin be avenged a thousandfold by the destruction of still another British industrial center.

To neutral observers there appears little doubt that the attack of Coventry six nights ago introduced a new and more terrible phase of Germany's campaign of destruction against the British Isles.

The force of the German attack which roared destructively over Birmingham for ten hours last night is evident from official reports published today. Far more than the 500 planes used in the Coventry raid were sent into action last night, it is stated.

The weight of the bombs dropped is said to have been in excess of 500 tons. While the bombs were of all types and calibers, it is stated the "heaviest" bombs were used on a large scale. At the same time, it is stated, thousands upon thousands of incendiary bombs were scattered throughout the city.

Other English cities said to have been attacked last night included London, Liverpool, Southampton and other ports on the Channel coast. Airports at Markham, Norwich, Lation and Cranwell were bombed, it is asserted, and hangars and barracks were set afire or destroyed.

The official German army periodical Die Wehrmacht publishes today the first photograph of Germany's biggest warship, one of the 35,000-ton battleships of the Bismarck and Von Tirpitz class. At least one of these ships, it is thereby indicated, has now been commissioned and is ready for service.

The first vessel of this type to be launched was the Bismarck, which took to the water at Hamburg, January 14, 1939. The Von Tirpitz was launched shortly afterward on April 1, 1939. Two other vessels of the same class were reported to be building at that time.

Tampico Inquiry Blasts Rumor

that the neutral ships had been stopped, and declared "it seems a pity that false statements, mainly for the sake of propaganda, have been given out in regard to American naval vessels on patrol."—Editor's Note.]

Captains of the four German merchantmen that figured in Saturday's incident with American warships off Tampico are still in Mexico City dictating a detailed account of their experiences to German legation officials. Perhaps before they return to Tampico tomorrow or the next day they will testify also before Mexican authorities, either at the navy ministry or the ministry of foreign affairs. In any case it is expected that the German minister, Baron Ruht von Collemberg, will submit the captains' declarations to the Mexican foreign under-secretary, Ramon Beteta, tomorrow.

That Glorious S-o-n-g of Oooold!—President Roosevelt looked upon a real-life Christmas seal yesterday when these youngsters, dressed as the carolers pictured on the 1940 Christmas seal of the National Tuberculosis Association, sung carols at the White House. The harmony wasn't very close, but anything they lacked was made up by their gusto which pleased the President. The singers are (left to right) Judith Marti, 5; Elizabeth Stirling, 4, and Robert D. The Babies at Crittenton Home

By Barry Sullivan

For more than 150 unmarried mothers each year, the Florence Crittenton home, with the aid of the Community Chest, provides education, shelter, self-respect and protection.

Its atmosphere is homelike. Its medical facilities are the best to be had. Its capacity of 50 women and their babies is also its average of residents.

Although concerned primarily with the needs of women from the Capital and the surrounding counties, the home also works closely with the Travelers' Aid Society to care for women from distant cities who need help.

While resident in the home, the girls learn not only to do housework under supervision of the directing staff, but also are taught how to earn livings for themselves and their babies. Normal business courses are conducted by high school teachers. Sociological casework for proper adjustment to life is undertaken by a volunteer worker.

Although the former requirement that girls remain at the home for six months after birth of their babies has been dropped, efforts still are made to have them remain half that time for post-natal care and to learn to care for their babies.

The home is supported by approximately $13,700 from the Community Chest funds, between $6,000 and $7,000 from Congressional appropriations and $60 fees from women able to pay them.

Every effort is made by workers of the home at 4759 Reservoir Road Northwest to make practical arrangements for girls leaving it, Miss Jean S. Cole, executive, says.

Many girls return to their families. Others begin their lives again with vocational training which fits them to carry on alone.

For some of the girls tragic adjustments must be worked out. Families turn away from their own daughters. Means of support are lacking and must be found. Health must be regained. All these things are understood and straightened out by the nine regular workers of the home.

To maintain its homelike atmosphere and to cut down any "institutionalism," rules are kept to a minimum. Other than the housework, for which each girl has some responsibility, regulations are few.

A well-equipped library and current magazines fill leisure time. Needlework classes and courses for potential domestics and practical nurses provide training which the home's residents find valuable either in earning their livelihoods or in caring for themselves and their babies.

1. OH BOY, there is nothing like a nice warm bath to give a fellow the old pickup But this soap is sure slippery. It takes a fellow's mind off his troubles, however. Nice place this Florence Crittenton Home

2 NOBODY'S LOOKING so I'll just give this thing a little shove. They'll think I weigh more than I did yesterday, won't push so much cod liver oil into me

3. I'M SORRY you won't join me in this night-cap. You'll be sorry you didn't have one with me. We've both had a tough morning and a nap would make you feel pepped up just like I do when I wake up for supper

Christmas Seal Drive Opens In Capital

President Launches War on Tuberculosis By Buying First Stamps

As President Roosevelt yesterday launched the country's annual crusade against tuberculosis by purchasing the first issue of Christmas Seals, the D. C. Tuberculosis Association heard an authority on prevention of the disease stress the necessity for X-ray examinations of civilian selective service enrollees.

Dr. Esmond R. Long, director of Henry Phipps Institute, Philadelphia, addressed the local group's annual public meeting at the Y. W. C. A., Seventeenth and K Streets Northwest. Prevention of tuberculosis among military trainees, he said, is of vital importance to national defense.

Dr. Long reviewed briefly the Nation's experience during the last World War when failure to examine prospective soldiers resulted, he said, in a great loss of life and expenditure of over $1,000,000,000 in hospitalization.

Military authorities, Dr. Long said, are now unanimous in a determination not to repeat such conditions.

Dr. J. Winthrop Peabody, president of the local organization, summarized activities of the last year. He said X-ray service, now extended to high schools and adult worker groups, will be expanded next month to include two local universities—George Washington and American.

Of 3,482 public and parochial school students examined last year, 12 were found to be active tubercular cases, Dr. Peabody reported. Ten others were listed as "suspicious," he added. All were hospitalized to prevent spreading of the communicable disease, the meeting was told.

In the last year, said Dr. Peabody, the association purchased equipment totaling $6,685 for the tuberculosis clinic of the District Health Department. The association also appropriated $1,000 to the committee on medical research of the national organization, he said.

Dr. H. J. Crosson and Dr. C. Wendell Freeman were named to fill vacancies on the board of directors.

Two Units Formed Here to Provide Aid for Greece

Aid for beleagured Greece took form on two Washington fronts yesterday.

A Greek production unit was organized by the D. C. Chapter, American Red Cross, for volunteer work in making surgical dressings to send abroad. The unit is under the cochairmanship of Mme. Kimon Dismantopoulo, wife of the Greek Minister, and Mme. George Depasta, wife of the Greek Minister Counsellor.

Members of the group will meet each Tuesday at the Walsh Mansion, 2020 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, and Thursdays, beginning November 28, at Red Cross headquarters. The unit includes members of the Philoptohos Society of St. Sophia Church, the Greek Ladies Society of St. Constantine and Helen Church and the Greek Mutual Aid Society.

A District Greek war relief committee was orgnaized by 25 local American Greek churches and organizations with Constantine Poulos as temporary chairman. The committee also includes Mrs. Georgia Demas, Mrs. Labrine Theophiles, Miss Marie Zuras, Peter Sintetos, Soterios Nicholson, Dr. Charles J. Demas, Peter Chumbris and George Seymore.

Bombers For Britain

The destruction of Coventry by German bombers last week and the fearful punishment meted out to Birmingham and other centers in the English Midlands during recent days suggest how little the British can afford to be complacent regarding the course of the war. They have gone through extremely difficult times with remarkable courage and fortitude. But many perilous days are still ahead.

It may be that sooner or later an effective defense against night bombing will be discovered. That day has not yet arrived. In the meantime the only real defense which the British possess is their power to counterattack with comparable or greater force. They must give blow for blow. But the distances between German airfields on the continent and British industrial areas are much shorter than between British airfields and German cities. To overcome this handicap the British are under compulsion to extend the range and effectiveness of their bombers.

In this connection it is heartening news that the United States has given Great Britain priority on the delivery of 26 four-engine bombers equipped with the Sperry bomb sight. Negotiations for the release of 20 flying fortresses are also under way. These long-range craft are believed to be able to reach any part of Germany from the British Isles. The acquisition of such planes will help the British to fight back with greater effectiveness than they have attained thus far. In return the United States receives engines previously ordered by the British and these will be used to equip our own flying fortresses.

Obsolescent Organ

In New York the Society of Naval Architects and Engineers is exhibiting a new gadget called the "cinema integraph," which calculates, among other things, the precise pitch and heave of a given ship in a head-on sea—something the unaided mind of men has never been able to do. Indeed, the signs are multiplying that the once-celebrated brain of homo sapiens will one of these days become quite as useless and perhaps as potentially dangerous to him as his vermiform appendix.

Almost certainly the vermiform appendix had once a valuable and perhaps indispensable function in the general economy of the human organism. But that was so long ago that the anatomists are somewhat stumped in trying to guess what that function could have been. There will be no such difficulty, an eon or two from now, about determining the one-time function of the human brain; because, at the present rate of atrophy, no one will be left with enough of a brain to have any curiosity in the matter.

In the pre-mechanical age men found their brains, or as they preferred to call them in those days, their minds, quite useful for such relatively simple things as determining the value of two plus two, for estimating the rotation of the seasons, for finding out why the angles of the sides of an isosceles triangle are always equal to each other, why water is wet and fire is hot, and for speculating about universal categories—whether they have any reality in themselves or are merely useful for purposes of classifying similar but nevertheless wholly separate things.

But today there is scarcely any problem that the human brain can propound that the machine cannot answer much more rapidly and accurately than the brain itself. Indeed, as any economist or sociologist will tell you, the machine can raise many problems—the problem of production and technological unemployment, for instance—that the best brains are wholly unable to solve. So great is the prestige of the machine nowadays, so universal its reputation for omniscience and infallibility, that its word is accepted without question on virtually every subject, including the exact total of the national debt, the presence or absence of foreign bodies in the lungs, the winner of a nose-to-nose horse race, or the genuineness or spuriousness of paintings attributed to Fra Angelico.

Moreover, the all-knowingness of the machine covers the future as well as the past or present. When the ancients wanted to know what was likely to happen to a given thing under a given set of conditions, they were properly distrustful of pure cerebration. They passed the problem along to the Delphic Oracle or looked for the answer in the entrails of pigs. Sometimes they were woefully misled or confused. But our Government merely refers all such questions to those marvelous gadgets at the Bureau of Standards, which are never ambiguous, never deceitful.

Thanksgiving

Mark Twain in one of his cynical moods pictured man as a being with a knife approaching a grindstone. It is a picture that has come irresistibly to mind since the wars started in the Old World. Since last Thanksgiving man's conflicts with man have circled the globe—from Chungking on the roof of Asia to the Arctic Circle and on to equatorial Africa. Now all Europe is in a state of carnage. Only the New World, our own American continent, is free from strife, is living and letting live in good neighborliness. We, and virtually we alone, will sit down to our Thanksgiving dinners with knives sharpened only to attack a fare which is not of our own kind.

For this peace and plenty we thank Providence—the same Providence which has watched over our Nation from the beginning. "You will stand on your own legs," flashed Thomas Weston, the London merchant with whom the Pilgrims on the Mayflower had quarreled over the terms of their business compact. But the Pilgrims knew they weren't alone. Armed with a great faith they set forth across a providentially quiet sea; after many days the new continent came in sight, and it turned out to be the Land of Canaan; and, as if this weren't enough grace, Squanto, the Indian chief, came to meet them, and lo! Squanto could speak English, he could tell the voyagers of the miracle of corn. Surely the hand of Providence was manifest to all when Gov. Bradford proclaimed the day of the first thanksgiving and prayer.

Thanksgiving is linked with the goodness of the earth rather than with the fruits of the seas upon which the men of Massachusetts used to rely. It is associated with the Indian idea of creation, namely, transformation. And the first gifts of the transformed soil were an earnest of all the good things with which our Thanksgivings down the years have been blessed. The fixin's go on inexhaustibly, as from some miraculous pitcher. If in parts of our country nature is niggardly in catering to our bodily comfort, then the spirit is served; as, for instance, in Vermont, where the stony ground, inhospitable to man's entreaty, is so formed of green hills and dales that the soul of your true Vermonter always stays undernourished away from it.

This year the day of Thanksgiving is kept with fullness in our hearts because we now see our blessings in contrast to the lack of them in other countries. It is human to look at one's lot through other eyes—true happiness is relative, they say. But it is with no Pharisaical gesture that we taste the unique measure of our fortunate situation. Goodwill is joined with good cheer, for a full stomach and a flint heart go ill together, and since last Thanksgiving we have not been unmindful of these claims upon our humanity.

In millions of American homes, amid the festive merrymaking, there will be a new realization that our good fortune requires to be insured as well as enjoyed and shared. Our security, now that the world has become as crowded as Juvenal's Rome, let alone our humanity, will not allow us to look at the throat-cutting abroad, as the Swedish Baron von Nolken commended to our forefathers in the Napoleonic wars, with equanimity. Our future is wrapped up with theirs—with the breed in the captive Netherlands, whence the Massachusetts colonists sailed, with the breed in the tight little isle of Britain, fighting the fight of freemen everywhere. On this day of Thanksgiving we are saying a resounding yes to their struggle, to their renewal of faith in a golden age beyond the grindstone, as to our own way of life.

Sex In Grammar

Two lady professors claim a discovery which, if valid, would be depressing. Margaret M. Bryant of Brooklyn College and Janet Rankin Aiken of Columbia University have written a book to prove that in literary style there is no longer any difference between the sexes.

By admitting that there may be divergence in subject matter and "treatment," and that in some exceptional cases the style employed by living writers is plainly masculine or feminine, the authors have made their conclusion hard to refute. Yet the exceptions, if such they must be called, are almost the rule, as the following illustrations suggest:

1. It is hard to imagine what words from her lush vocabulary Edna Ferber would have used to write "Sanctuary."

2. How could Fannie Hurst have given "Of Mice and Men" its peculiar masculine intensity?

3. "The Good Earth" would have been spoiled if a man had written it.

4. The masculinity of the poetic "Look Homeward, Angel" cannot be explained entirely by the theory that Mr. Wolfe was narrating of his own early life.

5. Even in jargon—Gertrude Stein chatters.

6. James Joyce shouts.

It appears likely, then, that if the Bryant-Aiken theory were correct, we should be without much of our most entertaining and inspiring literature as well as some of the least intelligible. If the two lady authors are just continuing the old crusade to prove that women are not inferior to their masculine admirers, they are behind the times. That point was conceded long ago. Let men and women be equal—but, please, let them remain masculine and feminine as God made them.

Hitler's Handmaiden

Once again, as so often in his career as Fuehrer, Adolf Hitler has made diplomacy the effective handmaiden of war. Five months have elapsed since the fall of France; two and a half months since the Battle of Britain began in earnest with mass raids on English cities. But while the German Luftwaffe has succeeded in doing considerable damage to British homes, industries and shipping, and has claimed victims by the thousands, it has failed to break Britain's spirit.

For some time Hitler has faced the alternative of a prolonged war of attrition in which expanding American production of war materials may sooner or later tilt the scales against the Third Reich or finding a new theater of action where a crippling blow might be given to Great Britain. Such a theater is obviously the Mediterranean. Were Great Britain eliminated from that sea her vulnerability would be greatly increased. Yet that objective is easier suggested than achieved.

The Italians have managed to penetrate a few score miles into Egypt. But since the capture of Sidi Barrani they have rested on their oars. At the same time Mediterranean Sea lanes continue to be dominated by the British, a fact spectacularly brought out by the recent assault on Taranto, where three Italian battleships were damaged by torpedoes hurled by British warplanes. Moreover, Italy's effort to overrun Greece and thus provide the Axis with military and naval bases on the Aegean has received a serious setback as a result of the doughty resistance of the Hellenes.

General considerations of strategy as well as the plight of Germany's Axis partner have thus compelled Hitler to hasten preparations for an attack on British positions in the Eastern Mediterranean by the overland route. But such an act would extend Germany's lines of communications to a dangerous degree unless the countries along the Berlin-Bagdad route can all be brought within the orbit of the Axis.

This situation explains Hitler's feverish diplomatic moves of the past two months. Between Germany and the Near East lie Hungary, Rumania, Bulgaria and Turkey. Greece, Yugoslavia and Soviet Russia must also be reckoned with. Each of these countries must be made active partners, neutralized or conquered. Rumania was brought into line some time ago. Following its partition, German troops occupied the kingdom and have assembled there in large numbers. Hungary has now formally become an ally of the Axis. Bulgaria may follow suit and the recent visit of Premier Molotoff to Berlin suggests that Russia is prepared, for some unnamed consideration, to close her eyes to German activities in the Balkans. That leaves Yugoslavia, Turkey and Greece.

Once Bulgaria has been brought into line, and the recent visit of King Boris to Berchtesgaden suggests that this may not be far off, a German attack on Greece, with Salonika the first objective, would be a relatively simple matter. Turkey would then have the choice of submitting to the Axis or fighting, and in such a struggle the odds would very definitely be against her. Yugoslavia would be faced by the same sorry alternative and under the worst possible conditions.

Bit by bit, therefore, the Balkans are being transformed into a base of operations for a Nazi assault on the Near East. A fierce struggle impends with the odds in every category against Great Britain and her Allies. But that one category in which the British remain predominant—sea power—is of considerable importance. So long as she continues to command the Mediterranean the German attempt to dislodge Great Britain from Egypt and the Near East will not prove easy of accomplishment. Yet the new German drang nach osten will greatly increase the pressure on the beleaguered British nation. The necessity of a rapid increase in American aid to that country is the corollary to Hitler's diplomatic successes in the Balkans. We cannot afford to let Great Britain go down by default. It is to our self-interest to do everything possible to assist her in a struggle against antidemocratic forces which more and more are pooling their strength.

Since early in life when we rammed our head into a hornets' nest while climbing a tree to escape an ill-natured bull, we have been of the opinion that one doesn't gain anything by running from trouble.

People are impressed most by the unknown and unfamiliar. That's why the less people know about words, the more vulnerable they are to bombardment by an orator with a large vocabulary.

"The human body is susceptible to 1,600 diseases," says someone—probably a member of a draft board.

Views On Unity

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Mr. Walter Lippmann writes sensibly and intelligently about national unity. He moulds his thoughts with the intelligence of a man who has no political party, but who considers unity among the people more important than verbal politics. His articles are very commendable.

Indeed, now that the election is over, we need to unify ourselves for the strong defense of democracy, to make America impregnable at home and more influential abroad in the voice of peace. To defend our free way of life it is wise to cooperate in the efficient and smooth operation of government, to help to overcome any obstacle toward national progress. This is our duty as independent men, and our obligation as a Nation.

We should bear in mind that democracy is founded on sound principles which bind us together. These principles are indispensable, their application important and their protection vital to American freedom.

That it will be to the best advantage of the Nation if Mr. Willkie, as a titular leader of the opposition, is offered an opportunity to make good use of his initiative, business aptitude, integrity and judgment in a responsible Government job. Should he accept, if offered one, it will give him the experience essential to public leadership, and he will undoubtedly promote a better harmony at work in the two-party system of democratic government. Let us all unite in the defense of freedom.

SYLVESTER SATURDAY.
Glenn Dale, Md., Nov. 16.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

The frenzied harangue for "unity" which came in on the backwash of the election bears so many unsavory odors as to invite questions. Just how much of it is neurotic emotionalism, and how much of it is cold political pressure? "Unity" with whom, and "unity" about what? Is it a covert plea that the seal of approval and good faith be placed upon that fraudulent and sordid "draft" convention at Chicago, with all of its revolting "trimmings?"

Is the attempt being made to persuade intelligent people that they are now under bonds to accept at its own appraisal an Administration which has whipped up scores of sham "emergencies" while constantly muffing the urgent issues of world affairs? Or is the "unity" chorus a device so to lull the dissatisfied millions of voters into forgetfulness that even now in these critical days the sinister forces of New Deal exploitation and control may be strengthened?

This plea for "unity" is the more obnoxious because it is swaddled in the insinuation that the opposition party has hitherto been, and will henceforth continue to be, unwilling to cooperate under all circumstances to promote the welfare of the Nation. That has at no time been true, and obviously that is not now the issue.

Stripped of their padded verbiage, the underlying thought of many of these unctuous pleas seems to be that we have reached the stage where "the king can do no wrong," and that we should forthwith achieve "unity" by placing ourselves in perpetual servitude to the vicious policies and practices that have characterized the New Deal from the first day when it began ruthlessly to violate the elemental principles of democracy and to inject into the life stream of the Nation the poison which has produced the mad delirium across the sea. Reduced to their simplest meaning, many of these insufferably vapid pleas are not pleas for "unity"; they are pleas for stupid servility.

AN OBSERVER.
Washington, Nov. 18.

Religious Education

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

In the Post of November 14 Dr. Frank Ballou, in a statement "'Termites Gnaw' at United States Timbers" refers to the estimate that one-half the youth in the United States receive no religious instruction outside the home. He then called attention to the need of character development in our schools and advocated intensification of our educational program as a means to that end. He went on to say it was his firm belief that some recognition of man as a child of God is necessary and that it "should again become a compelling thought in the actions and lives of men."

Can character be developed without religious instruction? The dictionary defines it as a token of spiritual nature. The separation of church and state has taken the Bible out of our schools, and religious teaching is prohibited.

I have been taught that character is inseparable from a religious restraint—that it is a direct outgrowth of some conception of God as our Father and a desire to live up to the responsibility this puts upon us as His child. If this is true, character could not be formed through any form of activity, however laudable, which leaves spirituality out of the picture.

As a parent, I have endeavored to stem the tide of evils which face my children in the public schools as a result of its failure to incorporate Bible reading. I am a parent whose children have Bible teaching in their home. But you and I both know that religion (and I use this word broadly) is not taught in many homes any more—that our lack of knowledge of the Bible is pitiful. Where, then, will our children get their teaching—not at home, and not at school.

Two Voices

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

America has chosen a voice—our master's voice—the greatly advertised mellow radio voice. We heard that voice on Armistice Day— "reciting a piece," as it were. But the election had done something to that voice! The old-time charm was lacking. Something was gone!

Perhaps we had learned too much during the campaign, perhaps we listened more critically than ever before, perhaps we were on the defensive, determined never again to allow our judgment to be lulled by a voice—certainly the old-time mellowness and magnetism were definitely dulled.

That same evening, we listened in again—this time expecting to hear a husky, strained voice—but here, too, something had happened! An entirely new quality had come into this voice—a kindliness conveying a great-heartedness and good sportsmanship—not "reciting," in school-boy fashion, a well-prepared oration—but a voice speaking with real feeling from the heart, a voice magnetized by deep sincerity, vibrant with the power of the conviction that the speaker "would rather lose in a cause that some day will triumph than to triumph in a cause that I know some day will fail."

Something has either happened to those two voices or something has happened to me—I am trying to figure it all out. Certain it is, I now know how to choose a voice.

Right To Strike

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

My family and their forebears fought for the United States in every war we have participated in since the Revolution—also I, myself, worked in a munitions factory (at a very nominal wage) during a part of the First World War.

I make the above statements as proof of a patriotic inheritance and a justifiable right to be concerned about the present day affairs of my country. Frankly, the news of the past few days is beyond my comprehension and I would appreciate an honest explanation of the following events.

Last week there were several arrests made—of men who had either failed to register for the draft or had given false information. One of a group of young divinity students who believed war to be morally wrong (don't we all); another of several colored boys here in Washington who were probably just scared to death.

The second series of events are as follows—actually they are too numerous to list so I will mention only a few—C.I.O. Union calls wage strike at the Vultee Aircraft Co., producers of much needed military training planes, for an increase hourly wage from 50 cents to 75 cents per hour. Crucible Steel Co.—shut down strike for wage increase. The strike involves 4,000 men working on national defense measures. Carpenters at Fort Meade strike for a wage increase—minimum 62 cents per hour and they are some of the men who are building the barracks for the boys who are being conscripted.

Fellow readers, why should young men who believe war is a sin, or ignorant boys who are afraid, be arrested and imprisoned by our Government for not registering in the draft (a draft which may make them a soldier at $30 a month), while their brothers in labor unions can stop work at will and strike for increases in pay of three to five times as much money as a soldier will ever get?

Where does patriotism stop and treachery begin? Should our soldiers at Fort Meade form a union and strike for more pay—surely they have as much right to do so as the carpenters who are building barracks there. Both groups of men are supposedly dedicating their lives, during a national emergency, to the defense of their country.

Qualified To Serve

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

President Roosevelt in overhauling the Civil Service rules has just banned racial discrimination in hiring Federal workers. I wonder if the discrimination shown foreign born citizens by some of the departments has been brought to his attention? It is not open nor willingly admitted but nevertheless a fact.

Would it not have been more fair to state that native citizenship is required for appointment in the State Department in announcing the coming examination for translators in this department as long as such a restriction exists?

Highly qualified citizens have been refused on such ground by the Department of State and others. After spending valuable time and savings to prepare themselves for the last examination in four languages, some of them feel resentment at such unfairness.

It seems shortsighted policy to antagonize loyal citizens in depriving them of their rights as such in times when their patriotism is particularly needed.

A Modern Thanksgiving

WE HAD BEEN MUSING upon the first Thanksgiving when suddenly through our half-open window came a queer caterwauling sound. It was meant for singing we knew, but Steve, our guest from the West who was making his first visit to New York City, looked at us in surprise without finishing his sentence. Laughingly and without a word, we took him over to our sixth-story window and pointed to the strange assemblage in the courtyard below. There was the Puritan maid, Priscilla, lifting her voice in unison with that of a gay lass of the Revolution, a fair-haired member of the Sioux tribe, and a plump, rosy-cheeked cowboy. Steve looked at us inquiringly, and before we could explain the old custom of Thanksgiving begging, a window across the courtyard opened and a few copper coins showered down to the young troubadours. Our friend was still more astonished. The serenaders most obviously were not chosen singers, nor did they have the lean, half-fed look of beggar children.

A voice from the apartment next door floated to our ears, "Oh, heavens, Bill, I have a headache. Throw down a quarter to them and maybe they'll go away." Go away—when a gold mine had been opened up to them! Encouraged, they sang more lustily and would have continued to sing until they exhausted all further possibilities of such munificence, but a woman thrust her head out the window and called, "Will you please go away? I'm trying to get the baby to sleep." They went willingly enough, but it didn't make much difference for quickly following their departure came three young ladies dressed in borrowed gowns and high-heeled shoes, and one had a ukelele.

"Tell me," asked Steve, "What is all this about?" And so we explained. In New York City, children have carte blanche to go begging on Thanksgiving Day. They dress up in such costumes as they can get and singly, or in groups, go from courtyard to courtyard, serenading tenants. Their reward is usually a few pennies, perhaps a nickel or even a dime from some unwontedly generous person, or a few nuts or candies wrapped up and thrown from the windows. And they supplement this serenading with going from door to door asking "Anything for Thanksgiving?" Fruit, nuts, candies, coins or a flat refusal are the usual answer.

Even as we explained this, the doorbell rang, and our friend asked if he could answer it. As he opened the door, we heard his loud laugh and ran down the hall to see what caused it. The sight wasn't unusual or even funny to us, but evidently it was too much for Steve who was practically doubled up with laughter. Outside stood a grotesque little figure not quite four feet in height, with a fierce-looking false face, and wearing wrinkled trousers surely meant for someone much taller. A huge sombrero rested upon his head and false face, and to complete the Mexican note, he wore a woman's white satin blouse with long full sleeves, and a red sash tied around his waist. Under the white blouse was faintly discernable a woolen sweater lettered with P. S. 132 across the chest. The little Mexicano did not quite know what to make of his reception and was hastily backing away when I remembered my Thanksgiving manners. I signaled him to wait, and went back to the kitchen to pick up some nuts and an apple, which I gave to Steve, who, by now, had recovered his composure. He bowed with courtly grace and handed over the spoils. A high young voice issued from behind the false face, "Muchas gracias, Senor." We waited to see what reception the apartment next door would give him. A penny went into his pocket, and another apple was stowed away in the bag he carried for that purpose . . . the third door was slammed in his face.

We returned to the living room. For a long while there was a stillness in the air. It was dinner time and most of the serenaders had brought home to already well-stocked larders the fruits, nuts and candies which were the spoils of the day, and were now stuffing themselves with turkey. As we sat down to the table, a voice, young, untrained, but full, clear and sweet sang through the courtyard. We went back to our open window, and one by one faces appeared at the other windows. There below stood a golden-haired girl of about 13 singing with all her heart Mandel's "Praise of Thanksgiving."

We recognized Agnes, the daughter of our superintendent, to whom Thanksgiving was not merely a day for a happy prank, but an opportunity to swell that precious fund called "singing lessons." Each Thanksgiving, we explained to our friend, she started out early in the morning, coming back to her own courtyard about dinner time, and every penny she received was saved toward that day when she could study for the opera. The song ended and there was a burst of applause. Coins showered down. Steve took a 50-cent piece from his pocket and carefully wrapping it in a $5 bill, threw it down to the girl below.

"Good luck, Agnes, with the golden hair and golden voice," he called out. When she saw what had been given her, she flung back her head, blew a kiss to Steve, and sang "Father, We Thank Thee." After it was all over, we went back to the table, feeling a little misty-eyed and rather silly about it, but our friend from the West said impulsively, "Let's say grace this year." KATHRYN COOK.

As To The Danger Of Inflation

MUCH HAS BEEN SAID about the danger of an inflation which will cause a decline in the purchasing power of wages, salaries, pensions, and incomes by means of a rise in the price of everything, food, rent, clothing, amusements, automobiles, necessities and luxuries. This danger needs to be appraised carefully and averted resolutely. For a general inflation is one of the great disasters which can wreck a society. The question is how near we in this country are to this danger. The question is very important. The answer to it must determine in the near future the national policy towards taxes, public and private expenditures, wages and investments.

In general the answer of most economists and of many leading industrialists is different from that given recently to the people by many political leaders and many political journalists. The answer in general is that the current fear of inflation is like the fear of a very cold winter at the beginning of a rather warm summer. For while it is true that eventually an inflationary condition may be created, and that, therefore, the danger must be resolutely kept in mind, in fact our condition today is not inflated. On the contrary, we are still very considerably deflated. For a country which has eight or nine million unemployed, large agricultural surpluses, large surpluses of most raw materials, and much unused productive capacity in the consumers' goods industries, is still operating under a deflated economy. And it is this fact that the economy is still so deflated which explains why in spite of nine years of deficit financing and the mounting national debt the general wholesale price level is still far below the inflationary level of 1929, and why the cost of living is so much lower than it was at any time during the Twenties.

THIS DOES NOT MEAN, as some are now suggesting, that the defense program can be carried out without sacrifice or inconvenience merely by taking up the slack of unemployment and idle resources. This optimism is as false as the scare that we are in sight of a great inflation. Our real problem arises from the fact that the heaviest demands of the defense program are concentrated largely in the durable goods industries where capacity cannot be expanded quickly; whereas in the lighter consumer goods industries where capacity can expand quickly,—particularly food, clothing, fuels, chemicals, and miscellaneous products,—the total demand is not equal to the total available supply. What we face, therefore, is not a general inflation in the whole cost of living but a selective inflation in those industries which are closely connected with the defense program. Thus while the general price level is about 79 as against 95 in the year 1929, the price level of metal products and building materials is at about the 1929 level.

It follows from this that for some time to come the controlling principle in regard to taxes, public and private expenditures, and investments is to determine priorities in the use of purchasing power. Our problem is not now the German problem of guns and butter, for we have an ample capacity to produce butter and producing butter does not require materials or labor that could produce guns. But our problem may very soon be guns or new models in automobiles, guns or certain types of public works and private construction. For to an increasing extent the production of guns, tanks, airplanes, draws upon the same relatively limited supply of tools, skilled workers, engineers, managers, and specialized materials. Indeed, one might say that in general there is no present need to reduce the standard of living as measured in the prime necessities of life—in fact the standard for large groups of workers can and will be raised—but that it will be necessary to restrict gradually the civilian consumption of articles which come from the durable goods industries. For if this kind of civilian consumption is not restricted, there will be a boom in this sector of the economy, and a selective inflationary rise of prices which will deeply disturb not only the defense program but a large part of the price and wage structure of the nation.

IN THE FORMULATION of fiscal policy it should, therefore, be recognized that the policy is not something designed to last forever and ever and under all circumstances but that it is a policy for the present phase—the phase in which there are surpluses in certain supplies that consumers use and perhaps shortages in the capacity to produce articles needed for defense. It is not now necessary, therefore, or desirable to levy taxes, as in the warring nations abroad, which reduce all consumption or discourage all kinds of private investments; the object of our fiscal policy now should be selective, both as to taxes and as to public and private expenditures.

It would be an error to lay repressive taxes on food, clothing, fuel, medicines, and even on amusements until and unless there is some evidence that the surpluses are dwindling and that increasing demands can be supplied only by using materials and labor needed for defense. It would be an error to lay repressive taxes on profits as long as profits are directed toward reinvestment in the expansion of the heavy industries. It would be an error to diminish by taxes private contributions to,—or by retrenchment in public support of,—education, health, charity, soil conservation, or the security of old age. For none of these expenditures calls for materials or men needed in the defense industries; in general they draw upon our surpluses, and use them to the national advantage.

But on the other hand it will be desirable by taxation and by retrenchment to reduce expenditures and investments which draw upon the heavy industries and upon our relatively limited supply of skilled men and managers in these industries.

Thus a community can well afford to continue to invest in education and in public health while it will have to think twice before investing in some great public work which requires complicated machinery and large structural materials. A businessman cannot only afford but should plan to expand his plant to meet defense orders. But the burden of proof is on a new enterprise which, however desirable in peace time, would require a draft upon the same materials, machine tools, and skilled workers as a defense industry.

THE TIME WILL COME, as we succeed in developing to the full our potential industrial power, when even civilian consumption will have increasingly to be restricted. Otherwise, the general inflation will take hold. But in our present phase this is not the real problem. In the present phase the problem is by wisely selected taxes and by other measures to fix priorities so that civilian consumption, private investments, and public expenditures not connected with defense, shall not compete with the defense industries. If this principle is grasped and intelligently applied, we have no reason now to fear that inflationary economic forces will get out of control.

Fair Enough

The Stork And Ross

GREAT INDIGNATION has been aroused in certain circles here by a writ of banishment against one of the leading journalists of New York. It appears that the Stork Club, the swank rendezvous of scions and scionesses of New York society, revoked the visa of Mr. Harold Ross, editor of the New Yorker in circumstances involving the freedom of the press. Mr. Ross not only confirms the report but adds that the issue is not personal but, in his belief, fundamental.

"I think it is fundamental," Mr. Ross states—"some word they use in editorials."

Mr. Ross relates that on the evening in question he went to the Stork Club as the guest of a lady who was having a little brawl in honor of the engagement of two young friends and was just sitting there eating olives when the ministre de la presse of the Stork Club came up and said he might stay the evening through but could never come back.

MOMENTARILY STUNNED, Mr. Ross' brain reeled as he speculated on the reason for this drastic action. He thought for one mad moment of panic that he might have forgotten to put on his pants, but a glance told him that this was not the cause. Then, with a trivial excuse, he left the table and hurried to the press headquarters, where the columnists regularly accredited to the night club sector receive their official press releases, to inquire the reason.

As the press officer on duty shook out a hand towel and brushed his collar for him, Mr. Ross asked what it all meant. The words poured from him in a torrent.

"What's it all mean?" he gasped. "I mean what does it all mean?"

"What do you mean what's it all mean?" the press officer evaded, giving Mr. Ross' shoes a fleck. "You mean somebody's been mean?"

CONVINCED that he could obtain no satisfaction from this suave and wily functionary, Mr. Ross sought an interview with the prime minister of the Stork Club, Mr. Sherman Billingsley himself. But Mr. Billingsley had left for the evening. However, the ministre de la presse did grant him another interview, admitting that he was banished on account of something which had been printed in the New Yorker. It further appears that the offending item concerned the dean of the night club of the gents' room corps of journalists and that Prime Minister Billingsley had been put on the spot. The dean had threatened that if Mr. Ross were not banished he, the dean, would regard that failure as a deliberately unfriendly act and start a press campaign against the Stork Club—the way Adolf Hitler does to little nations.

MR. ROSS further states that as he entered the Stork that evening he noted an incident which did not impress him at the time but became significant later.

"I noticed the dean sitting there as I came in," he said. "I did not consciously see him, but smelled him out of the corner of my nose. Soon afterward the dean left, and again I cannot say I saw him go, but I noticed a distinct improvement in the atmosphere.

"I have since learned that the dean went to another night club, riding in a light tank escorted by the first and second platoons of a company of his bodyguard, and from the other club phoned his ultimatum to Premier Billingsley, who thereupon ordered the press minister to issue the order of banishment.

"I am convinced that Billingsley was put on a spot, but, as I say, this action strikes at the very taproots of free American ideals. If you could work in the word 'fundamental' again I would appreciate it."

Mr. Ross now joins the company of journalists who have been banished from Rome, Berlin and Moscow, but he says he has secret agents planted in the Stork and will defy the censorship in this way.

Premier Billingsley himself is much upset. He is a saloonkeeper, not a diplomat, and the delicate problems of press relations involving the dignity and vanity of the gents' room corps of journalists are a constant peril to his business.

MARSHAL PETAIN
He is the hero of a tentative explanation, reported by Messrs. Alsop and Kintner, of the mysterious conferences between Hitler and the Vichy government

Light On The Vichy Mystery

OCCASIONALLY explanation of a previously puzzling incident in the past will cast a bright light on the future by giving an intelligible pattern to events. Such an explanation is now offered by high sources here, in the form of a tentative reconstruction of the mysterious dealings, some weeks ago, between Hitler and the Vichy government. It is of especial interest at the moment, in view of the vital importance of France's attitude in the great struggle for dominance of the Mediterranean.

Everyone must recall the mysterious and apparently fruitless October meetings between Hitler and the French leaders, old Marshal Petain and his second in command, Pierre Laval. According to the tentative reconstruction above mentioned, the prelude to the meetings was a prolonged negotiation between Laval and the German Ambassador gualeiter in Paris, Otto Abetz, with whom Laval established contact through his directeur de Cabinet, Comte Fernand de Brinon, formerly Abetz's chief French agent.

LAVAL'S OBJECTS were to obtain permission for the Vichy government to return to Paris, to achieve better general conditions within France, and thus to score a triumph likely to advance his ambition to be supreme in the French state. Abetz's object was to arrange some sort of Franco-German military collaboration. Nor was Laval inclined to boggle at such a trifle, since his skin will not be worth a nickel's purchase in the event of British victory.

Thus a tentative deal was worked out, by which Laval got what he wanted, in return for permission for the Axis to use the French Mediterranean colonies as bases, and a promise that the French fleet would "protect" these bases against British "aggression." Laval's first meeting with Hitler followed. Assured of Hitler's approval, Laval hurried back to Vichy, reported what he was doing to a cabinet meeting, but concealed the extent of the commitments he was offering the Germans. Marshal Petain and the other cabinet members, unaware of Laval's deception, authorized him to see Hitler again and close his bargain.

FORTUNATELY, however, while Laval was reporting to the cabinet at Vichy, Hitler was on the Spanish borders presenting his demands to Gen. Francisco Franco. Franco, whose country is in no condition to fight, heard with astonishment from Hitler the nature of Laval's bargain. Feeling that Spain would have to do more than he wished if France was ready to do so much, he hastily queried his Ambassador at Vichy, Lequorica. Lequorica promptly let Laval's cat out of the bag to Marshal Petain, who stopped Laval dead in his tracks on his way to see Hitler, thus causing the curious delay in Laval's journey from Vichy which was officially attributed to fog. Petain then undertook to see Hitler himself. And while Petain expressed perfect willingness to assent on France's behalf to Hitler's "new order in Europe," he flatly refused the military collaboration the Germans really desired.

The tentativeness of this reconstruction of the past must, of course, be emphasized. Tentative though it is, however, it fits the facts and provides a rational background for present events.

On the one hand, since their first disappointment, both Hitler and Laval have been working hard to bring the Vichy regime around. For his part, Laval has steadily increased his influence, by putting his creatures in subordinate positions all through the government. There is now little doubt that he plans eventually to be the dictator of France. And while Laval has sapped and mined at Vichy, Hitler has used both pressure and persuasion on Petain, offering gradual release of the French war prisoners whose freedom is the old man's dearest desire, and at the same time ordering the evacuation of Lorraine, threatening the evacuation of Lille, and increasing the exactions of supplies in occupied France.

WHETHER PETAIN will eventually give in, no one can predict. There are, however, several good signs on the other side of the balance sheet. For one thing, the French fleet has moved from Toulon to Bizerta on the African coast, obviously to be safe from a surprise German attempt to seize it. For another, Marshal Weygand, whose influence in the colonies is even greater than Petain's, has refused a pressing invitation, proffered by a Laval emissary, to return to Vichy from French Africa. Weygand, so far, is following the Petain line.

There is a simple explanation of these good signs. A close friend of Weygand's, who reached this country recently, tells how he reproached the marshal for deserting the English in the last days of the French collapse, and how the marshal answered grimly, "Ah, but we and the English will soon be reunited in defeat." The conviction that Britain would soon go under dominated the minds of all the more honest men of Vichy. Now their conviction has been proved groundless, and they are more determined to continue in the attitude taken by Petain, and apparently also by Weygand.

A few optimists think that this may mean ultimate reentry into the war by the French colonial armies on the British side. This sounds wishful. Yet at least it is possible to hope that in the horribly close Mediterranean engagement now rapidly approaching, Laval will not be able to bring France in against her former ally.

British Panorama

HOWARD SPRING'S enormous "Fame Is the Spur" (Viking, $2.75) is not the first, and assuredly will not be the last, of a type of roast-beef - and - Yorkshire - pudding chronicle novel, enormously reminiscent, enormously sentimental, enormously written, for which British novelists today seem to have an unusual talent and affection.

Mr. Spring—precisely because he is master of his trade, precisely because he is at once a fascinating story teller and addicted to tear-jerking tricks not surpassed since Dickens did away with Little Nell, precisely because his conception of British history is at once as radical as a Scotch Communist's and as acquiescent as Sir John Simon's—was made for the British historical novel. He knows the life of the different classes perfectly; he has as many registers as an organ, and if he is remarkably self-indulgent, if he writes much too much and without any discernible sense of form, why, that's Dickensy and British, too. What is fundamental to any appreciation of Mr. Spring's novel is not its prolixity, its fine hearty sentimentality, its moments of genuine power or even Mr. Spring's lamentable disposition to wring your heart. For he has written here, under a very slight disguise, the biography of a very famous English politician of our era, and has bound up in the story of that life (which some have thought inspirational, some—politely—unfortunate) a moving, comic, richly detailed and often unconsciously revealing transcription of English life from 1885 to our own bomb-haunted day.

MR. SPRING calls his hero John Hamer Shawcross. Soon in life he became J. Hamer Shawcross, then the Right Hon. Hamer Shawcross, M. P., then Viscount Shawcross of Hanford. He was a Socialist politician. Born into a shabby, dreary, Wesleyan-chapel world of small tradesmen and petty commercial ambitions, he was from his earliest youth destined to great things. His foster father (J. Hamer, unfortunately illegitimate, was sired by a lord) kept him out of the Lancashire mills in the hope that J. Hamer would enter the church, but our hero had other ambitions.

In those dark and confused days late in the '80s, when the newly formed Labor Party was gaining its first recruits in the industrial Midlands, J. Hamer—who was a comely youth—would arise, twirl the saber, and recite with deep emotion those precious lines from Blake's poem on Milton which English Socialists have sung for 50 years. What a charming young buck was J. Hamer—how his voice would ring out in denunciation of the wicked industrial landlords who kept the English people in the bonds of capitalist slavery! How well he talked, how glibly he wrote, how facilely the honeyed words of messianic liberation fell from his lips!

Now J. Hamer Shawcross is, of course, our old friend J. Ramsay MacDonald, the handsome, the gifted, the unforgettable Ramsay Mac, first Socialist prime minister of England; and it is interesting to see what Mr. Spring does with Hamer-MacDonald. He has caught the Hamer-MacDonald eloquence, the masterly presence, the now legendary opportunism, the shallow facile conviction; but though he is far more severe with Hamer than MacDonald personally deserved, I am not sure that he has really caught MacDonald. For though Hamer and MacDonald had many qualities in common, Hamer was a charlatan; MacDonald was not. Hamer and MacDonald both knew how to use people, their charming, poignant wives, their rich friends, their impressionable constituents. But Hamer was something of a crook; MacDonald was not. It is true that MacDonald, very much like Hamer, was excessively fond of a lord and certainly less interested in Socialism than in J. Ramsay MacDonald; but to understand why MacDonald failed in life and hence failed the great masses of workaday English folk who made him and loved him, is to understand far more than Mr. Spring gives us to understand.

MR. SPRING'S is a rousing, absorbing good story, but it is my profound conviction that, measured by its opportunity, it is ridiculously superficial. You can, as Mr. Spring has done so well, portray English life over three generations with tenderness and knowledge and sensibility, but if you are to tell the story of Ramsay MacDonald intelligibly and fully you dare not adopt a scale of values by which Hamer is bad but Hamer's wife good, Hamer opportunistic and Hamer's Socialist friends dogged, surly and honest. I am not sure I know what ailed MacDonald, but I do know that his failure was immeasurably significant in terms of what was significant to English socialism and English life and manners in general. Why did MacDonald cripple the Labor Party in 1931? Mr. Spring suggests merely that Hamer was tired and wanted a comfortable perch in the House of Lords. Why did MacDonald once boast that he liked to please Lord and Lady Londonderry? Mr. Spring suggests only that Hamer enjoyed the lordly hospitality they tendered him. Is that all? And was Hamer-MacDonald the only English Socialist who gave up in the struggle? Is it not possible that the tides of English life and caste value swept him over for reasons Mr. Spring never touches in this leisurely and expansive novel? To have told that larger, subtler story Mr. Spring would have had to write something smaller, something neater—a biting comedy of manners, or something . . . Shavian.

Why Congress Stayed

By Mark Sullivan

Two Concrete, Major Reasons

FOR THE determination of Congress to remain in session, there were two concrete, major reasons, besides some general considerations. One major reason is to be found in a bill the House has acted upon just the day before it decided not to adjourn. If the reader will follow what happened about this bill, the reader will get an understanding of why Congress did not adjourn.

It was a quite unimportant bill—under ordinary conditions it would have passed perfunctorily. But the bill was a conferring of authority on the President. The authority was slight—it was merely that he might appoint "an Undersecretary in the Department of War." Had the bill stopped there, it would have excited no attention. But the bill went on with the words which were to Congress a signal for pause:

". . . to serve during any national emergency declared by the President to exist, including the present limited emergency."

IMMEDIATELY upon introduction of the bill (by Representative J. Joseph Smith, of Connecticut) the following colloquy took place:

Mr. Joseph W. Martin, of Massachusetts: "Will the gentleman tell us whether this legislation is an official request from the Administration?"

Mr. Smith: "It is an official request from the War Department with the approval of the President."

There followed brief colloquy which brought out clearly the state of mind of Congress. The colloquy was completely good-natured. It was made completely plain there was no objection to creating the office of Undersecretary of War. It was recognized there is need for an Undersecretary at this time. As put by Mr. Martin: "I do not wish to put any obstacle in the way of the War Department functioning properly and efficiently. . . . I am not opposed to the creation of the office at this time. I am only opposed to the way the bill is framed."

THE OBJECTION was wholly to 17 words, the words quoted above, "about "emergency declared by the President."

Courteously, Mr. Martin suggested that the bill will be withdrawn for the moment "so that we may see if we cannot reach an agreement." Courteously this was done. Quickly agreement was reached. After a few minutes, the sponsor of the bill, Mr. Smith, proposed an amendment which dropped the words objected to, and substituted others. By comparing the dropped words, quoted above, with the new words, the reader will grasp much about the whole situation at Washington. The new words are:

"The provisions of this act shall cease to have effect on January 20, 1945, unless continued in force by an Act of Congress.

Instantly the changed form of words was adopted. Instantly the bill passed.

HAD THE Democratic leaders followed that incident in the House on November 18, they would not have been surprised when, 24 hours later, the House voted not to adjourn.

Congress has concern about what Mr. Roosevelt might do if Congress is away. Congress remembers that a year ago last September 8, a time when Congress was not in session, Mr. Roosevelt declared a "limited emergency," under which he exercised certain powers. This action has never set well with Congress. That action caused the word "emergency" to be a warning signal to Congress. Much of the objection to the original wording of the present bill lay in the charge that it seemed to give Congressional confirmation to the President's actions of last September.

More broadly, Congress apprehends that the Administration or some in it may use the emergency of preparedness, or war, to get for the executive powers which are appropriate for war, which must be given for war—but may not freely surrender those powers after the emergency is ended. It will be found that Congress, in passing legislation to give the President emergency powers, will do as they did in the present case—fix a date upon which the powers expire, not leaving it to the Executive to say when the emergency is over.

THERE WAS another concrete reason for Congress declining to adjourn. The decision was in the hands of the House—and the House had cause for resentment in the history of two bills. The House had passed both bills overwhelmingly, and in good time—the Walter-Logan bill last April, by 3 to 1; the Labor Act amendments last June, by 2 to 1.

But although those bills had been introduced in the Senate about the same time as in the House, that is, nearly two years ago, they have never been acted upon by the Senate. During all that time, the labor amendments have been kept in the Labor Committee of the Senate, upon which happens to be a strong representation of friends of the Administration. The Walter-Logan bill has been postponed again, upon request of Senate Leader Barkley, accompanied by promises it would be brought up later.

This delay, some in the House felt, whether rightly or not, might not be free from political motive on the part of the Administration and its friends in the Senate. And the House saw that if there was adournment now, the bills would be dead—the stymie would be successful. The House declined to adjourn.

Barrage Checks Raid on Midlands

London and towns in southwest England and Wales.

The action, however, did not seem to be as widespread as last night's which covered a record area. A west Midlands town which bore the brunt of Tuesday night's attack was being raided again, but not so heavily as before.

Raiders Come in Waves

Heavy antiaircraft fire met the raiders but they dived through the perilous bursts and came on, wave after wave. Observers on a hilltop said there were terrific explosions every second.

The British had waited grimly for a repetition of the assaults which many believe to be the opening of a new and intensive campaign of night bombing directed at the industrial areas instead of London.

(The British did not mention any towns attacked Tuesday night, but the German high command specifically named Birmingham, second largest industrial city in England, as one of the hard-hit targets.)

The nine-hour attack Tuesday night left a dozen towns strewn with wreckage, the dead and wounded, and official descriptions conceded the damage was heavy.

Such an aerial offensive—in its worst form seen in the attack on Coventry last Thursday—has been expected by the air force and the army since last May, and some experts believed the Germans actually tried it in the heavy daylight raids of August when they were repulsed with heavy losses.

Now the belief prevails among observers here that the Germans are ready for continuous night assaults with pilots trained for night bombing with the same intensity with which the panzer division officers and men were trained in Germany and tested on the Polish plains.

That would mean that such industrial and shipping areas as Sheffield, Birmingham, Glasgow and Liverpool would be raided steadily.

No observer, neutral or British, doubts the power and tenacity with which these blows can be struck, but they do doubt the success of a German offensive. And while Britain is strengthening her defenses, the general feeling is that the best defense would be retaliation on a vast scale.

(The German high command said today more than 1,000,000 pounds of bombs were dropped on Birmingham, munitions and industrial center, in "retaliation" for the British raids on Hamburg, Bremen and Kiel, and that the results were worse than those observed in last Thursday's raid on Coventry.)

Two Universities Here Asked to Give Guns to Britain

Two local universities—George Washington and Georgetown—yesterday received requests from the American Committee for the Defense of British Homes, 10 Warren Street, New York, to contribute, through their respective rifle teams, guns and ammunition for use of British civilians in protecting their homes.

C. Suydam Cutting, chairman of the committee, said the University of Pennsylvania has already donated a number of rifles consigned to Eaton College.

Hemisphere Unity Urged by Mayors

A proclamation urging unity, goodwill and friendship between cities in the Western Hemisphere has been mailed to the mayors of 3,000 cities in Mexico, South and Central America by the United States Conference of Mayors, which convened recently in New York City.

Printed on parchment paper, 2 by 1½ feet square, the declaration is printed in both English and Spanish, and urges "closer contact by the interchange of municipal information."

It is signed by Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia, of New York.

Hagerstown Plans Yule Tree Crop On Municipal Land

Special Dispatch to The Post

Hagerstown, Nov. 20.—The city of Hagerstown is planning to grow Christmas trees on land it owns in the mountains on its Edgemont reservoir watershed.

The Washington County Soil Conservation District will assist in putting out two acres in cedars. Other municipalities, city officials were informed by William Dengler, forester with the local district, have grown Christmas trees with much success. Most of the trees used in Yuletide decorations here, are imported from New England, but the land on the watershed has been found adaptable to their growth.

If the experiment proves a success, it is planned to put on 25 additional acres in the trees, which also will serve to prevent soil erosion.

Catholic Charities Elects Three Here To National Posts

Chicago, Nov. 20 (AP).—The Rev. Bryan J. McEntegart, of New York, was elected president of the National Conference of Catholic Charities today at the closing session of the organization's annual meeting. Other officers chosen included: Vice presidents, Miss Jane Hoey, Washington, and Miss Agnes Regan, Washington; and Msgr. John O'Grady, Washington

Father McEntegart, head of the Children's Division of Catholic Charities in New York City, stated that members of the organization must "develop more effectually welfare work in communities adjacent to defense industries and to training camps."

Utility Fights Natural Gas Proposal

'Problems of Supply' Pointed Out by D. C. Power Company; Low Cost Denied

Washington Gas Light Co. officials last night prepared to fight proposals to use natural gas as the sole source of supply to their consumers recommended in a report by Frank P. Fisher to the Public Utilities Commission.

Fisher, an expert on the use of natural gas, was employed ten months ago by the commission to probe the practicability of a greater or complete use of the natural product for local consumption. The company at present supplies consumers with a mixture of natural gas and the manufactured product.

A public hearing on the Fisher plan will be held early in January after the commission has had an opportunity to study his report.

Marcy L. Sperry, president of the utility company, said: "We would welcome the results which Mr. Fisher holds forth if they were within practical attainment by the methods he suggests, but in his picture we find, according to our studies which cover several years, much of the rainbow. The best example of this is the announcement of great reduction in rates from the use of natural gas."

Future Supply Affected

The utility company, which also made a study of the use of natural gas, released a statement yesterday stating transfer to natural gas as a sole source of supply involves "difficult problems" related to future supply problems which might become critical in a few years.

Fisher, in his report, advised the commission house-heating consumers could anticipate a saving of $745,000 during the first year. Within 10 years, however, the extended use of the natural gas to other domestic consumers would bring about an annual savings of $1,530,000.

The two reports provide radically different figures as to the cost of changing all present gas appliances necessary if natural gas is substituted for the present product. Fisher states the cost would run in the neighborhood of $618,000 and the gas company states it will be something like $3,620,000.

Arguments against substitution of natural gas supplied by the company are:

There is only one available supply area for natural gas, the Kentucky and West Virginia fields. These have been intensively developed and explored and their reserves are only equivalent to the production of the last 15 years.

Industrial Areas Served

They also supply large industrial areas, and in the event of war there might be intense shortages, with a possibility of priority for industrial uses.

The transfer would involve workmen appearing to make basic changes in every gas appliance in every home or apartment in Washington. (The company would bear this entire cost.)

The use of a 350-mile pipe line introduces new hazards to the steady availability of gas to householders because of breaks in the line which might shut off the supply, with its consequences of frozen pipes, sickness, inability to cook or have hot water, and other discomforts and annoyances.

Changeover would result in substantial decrease of employment by the company in the District, in favor of employes in the fields from which the new gas comes.

Change to natural gas would make Washington dependent upon a source of supply over which the distributing company has no control and the P. U. C. no jurisdiction.

Holds Supply Adequate

He said the source of supply is, and will continue to be, adequate to meet the needs of Washington consumers and that it could be brought here at such prices as to make it desirable for the community. He said approximately 60 per cent of the gas volume now being sold here is being produced by the manufacturing process. However, the natural gas now entering into the mixture, by reason of its concentrated heating values, supplies more than 75 per cent of all the actual heat units used in the area, he stated.

Fisher made the following recommendations:

That the Washington Gas Light Co. be directed to prepare to change over its service to straight natural gas, beginning in the spring of 1941, meanwhile revising its billing to the therm basis at prices equivalent to the present volumetric rates.

That the present manufacturing plant be retained in the rate base as emergency standby equipment, modified to produce high B. T. U. (British thermal unit) gas.

That the cost of the change over be amortized on a five-year straight-line basis with possible deferment of beginning of amortization part of a year.

That an application be made to the Federal Power Commission for a net gate rate for Washington Gas Light Co. based on a reasonable earning on a normally loaded pipe line. Or, a san alternate to carrying through this application to the Federal Power Commission, that there be a negotiation of the new rate if both Washington Gas Light Co. and Atlantic Seaboard Corporation (one of the concerns which operates transmission line to this city) are willing to revise the rates on a reasonable basis.

That a new rate be put into effect for house heating simultaneously with the beginning of straight natural gas service, 40 per cent less than present rates.

Sperry, president of the gas company, said in his statement the company officials "are as eager as anyone for any improvement that will benefit our customers and maintain our financial stability with continuity of service."

Fisher said the present use of gas for house heating is classified as a "luxury." A reduction of the amount will take this gas heating service out of the luxury class

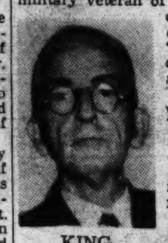
Joseph L. King Came Nearer Death as Civilian In France Last Summer Than He Did in Cuba; 100 Attend Volunteer Division Reunion

Joseph Ligon King, lean, gray-haired, "going on 70 years," came back to Washington last night, a military veteran of one war and a civilian veteran of two, to say "Howdy" to his comrades in arms of 1898.



KING

With 100 other veterans of Washington's first volunteer division in the Spanish-American War, he relived that Cuban adventure, then told how, as a civilian in Paris in 1918 and 1940, he came closer to violent death than he ever had as a soldier.

The veterans, all that are left in the Washington area of the 1,000 who joined in 1898, met for a reunion banquet at the Harrington Hotel. It was the forty-second anniversary of their being mustered out of service, and Maj. William S. Hodges presided.

A War Department auditor in Paris in 1918, King watched German Gothas unload their bombs over the French capital. Six times a bomb or Big Bertha shell landed close enough to fling him to the ground. After the war, he married a French woman, worked for awhile at the American Embassy, then retired and settled in Herbley, a Paris suburb.

So it was that last spring, 22 years after his first aerial bombardment, he stood again watching high explosive pour down from the skies. He saw dive bombers demolish completely the town of Pontoise, 2 miles from his home.

It was not the bombs, however, he insists, that finally led him to flee Paris with his wife on May 24 and embark on an eight-week odyssey through southern France, Spain and Portugal, and across the Atlantic to the United States.

"It was the uncertainty," he said. "The French people were kept in complete ignorance of what was going on. When we left Paris and arrived at Aucachon, in southern France, early in June, we knew so little of what had happened that we rented an apartment and paid a year's rent in advance.

"Two weeks later, after a tip from the Aucachon police chief, a friend of my wife's family, we started for Spain. Two hours after we left, the first German troops arrived. We missed the Germans again at Biarritz and at the Spanish border."

King said he felt lucky to be able to leave in such comparative leisure. He and his wife had their luggage and enough funds for immediate expenses. Other American refuges he met had fled with only the clothes on their backs. One, an artist, had time only to snatch up six paintings and rush from his home, hoping to sell his works en route. Only with Red Cross aid was he able to reach this country.

King and his wife are living in Riverdale, Md., now, their only income his soldier's pension. His savings and property are tied up in France, and he hopes, in more peaceful days, to return for them. But if he goes back, he won't stay., That's certain.

"Two wars in Europe ought to be enough for anybody," he said. "They're enough for me."

Summit Park Citizens Group Seeks Better Streets, Schools

This is the fifty-third article in a series about citizens associations in the District of Columbia and their efforts to make the community a better place in which to live.

Members of the Summit Park Citizens Association live in one of Washington's youngest communities, near the southeastern District line. Because of this, they escape many problems usually confronting citizens' groups, but they also face others.

For instance—the No. 1 problem before the 8-year-old association this year is to have the roads in its neighborhood improved. Many are in a "deplorable condition," President James Davis reports. Because the community has been recently developed, many of the streets are still unpaved and frequently impassable, he explains.

Schools for the area constitute another problem. Summit Park children have no school of their own and must attend the Stanton School, an old portable building. The citizens are cooperating with the Hillcrest Assaciotion in promoting a school program for the neighborhood.

Transportation service could be improved, but most residents of the area drive their own cars, President Davis said.

One of the association's accomplishments, which "in itself justifies the existence of the association," according to Mr. Davis, was in getting the subdivision rezoned from "Residential A" to "Residential A Restricted." By this means row houses were prohibited in Summit Park and only single-family dwellings permitted. No commercial establishments are allowed within its boundries.

The unit is a member of and cooperates with the Federation of Citizens Associations and the Southeast Council. An association member, William J. Smith, is president of the council this year.

Action of the federation in backing the vote for the District is indorsed by members of the association, the president states.

Members meet monthly on the second Tuesday in the East Washington Heights Baptist Church hall.

Newly elected officers are, beside President Davis: Mrs. Leila Marshall, formerly president of the association, vice president; Mrs. W. P. Fallon, secretary; M. Verda Layton, treasurer; Charles Hall, financial secretary; Mrs. Marshall and Davis, delegates to the federation, and U. S. Fisher and George Marshall, delegates to the Southeast council.

Arkansas U. Alumni Elect Norman Warnock

The University of Arkansas Alumni Association of Washington last night elected Norman Warnock as president at its second annual banquet held in the Admiral Club. Other new officers are A. B. Caldwell, vice president; Miss Sue McClure, secretary, and Curtis Youngblood, treasurer.

Guest of honor at the banquet was Miss Ivajean Dollarhide, Queen of the Arkansas State Society, who will represent the society today in New York at the Arkansas U.-Fordham football game.

Day Added To School Yule Recess

Board Votes to Close Friday, Dec. 20, Despite Objection Of Supt. Ballou

Over objections of Superintendent Frank W. Ballou, the Board of Education yesterday unanimously voted an additional day of Christmas holidays for the school system.

Schools, which were scheduled to close on the afternoon of Monday, December 23, will now close at the end of the day on Friday, December 20. It was necessary for the board to suspend the rules to alter the calendar which had already been set up.

Mrs. Philip Sidney Smith, who introduced the motion, called it an "economy measure," pointing out the saving in fuel which would be necessary to keep up the fires over the week-end for the one day of school on Monday.

Col. West A. Hamilton pointed out that the system had already had an extra holiday on selective service Registration Day, when the buildings were in use. "I think it's an error to curtail school sessions. What we need is to extend the school term, instead of reducing it," he said, while indicating that he would not vote against the motion.

"Sensible Thing to Do"

R. A. Maurer urged that the measure be voted," not because it's the popular thing to do, but because it's the sensible thing."

"The continuity of the work would be broken" Friday, December 20, and it would be difficult to pick up the thread for the one additional day, Monday, Maurer said.

When all these board viewpoints had been expressed, Dr. Ballou arose to object.

He pointed out that 180 days was the standard length of session under which the system was attempting to operate. The calendar this year had set up only 175 days, "and we have already lost one day by closing for Registration Day," said the superintendent.

'I' don't like to be a joy-killer," he said, "but while we may save $3,000 in fuel by not opening the schools that day, we would deprive the children of about $50,000 worth of instruction. Those are the cold facts."

He added that the Christmas exercises which would be held in the schools on December 23 would now be moved forward and "would interrupt" the previous week's work. "We ought to know what we want to do when the calendar is made," he added.

Reopen After January 1

The board's action yesterday was similar to that which it took several years ago when Christmas fell on Wednesday. The schools will reopen on the day after New Year's.

New rules governing the community use of school buildings were brought to the board meeting by its recreation committee, and were then referred to the rules committee, before board action on them. A more clear-cut prohibition of programs for commercial money-raising or private profit in the buildings is set forth.

Appointment of Boise L. Bristor as statistician for the school system was approved. He succeeds N. A. Danowsky who has become assistant principal of Eastern High School. Bristor has been supervising principal of Northumberland (Pa.) Junior-Senior High School

The board yesterday commended Miss Grace Bush, principal of Noyes School for her prompt and efficient action on damage done to the school on Halloween. Nineteen window panes were broken. Miss Bush began investigating the next day, and turned over to the police the names of all but one person involved. That one was also apprehended. The officer interviewed all the boys and girls, as well as the parents, and filed the charges.

The suspension of Mrs. Pearl A. Frealing, teacher at Dunbar High School, was continued to January 2. She was suspended in October for striking another teacher with an ink well.

The board yesterday approved the superintendent's recommendation that the period of admission for new pupils to kindergarten be closed for the first term on November 1 and for the second term on March 15. Dr. Ballou pointed out difficulties in adjustment for late entrants who did not reach their fifth birthday until after those dates.

Southeastern University Junior College was accredited by the board yesterday.

Miss A. F. Nordby was named principal of Central Night School to succeed Miss E. A. Hanft. Miss Helen V. Harper was appointed supervisor of student teaching in the intermediate grades in the practice schools of Wilson Teachers College.

Fred S. Gichner, Iron Works Proprietor, Observes Birthday Amid Beloved Machines

Among the electric shearing and punch machines of his block-long ironworks, Fred S. Gichner last night celebrated his seventieth birthday close to the fruits of his labor and surrounded by his friends.

More than 1,000 of the latter turned out at the ironworks, 1214 Twenty-fourth Street Northwest, to walk down the plant, past the machines, and tell Gichner it was 70 years well spent.

Then they danced to the music of an orchestra that played next an improvised dance floor. Old, young and middle aged, they danced folk configurations and faster varieties to modern swing music.

Others of Gichner's friends sat and watched and told how he built the ironworks he founded 42 years ago into one of the largest of its type south of New York. The products of his craftsmanship, they reminded, can be seen in the embassies and the Washington buildings where ornamental and structural ironwork has to be exemplary.

Gichner's friends also pointed to the fact he prides himself on the loyalty of his employes, most of whom are veterans with his plant, with whom he has worked for two score years with never a labor dispute.

And last night Gichner himself enjoyed his party because he was happy at seeing so many of his friends.

"How do I feel about it . . . it's wonderful," he declared as a newly arrived group came up to congratulate him.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

National Symphony Orchestra collaborates with Les Ballets Russes de Monte Carlo in Constitution Hall Wednesday night. Program: "The Nutcracker" (Chaikovski), "The New Yorker" to music by George Gershwin. Artistic director: Leonid Miassin. Conductor: Franz Allers.

At their second appearance of the season with the National Symphony Orchestra last evening in Constitution Hall, Les Ballets Russes de Monte Carlo went to extremes in contrast. Whether one considered the difference between the music of Chaikovski and Gershwin or the gulf between the stylized movements of formal ballet and rug-cutting, the yawning discrepancy was the same. Two diametrically opposed modes of technique were in evidence, and in no way could the rivals be brought together and reconciled. Across the intermission in the program "The Nutcracker" bowed to "The New Yorker" and that was the extent of their acquaintance. A crowded house was impartially cordial to both, and there was no doubt that the spectators were entertained.

Ray C. B. Brown

The 48-year-old ballet which is known to us as "The Nutcracker" and was called "Shchelkunchik" by Chaikovski, who interrupted the composition of the music to make a visit to the United States, is rigidly traditional in both form and content. All the old trappings of fairies and animated toys, and every prescribed step and posture dating from the Italian masters of stage dancing are included. The first scene of the Christmas party in the home of Counselor von Stahlbaum is the kind of pantomime that pleased the Victorian taste, but it has a sporific effect on the jazz age.

Everything came to life, however, in this particular presentation with the entrance of Alicia Markova and Igor Yuskevich as the Snow Queen and Prince. The sheer virtuosity and exquisite style of Markova's performance then and in the second act as the Sugar Plum Fairy made one forget the banal and somewhat boring choreography. She had all the devices of the ballerina at the tips of her hands and feet, and her dancing partner was a master of the masculine maneuvers.

The divertisements, made the more appreciable by the accompaniment of music thrice familiar in the concert hall, were performed with neatness and eclat. Frederic Franklin received an ovation for his brilliant athleticism in the trepak, and Roland Guerard nearly stopped the show in the Chinese dance. Franz Allers, who conducted the orchestra, made Chaikovski's score sparkle.

"The New Yorker" is as far a cry from the canons of Russian ballet as Broadway is from the Nevski Prospekt. The three scenes depict the nocturnal caperings of characters from the drawings of Peter Arno, Helen Hokinson, William Steig, Otto Soglov and other cartoonists of the metropolitan magazine after which the ballet is named—with permission of the copyright owners. The musical score is a potpourri of George Gershwin songs, preludes and selections from more serious compositions concocted by David Raskin.

This entertainment is a revue rather than a ballet, and when one takes it in that spirit it provokes mirth. The makeup of the characters was true to the cartoons and there was plenty of fun in the proceedings. But the efforts of dancers skilled in ballet technique to reproduce the impromptu expertness of jitterbugs did not convince one of their spontaneity. This is a manner to which one has to be born.

Auto Kills Telegraph Messenger

Companion, 15, Injured; Two Drivers Are Held Pending Inquest

A 17-year-old telegraph messenger was killed and his 15-year-old companion injured last night when they were struck by an automobile in the 600 block of Eleventh Street Southeast.

George Frederick Leigh, of 649 I Street Southeast, who started to work for Postal Telegraph only five days ago, died instantly in the accident. He was on his way home from work. Ralph Padgett, of 14 Seventh Street Southeast, was taken to Casualty Hospital with a back injury and brain concussion.

The two boys, police said, were apparently talking at the curb, young Leigh on his bicycle and Padgett standing beside him, when an automobile driven by Riley Johnson, colored, 32, of 142 M Street Southeast, attempted to pass another car on the right.

Two Held Pending Inquest

Both he and the other driver, Benny Robinson, colored, 32, of Arlington, Va., were held at Fifth Precinct police station pending the outcome of the coroner's inquest.

The Leigh youngster attended Abbott Vocational School in the day and worked out of Postal delivery headquarters, 1420 New York Avenue Northwest, at night.

He leaves his father, Russell Leigh, a steamfitter's helper; his mother and six brothers and sisters.

Two soldiers were injured yesterday when three Army trucks collided, one catching fire, at Bladensburg Road and South Dakota Avenue Northeast. According to police, the trucks were part of a convoy of 18 traveling through the city. One, operated by Corpl. John G. Woloszyn, 25, stopped short and two immediately behind piled into it.

Truck Catches Fire

Joseph H. Walker, 19, driver of the second truck, and Rudolph S. Gaghan, 34, driver of the third truck, both were taken to Casualty Hospital and were treated for minor cuts and bruises. Gaghan's truck caught fire after ramming Walker's vehicle.

Paul Lee, 8, was injured yesterday when an automobile struck him as he ran across Carroll Avenue, Takoma Park, Md. The accident occurred in front of the home of Leroy Slattery, 645 Carroll Avenue, with whom the child is staying while here on a visit from Asheville, N. C.

Citizens Urge Blood Tests For Marriage

A proposal for legislation to make blood tests a prerequisite for obtaining marriage licenses and to abolish legal recognition of common-law marriages in the District was indorsed last night by the Sixteenth Street Highlands Citizens Association, meeting at Brightwood School, Thirteenth and Nicholson Streets Nortwest.

The organization also voted to support the Sixteenth Street Heights Citizens Association in its efforts to obtain bus service for upper Thirteenth Street. In another resolution it was decided to renew efforts for traffic lights and safety islands at the intersection of Fourteenth and Kennedy Streets and Colorado Avenue Northwest.

Standing committees were named at the session. Chairmen are George Foster, law and legislation; R. G. Merryman, membership; John D. Rhodes, fiscal relations; Dr. Alfred H. Richwine, public health; Jesse Pawling, streets, alleys and traffic; Haviland Hobbs, public utilities; David H. Lum, fire and police; Dr. [illegible] B. Kennard, education; Myron S. Anderson, zoning, and Charles [illegible] Dyer, safety.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

A Superlative Cast Adds Tense Power to 'Escape'

Shearer and Taylor Costar in Filmed Novel Of Nerve-Wracking Adventure in Dictator State; Appropriate Shorts at Palace

"ESCAPE." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of the novel by Ethel Vance, adapted to the screen by Arch Oboler and Marguerite Roberts, costarring Norma Shearer and Robert Taylor, with Conrad Veidt, Nazimova, Felix Bressart, Albert Basserman, Philip Dorn, Bonita Granville, Edgar Barrier, Elsa Basserman and Blanche Yurka. Directed by Mervyn LeRoy. At Loew's Palace Theater.

BELL

UTILIZING THE VICIOUS DESPOTISM prevalent in Europe's dictator countries as background and motivation, "Escape," opening this morning on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater, is perhaps the most shrewdly devised of all the pictures that have assailed tyranny through the medium of tense and exciting entertainment. The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of the widely read novel by the mysterious Ethel Vance embodies all of the conflict, suspense and thrills of a magnified and refined "police melodrama." It never abandons interest for "ideology" or "punch" for preachment, but is steadfast in its purpose to provide forceful and gripping dramatic diversion.

The film follows the book with unusual fidelity, preserving all or its salient developments and swift movement, culminating in a climax that launches a brief but powerful attack upon the inhumanity of the totalitarian state. The early passages of the screen play, contrived by Arch Oboler and Marguerite Roberts, telescope and streamline the opening chapters of the novel without loss of any point essential to plot, character drawing or the ominous atmosphere of iron-handed oppression. The suspense of the most wracking incident in the story has been multiplied by the interpolation of a scene in which the "political police" insist upon minute examination of the coffin supposed to contain the lifeless body of Emmy Ritter, the character who gives the play its title. For once, the exercise of dramatic license has redounded to the benefit of a play already highly charged with electric qualities.

If anyone hasn't read the Vance fiction, either in book or serialized form, Mark Preysing, the American-born son of a distinguished foreign actress, journeys to her homeland to learn something of her secret fate, following an ill-fated attempt to sell her property and return her money to the United States—a violation of dicator law that entails the death penalty for treason. At first rebuffed at every hand, Mark finally learns that his mother is to die in a concentration camp within a matter of days. Through the aid of the young doctor who has performed an operation upon Emmy Ritter to save her life for extinction by the firing-squad, Preysing spirits the drugged form of his mother out of the camp as dead, to effect her escape and eventual return to America. In this crucial situation he is given vital assistance by The Countess, American-born, who conducts a "finishing school" for rich young ladies in a hilltop palace over which she presides as clandestine chattel of a powerful officer of the high command. Here, if ever, is a situation instinct with nerve-stretching and explosive melodrama.

The more malignant aspects of the story are beautifully veiled by the finished playing, the intelligence and the discretion of the cast, headed by Norma Shearer, Robert Taylor, Conrad Veidt, Felix Bressart and Philip Dorn. Miss Shearer's Countess is a charming, graceful and poignant study of a woman masquerading under a hollow happiness, who rises to a supreme occasion with blazing spirit to denounce everything she hates in her aging lover and the inhuman system he represents. Taylor, in the role of Mark Preysing, adds to the stature he assumed in "Waterloo Bridge" as an actor of competence and forcefulness and Mr. Veidt's portrayal of Gen. Kurt von Kolb adds just another perfect portrait to the gallery of similar characters he already has drawn. Felix Bressart is effective as the humble helper in the great adventure and Philip Dorn, a newcomer, in the role of Dr. Ditten, assures his future eminence on the screen. Mme. Nazimova, long absent from the cinema, returns in the role of Emmy Ritter and adds a sure touch to the story's power by her simulation of complete invalidism threatened by unjust and violent death. Albert Basserman, Bonita Granville, Elsa Basserman, Blanche Yurka and numerous others contribute to the excellence of a film that frequently is enlivened by incidental flashes of humor and lightness.

During the major movement of the plot there are developed undertones of romance, humor and youthful ebullience that leaven the grim narrative of a thrilling joust with death and the fallible human powers who inflict it. Primarily patterned for entertainment of the tensest sort, "Escape" still stands as an eloquent and overpowering indictment of everything for which dictatorship has been condemned by such civilization as remains in the world. It is a picture that most emphatically should be seen for both reasons.

Augmenting the holiday bill at the Palace are a new release in the "Magic Carpet" series, "Old Dominion State" which ought not to be too hard to identify; a short-reel contemplation of "The Landing of the Pilgrims" and the customary release of the picturized news events.

In Hollywood

Hollywood, Nov. 20.

Director Willie Wyler's done it again. The story of "The Letter," in which Bette Davis gives an amazing performance could have been written on one sheet of paper. Willie's handling of the characters made it a breath-holding experience. He also handed Warners a new star on a silver platter—James Stephenson, who's been under contract there for three years. Herbert Marshall came into his own again, and I hope they'll find more parts for Sen Yung. There are many fine directors in Hollywood, but Wyler seems to creep into an actor's mind.

HOPPER

I wish Carole Lombard and Myron Selznick could have sat down in private like two old pals and ironed out their difficulties. Say what you like about Myron, but every studio in town knows he fights his weight in wildcats for his clients. Carole has come a long way under his management. Only a few short years ago, she earned the highest pay of any actress in Hollywood.

Who says nobody loves a fat man? Peggy Kent's going to marry Don Wilson on Tuesday.

Elaine Barrie was a riot when she was called for a radio show and was handed the script of one called "Dear John." She said, "This is duck soup to me," and ate up the part of the heavy.

We've been having famous visitors this last week. First the George Camerons, of the San Francisco Chronicle. It was of that paper that Arthur H. Sulzberger, head of the New York Times, said they carried the best war news in the country—high praise indeed.

Joe Kennedy stopped off for a day. He wasn't the gay, debonair man-about-town he used to be when he was Gloria Swanson's favorite producer. His outlook on the war hasn't an ounce of optimism. I don't blame him for not wanting to return to London. He deserves the highest praise for reiterating that we should never, never get into a European war.

Kay Kyser and Dave Butler continue, but "You'll Find Out" for yourselves. It's comedy, for belly laughs—mystery for thrills—and music you can sing. At the box office, exhibitors "will find out"

STUDY: H. T. Tsiang is the Chinese writer who while working as a dishwasher in a Greenwich Village night club completed the manuscripts of "China Marches On" and "China Has Hands." Last year Tsiang faced deportation charges because of visa trouble, but a settlement was effected. And now he has been instructed to report at Ellis Island again for deportation—but the American Civil Liberties Union and the American Commission for the Protection of Foreign Born are intervening in his behalf . . . Tsiang came to America with a student's visa, which permitted him to remain here to pursue his studies. That was 14 years ago. He now has a scholarship with the New School of Social Research . . . And for 14 years H. T. Tsiang, author of three books, has been going to school here, preserving his status as a "student."

WEDDING: Marc Connelly sat with Floyd Odlum at the Barberry Room and there learned that Harold Ross and Ariane Allen, the actress, had eloped . . . "She's such a nice girl," said Connelly, "Do people still make election bets like that?"

GIFT: Bernie Hart, brother of Moss Hart, was the stage manager of "The Man Who Came to Dinner." He resigned last week to become stage manager of Moss' new show. On the night before he left, the members of the cast presented a pen-and-pencil set to Bernie—who acknowledged the gift by placing on the bulletin board backstage a memorandum saying: "Thanks" . . . A few hours later Edith Atwater told him: "You know, Bernie, that set is real gold." He examined the pen and pencil and was satisfied that the gold was not imitation. He therefore immediately altered his acknowledgment-memo to read: "Thanks a million."

ARRIVAL: Murray D. Van Wagoner, Governor-elect of Michigan, came to New York Monday night to see the sights . . . Last year Michigan's Gov. Dickinson also came to New York and attacked its night clubs and theaters, describing them as sinful places . . . Monday night Van Wagoner saw Ethel Merman in "Panama Hattie" and then went to the Copacabana. "It's marvelous," he decreed. "Just marvelous."

EXPENSE: Al Jolson visited a rumba cafe last week-end and was surprised to receive a $3 check for one drink plus cover charge . . . He summoned the waiter and asked: "What's the $3 item for?" . . . "A dollar for the drink," explained the waiter, "and two dollars for the ice" . . . "The only time ice is worth two bucks," said Jolson, paying, "is when Sonja Henie is on it."

RECOGNITION: The validity of the Greek cause now is being officially recognized by cafe society. Elsa Maxwell and Lady Mendl, after examining the facts thoroughly, have decided that Greece is absolutely in the right and that they must do something about it . . . They will, too. They're throwing a party for the benefit of Greece.

IDENTITY: Eddie Chodorov, coauthor of the new play about a Nobel Prize winner named John Elliott, who is married to a political columnist not named Dorothy Thompson, has been issuing denials that the play concerns Sinclair Lewis. "There is no similarity at all," Chodorov has protested in public statements . . . Friday night, in Sardi's Chodorov entered and sat down next to the table occupied by Sinclair Lewis . . . "Didn't you recognize that man." Chodorov was asked later . . . "I think I did," he confessed. "Wasn't that John Elliott?"

The Apex Theater, Opened Last Night, Sets New Standard for Suburban Houses

By Nelson B. Bell

A section of Washington not heretofore directly served by a theater of its own, last night was brought within the orbit of the Capital's theatrical activities by the opening of the Apex Theater, one of the most beautiful and most perfectly appointed residential motion picture houses in the District.

Occupying a 300-foot frontage on Massachusetts Avenue at Forty-eighth Street Northwest, including its flanking stores, the Apex presents an imposing front elevation, with its name high at the top of the facade in cutout letters and novel lighting suffusing the entire front of the theater with soft amber, green and blue tones. An unusually large and brilliantly lighted semicircular marquee illuminates the entrance with something rather more than daylight brightness. Wide doors at either side of the center box-office lead into a walnut-paneled lobby decorated with a hand-painted frieze depicting the development of Washington from the days of the first settlers to its present status as one of the world's great capitals. At the rear of the theater is a 3-acre, free parking lot, facing Yuma Street.

The spacious auditorium, comfortably seating 1,200 on one floor, is decorated in rich dubonnet, set off by deep blues and blending colors with the fleur-de-lis design carried out in both the heavy pile carpets and wall tapestries. Medallion ceiling lights provide more than the normal illumination without interference with the clarity of the picture being shown on the screen.

Leading from either end of the ample promenade at the rear of the orchestra are thickly carpeted stairways leading to the mezzanine level and the nursery and embassy rooms. These innovations are glass-fronted, soundproof compartments, accomodating 32 persons each, from which the screen entertainment can be perfectly seen and heard and smoking and conversation indulged in without molestation of the rest of the audience.

Three Sets of Curtains

A 15-foot stage back of the screen is equipped with three sets of automatically controlled plush, velvet and satin curtains. The walnut paneling is continued through the rear of the orchestra, with decorative crystal lighting fixtures to illuminate the lanes of movement to and from the entrance doors and exits.

For the women patrons a commodious, completely appointed and tastefully decorated powder room has been provided and for the men a smoking lounge furnished in deep red leather, with a cheerful fireplace at one end and lavatories adjoining.

The Apex Theater is owned and operated by Fred Kogod and Max Burka, with Charles H. Olive as managing director—the same interests that operate the Atlas Theater, in northeast Washington. It was designed by John Zink, noted Baltimore theater architect, builder of the former Rialto Theater and numerous others of Washington's foremost midcity and suburban picture houses.

Overflow Crowd at Dedication

"Down Argentine Way," Twentieth Century-Fox's sprightly Technicolor production, last night's inaugural attraction, was attended by a standing-room crowd that packed every inch of available space and included a large representation of every branch of the motion picture industry in Washington. Last evening's program was initiated by a tribute to the flag and proclamation of management policy. A buffet supper was served the invited guests in the large room at the rear of the mezzanine floor which later will become the executive offices of the K-B Amusement Co., with the veteran Mr. Olive in charge.

The Apex will be under the house management of Charles O. Clark, promoted from the Atlas, with Harold Gould, formerly in charge of advertising and publicity, succeeding to the management of the Northeast house.

Congratulations are due the Messrs. Kogod and Burka upon the successful consummation of so pretentious an enterprise and no less to the residents of a rapidly growing section of the National Capital upon the acquisition of so modern and so luxurious an amusement place in which to enjoy their pastiming.

Columbia

Whatever else may be said of "The Great Dictator"—the Charlie Chaplin dictator—and much has already been said, it must be granted that it is one of the year's more important films. After two weeks at the Palace, the comedy moves down F Street to the Columbia screen this morning for the same policy of continuous showings at advanced prices.

Hynkel, Dictator of Tomania, and Napaloni, Dictator of Bacteria, are the more wordly characters of this allegory. A Jewish barber and his lady love, Hannah, are the lowly figures. Chaplin is afforded a dual role as the Tomanian and the Hebrew.

As the barber, he is the Chaplin we all know, resorting generally to his helpless pantomime, but as the megalomaniac dictator, he is an unfamiliar, terrifying Chaplin, bringing a frightening character to cold reality with a skipping dance that culminates in a pet of disappointment when the globe of the world he has been playing with bursts into shreds. Surely this interpretive method lifts "The Great Dictator" above the ordinary film.

The Chaplin voice, too, is used to fine advantage as the shouting leader who splutters away in incompleted sentences and periods his remarks with a nervous cough that's a riot.

Miss Marian Trumbull To Wed Canadian Envoy

Wedding Plans Kept Secret, but It's Set For 'Before Christmas'

By Hope Ridings Miller.

THE WHOLE TOWN'S talking about the forthcoming marriage of Miss Marian Trumbull and the Canadian Minister, Loring Cheney Christie, whose engagement was announced yesterday by her mother, Mrs. Thomas Conway Trumbull.

HOPE RIDINGS MILLER

Secrecy veils plans for the wedding, but it is expected to take place shortly, "Some time before Christmas," according to the bride-elect. Rumors making the usual rounds over town, however, have it that the ceremony is scheduled for Saturday. Anyway, the Right Rev. Edward L. Buckey will officiate.

News that one of the more prominent of the town's social secretaries was to "marry her boss" had tea tables agog all yesterday afternoon. Miss Trumbull is widely known here, where she has been serving as social secretary at the Brazilian and Belgian Embassies and the Netherlands Legation, and also for several outstanding residential hostesses.

Bride Descendant Of Jonathan Trumbull

The bride-elect is a descendant of Jonathan Trumbull of Connecticut, but her family has been closely identified with Washington for many years. She attended Holton Arms School.

Mr. Christie, a 55-year-old widower, is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. Alexandre Christie, of Amherst, Nova Scotia. His son, Paul Christie, is a senior at the University of Toronto.

A graduate of Acadia University, Mr. Christie also has a degree from Harvard Law School. For a year he served as editor of the Harvard Law Review. Later, he was associated with the New York law firm of Winthrop & Stimson, and then he came to Washington to serve as an attorney in the United States Department of Justice from 1910 to 1913, and as an assistant to the Solicitor General during the last two years in that department.

Returned to Join Own Government in 1913

At one time during his first Washington sojourn he was resident of a household run by bachelors for bachelors and known as the House of Truth. Others who lived there were William Bullitt and Felix Frankfurter.

In 1913 Mr. Christie returned to his homeland to join the Canadian Department of External which corresponds to our State Department. During the last World War he served as secretary to Sir Robert Borden Canadian Prime Minister, and then as technical adviser to the Canadian delegation to the Peace Conference in Paris and to the Disarmament Conference in Washington.

Retiring from the diplomatic service in 1923, he then worked for a time with a London law firm and with the Ontario Hydroelectric Commission. In 1936, however, he returned to the Department of External Affairs, from which he was appointed Minister to the United States, succeeding the late Sir Herbert Marler.

Mr. Christie's wife from whom he had been separated for some time, died in Ottawa a year ago.

Hessler Studio.

The Marquise de Jaucourt (left above) posed with her daughter and son-in-law, Lieut. Charles-Henri de Levis-Mirepoix, after their marriage in St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church. Lieut. Levis-Mirepoix is assistant naval attache of the French Embassy and is also the Marquis de Levis-Mirepoix, son of the Duc and Duchess de Levis-Mirepoix, of France. His bride is the former Mlle. Laurette de Jaucourt

Daughter of Marquis and Marquise Met Lieut. Charles Henri de Levis-Mirepoix In Paris; Are Wed at St. Paul's

A wedding of international interest took place here yesterday when Mlle. Laurette de Jaucourt, daughter of the Marquis and Marquise de Jaucourt, became the bride of Lieut. Charles I. Henri de Levis-Mirepoix, son of the Duke and Duchess of Levis-Mirepoix, and Assistant Naval Attache of the French Embassy.

The ceremony climaxed a romance which was interrupted by the war and continued by mail between Buenos Aires and France. The couple met in Paris, but after two weeks the bridegroom was called to his military duties and Mlle. de Jaucourt went to Buenos Aires with her family. Their engagement was announced after an exchange of letters. The young lieutenant, who won the Croix de Guerre and the Legion of Honor in the war, was ordered to Washington several weeks ago.

The couple exchanged their vows at noon at St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church, the Rev. E. J. Fontaine officiating. The French Ambassador, Gaston Henri-Haye, and the entire embassy staff were present.

The bride wore a gown of white brocade made specially for her by Mainbocher, famed coutourier who has transferred his house from Paris to New York. With it she wore a long tulle veil and carried a spray of orange blossoms and a prayer book of the brocade.

Witnesses: No Attendants

In accordance with the French custom, the couple had witnesses, but no attendants, at their wedding. Signing the book for the bride were her aunt, the Countess Cuevas de Vera, of Buenos Aires, who is visiting the De Jaucourts here, and Mrs. James H. Hyde, for many years a resident of Paris and now living in New York. The bridegroom had as witnesses his cousin, Count Andre de Saint Phalle, and Capt. Pierre Benech, who is retiring shortly as Naval Attache of the French Embassy.

A luncheon at the De Jaucourt residence on Hillyer Place followed the ceremony. The marquise wore a gown of pale blue georgette embroidered in beads, with a dark blue velvet coat and a hat of that shade trimmed with pink feathers.

To Make Home On Hillyer Place

Later the couple left for a brief honeymoon. In the near future they will go to California, where Lieut. Levis-Mirepoix is ordered on a mission. They will make their home here at 2033 Hillyer Place.

The bride's parents have a home in the Rue de Varenne, Paris, and also at Biarritz. After spending some time in Buenois Aires they came to Washington early in the autumn and have taken a house here. The Duke de Louis-Mirepoix has made several trips to the United States. In 1938 he gave lectures here on literature and during that time stopped in Washington.

Among guests at the wedding from out-of-town were Princess Chachavadze and Senor and Senora Arturo Lopez.

Hassans Fete Diplomatic Set

The Ambassador from Turkey and Mme. Ertegun and the Australian Minister and Mrs. Richard G. Casey were the ranking guests at a dinner given on Tuesday evening by the Egyptian envoy and Mme. Hassan.

Others in the company were Counselor of the British Embassy and Mrs A. S. Childs, the Chief of Communications of the State Department and Mrs. Thomas Burke, Mrs. Norris Chipman, whose husband has just left to join the staff of our legation at Cairo; James Scott, Commercial Attache of the legation there; Joseph Jacobs, the counselor of that legation, and Mrs. Jacobs; the assistant chief of the division of Near Eastern Affairs of the State Department, and Mrs. Harry Villard; Mr. and Mrs. Rives Childs, Mrs. Dorothy Lee Ward, Mrs. A. M. Plugge, wife of a member of Parliament; J. H. de Rosen, Polish painter, and Andre Cattaui of the legation staff.

D. C. Officialdom, Society Attend Ship Launching

Washington officialdom and Capital society were represented at the Newport News shipyards yesterday when Miss Eugenia Merrill crashed the traditional bottle of champagne across the bow of the S. S. President Garfield.

Miss Merrill is the godchild of Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the United States Maritime Commission. At the brief ceremony in which she christened the ship, her sister, Miss Rosemary Merrill served as maid of honor.

Miss Janet Lerch To Wed D. W. Rush

Lieut. Col. Archer L. Lerch, of the Judge Advocate General's Department, and Mrs. Lerch announce the engagement of their daughter, Janet Maude, to Donald Wesley Rush, of Port Huron, Mich., and Washington, D. C.

The bride-elect is a senior at George Washington University and is a member of Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity. No date has been set for the wedding.

Miss Jane Waite, W. D. Jefferson Are Married Here

The wedding of Miss Mary Jane Waite, daughter of Mrs. Marjorie Thornett Waite, of 817 Crittenden Street, to William Douglas Jefferson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor S. Jefferson, took place last evening at 7 o'clock. The ceremony was performed at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, the Rev. Edgar B. Brossard officiating.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Bertram F. Thornett. She wore a blue velvet dinner dress made with a sweetheart neckline, bouffant skirt, and puffed sleeves. A blue velvet Juliet cap completed her costume and she carried a bouquet of Johanna Hill roses and baby's breath.

Her sister, Mrs. W. Harold Hardy, was matron of honor, dressed in apricot satin with a Juliet cap and carrying talisman roses and blue sweet peas. Mr. Hardy was best man and Granville Bageant ushered. A reception at Mrs. Waite's home followed the ceremony.

The bride is a member of Lambda Sigma Delta Sorority. Mr. Jefferson is a student at the School of Engineering, George Washington University, and is a member of the Acacia Fraternity.

Louise Coulter, Mr. Damewood Are Married

Vows Are Exchanged In Floral Setting At Pilgrim's Church

White chrysanthemums, palms and ferns adorned the Church of the Pilgrims last evening for the wedding of Miss Virginia Louise Coulter and Russell Edge Damewood. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Johnston Coulter. Mr. Damewood is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bertrand A. Damewood, sr., of Chattanooga. The Rev. Andrew Reid Bird officiated at the ceremony. Warren F. Johnson played the organ and Mrs. Florence Taylor sang.

Given in marriage by Henry C. Briscoe, the bride wore an ivory chiffon velvet gown. It had a deep decolletage and she wore a string of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom. Her ivory tulle veil was decked with orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley.

Miss Jane M. Coulter was maid of honor for her sister. She wore a gold satin gown with a tight fitting bodice and full skirt, and carried bronze chrysanthemums. Miss Nancy Link and Miss Phyllis Richards were bridesmaids, wearing chartreuse gowns and carrying rust chrysanthemums with ruffles of net. Miss Carolyn Koonce, flower girl, wore a white net gown. Robert Graves was best man and ushers were Thomas J. A. McCall, Leif O. Olsen, Morgan Percy and Haywood Davis.

A reception followed. When the couple left for a trip to New York the bride wore a blue angora wool gown and brown fur coat. They will make their home at 2019 I street northwest. Here from out of town for the wedding were the mother of the bridegroom, Mrs. Damewood, and the bride's aunt, Mrs. Albert S. Hunsiker, of Oklahoma City, Okla. Both Mr. and Mrs. Damewood attended George Washington University.

Va. Cotillion Invitations Out

Invitations are out for the Virginia Cotillion, to be held on Tuesday evening, December 10, at the Army and Navy Country Club. A distinguished group of Southern belles will lead the figures at this party, which has become a Virginia tradition.

The patrons include Mrs. W. Selden Washington, Mrs. Robert E. Lee, Mrs. George Bolling Lee, Mrs. James R. Herbert Boone, Mrs. Buchanan Merryman, Baroness von Below, Mrs. Pickney Whyte, Mrs. Smith Bowman, Mrs. Frank Butler, Mrs. Robert Graham, Mrs. Lawrence Martin, Mrs. Malcolm Matheson, Mrs. Aldrich Dudley, Mrs. John S. Barbour, Mrs. Fairfax Shield McCandlish, Mrs. Frank M. Dillard, Mrs. John B. Gordon and many others.

William E. Byrd is chairman of the floor committee. Serving as cochairmen are Robert J. McCandlish, jr., Charles R. Hoof, jr., Charles Wortham, Clement E. Conger, John C. Scott, Mangum Weeks, Talbot Sinclair, William Moncure and Maj. W. R. Richards.

British Tennis Ace to Attend Benefit Ball Here

Miss Betty Nuthall, the English tennis star, is among the distinguished Britishers who will come to Washington for the Thanksgiving Ball tomorrow at Hotel 2400. Proceeds will go to the British Save the Children Fund.

Other visitors here for the ball will be Sir Robert and Lady Mayer, formerly of London, now living in New York, and Nicolas Lemtugov, of Geneva. Huston Thompson and Miss Irene Boyle, social secretary of the embassy, will select the outstanding debutante of the season at the party.

The bachelor committee, of which Josef Blair is chairman, will entertain at dinner before the ball for the dance committee, of which Miss Mary Morris Wright is chairman.

Surprise Party For Mrs. Smith

A surprise party in honor of Mrs. Bruce Smith's birthday—which doesn't fall until next week—was held last night at the Mayflower Hotel, when Mr. Smith gathered in a few close friends for dinner and dancing afterward.

Covers were laid for 16. Among the out-of-towners who came to Washington especially for the party were Prof. and Mrs. Wesley Sturges, of New Haven, Conn., and Mr. and Mrs. Luke Stapleton, of New York. Mr. and Mrs. Smith will leave tomorrow for New Haven to visit the Sturgeses for the week-end.

Mrs. Hardy, Miss Taggart Entertain at Tea

Entertaining between 5 and 7 o'clock, Mrs. Charles R. Hardy and Miss Etta L. Taggart gave a tea yesterday afternoon. Honor guests were Mrs. Robert Pendleton, wife of Maj. Robert Pendleton, of Macon, Ga., and Mrs. Ulrich Gendron, wife of the assistant administrator of the Bonneville Dam at Portland, Oreg.

At the tea table were Mrs. Ralph Daughton, of Norfolk; Mrs. Ralph McCoy, of Baltimore; Mrs. Stuart Lyddane, Mrs. William Hessick, Mrs. James Wilson, Miss Anne W. Lyddane, Miss Mary C. Lyddane, Miss Madeleine King, Mrs. Ralph Hardy, Miss Olive King, Miss Amelia MacFadyen, Mrs. Arian Delancy and Mrs. William Evans.

About the Town

with Dudley Harmon

OF ALL the Washington women who toil away at the Red Cross, among the hardest working are those who translate letters for the library and the Inquiry and Information Service. Their job is not glamorous; they don't wear pretty veils, and there is less opportunity for chit-chat in translating than in bandage rolling.

DUDLEY HARMON

Several very prominent women are among those who volunteer their services for this work. In the month of October alone they translated 16,756 words and worked 267 hours. Their efforts center about the thousands of letters received by the Red Cross from foreign born Americans anxious to trace friends and relatives in the "old country" and the replies from Europe. So far the service has received 60,000 such requests and successfully delivered 26,000 replies.

IN CHARGE of translating activities for the service is Mrs. Philip B. Fleming, wife of the Wages and Hours Administrator. She devotes half of every day to this work. Besides supervising her staff, she transcribes letters in French and German.

Mrs. J. L. Houghteling translates messages from the French. Count Charles van der Straten-Ponthoz, son of the Belgian Ambassador, works on those in French and Spanish. Young Charles, who was wounded during the invasion of his country, recently published a series of articles describing his experiences. The money he receives will go to Belgian relief.

LETTERS WRITTEN in Spanish are handed over to Mrs. Philip Bonsal and Mrs. James E. Brown, jr. Mrs. Bonsal learned her Spanish in Havana when her husband was stationed at our embassy.

Two women who worked in France through the worst of the war are among the French specialists. They are Mrs. F. Burrall Hoffman and Miss Carolyn Nash, both of whom drove ambulances for the American Hospital at Neuilly. Mrs. Hoffman is also expert at German and Italian. Another good linguist is Mrs. Randolph Miner, who translates from Spanish, Italian and French.

Since practically nobody knows Dutch or Norwegian except citizens of those countries, the services of women from the Norwegian and Netherlands legations are particularly appreciated. Baroness van Boetzelaer and Mme. van Houten from the Netherlands and Mmes. Galbe, Bryn and Olaf, of Norway, work hard at their jobs.

WHEN THEY are seen chatting gaily at local tea parties, these women have often just come from laboring over such pathetic messages as these:

"No word from you. We are awaiting affadavit. We are fine. Get us out of here the quicker the better."

"Father is ill. All well. If living will tell all later."

"We are all well as a fish" (a Dutch expression for 'fit as a fiddle').

"Pa died May 10 after sickness. Arie's house hit, sister killed, Jeannette also, Nelly wounded. Rughto and Arie have nothing."

"Carl struck by a bullet May 10 and died. Otherwise all well. Have you received our letters? Please write."

All the messages which the Inquiry Service transmits from Europe are limited to 25 words.

Meyer-Bradley Wedding Set For Dec. 27

Son of Publisher To Marry Boston Girl at Cambridge

Boston, Mass., Nov. 20.—Miss Mary Adelaide Bradley, daughter of Mrs. Charles Frederick Bradley, of Mount Vernon Street has chosen Friday, December 27, for her marriage to Eugene Meyer 3d, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Meyer, of Washington, and Mount Kisco, N. Y. The wedding will take place in Christ Church, Cambridge.

The Rev. C. Leslie Glenn will return from Washington to officiate at the afternoon ceremony for members of the two families and a few intimate friends. A small reception will follow at the home of the bride's mother.

Mrs. Charles A. Janeway (formerly Elizabeth Bradley), of Weston, will be her sister's matron of honor. The two bridesmaids will be Miss Alice W. Shurcliff, and Miss Ruth Meyer, sister of the bridegroom-to-be.

The best man will be William E. Ward of Greenwich, Conn., and Elliot Jaques and Charles R. Park, of Baltimore, will be ushers. The couple will live in Baltimore.

The bride-to-be was graduated from the Winsor School, Vassar College, with the class of 1937, and is studying bacteriology at the Johns Hopkins School of Hygiene and Public Health. Mr. Meyer, whose father is publisher of The Washington Post, prepared at the Taft School for Yale where he was graduated in 1937. He is a member of the class of 1941 at the Johns Hopkins School of Medicine

A Woman's Thanksgiving

This day I am thankful:

That, as I stretch luxuriously in my bed on my holiday awakening, I can look forward to a day that is wholly mine—to spend as I wish in all the small concerns of personal and family life—and not in any schedule of duties prescribed by any grim governmental taskmaster

That I can celebrate the day with my family about me—and none will be absent in battle lines, in labor or concentration camps, or in some terrible place of uncertainty.

That I may read the newspapers knowing that what I read is not distorted or censored, but is a sincere and honest attempt to present an accurate account of what is happening throughout the world.

That I may happily dress myself in my new, or at least, my "Sunday clothes," comb out my new "wave-set," don my bracelets and my gadgets and, gazing in the mirror, know the warm thrill that comes to every woman in looking her best—and that I do not have to put on a drab uniform of brown velveteen and blue serge.

That in the fresh bracing November morning I may go to Thanksgiving worship in the church of my choice—freely, openly and joyously—and that I may have the assurance that no temple of God throughout the land is standing with closed doors through the order of any self-constituted "omniscient" ruler.

That as I walk along the streets I do not have to encounter any poor hunted creatures of "outlawed" race of religion who go slinking along with terror in their eyes.

That as noon approaches and the fragrance of roasting meat and baking pastry drifts from my kitchen, I know (however modest my menu) that my table will be laden with what would be a Babylonian feast to the food-rationed and hungry women and children of Europe.

That the good cheer and laughter of relatives and friends may echo about my table, and that every guest may speak freely, sincerely and unrestrainedly on all topics whatsoever, and that there will be no hushed whisperings, no sudden shifts of conversation, no apprehensive glances toward the door, no shrewd caution, no tension, nor fear.

That I, a woman, may participate in all the talk of the day, freely as an individual, speaking all that I know or believe; and that I will not be relegated to the sidelines to talk only with subordinated members of my sex about "kuche and kinder."

That I may walk or drive in the peaceful holiday-hushed, afternoon, under a quiet and safe sky; and that the sharp tang of the November wind or the rattling of the dead oak leaves will not bring any menacing thoughts of winter's cold and privation, but only the stirring challenge of a new season and happy anticipations of a warm fireside and of Christmas.

That in the restful sanctuary of my room, I may take from my book shelves any volume I wish and commune in peace with any great mind of the past or present without feeling that some dark, disapproving shadow may be lurking behind my shoulder.

That I enjoy the privilege of living in a democracy where such a day of joy and freedom as this is possible.

RUBIES and DIAMONDS

An effective unity of these two lovely gems is charmingly expressed by this dainty gold cluster ring, encrushed with cut diamonds and pale rubies . . . so pale, so exquisitely feminine.

The Ruby is the emblem of true love, bringing health, wealth, happiness and wisdom to the weare..

Margaret Cuthbert Tells How She Improved Children's Radio Programs

WHEN Margaret Cuthbert, of the National Broadcasting Co.'s women's division, was given the supervision of children's programs three years ago, she first assembled all the warring factions—radio's brass hats, the advertising agencies, script writers, sponsors and mothers (as represented by the Federaiton of Women's Clubs). You can imagine the result. The women said that blood-and-thunder serials gave children nightmares; the sponsors claimed the kids lapped it up.

Miss Cuthbert

But the discussion brought about a new mutual understanding. "The agencies made it clear that they had to bring back the bacon—or else," said Miss Cuthbert, who spoke here recently at a meeting of the Home Economics Women in Business and the Dietetics Association. "They also pointed out that the women ignored the good programs and talked only of the bad ones. A cooperative study followed, and we seldom get complaints now. One or two programs folded up because of the ill-will they created; several others have been improved."

As an example of a good children's program, Miss Cuthbert cites "Jack Armstrong, the ALL-AMERican BOY," which combines science and adventure . . . Do I like the programs? I love them. And they give the children an emotional outlet; otherwise they'd probably take it out on their mothers' shins."

Dr. Clarence A. Dykstra, head of the Selective Service, claims that at a Women's National Democratic Club luncheon he sat opposite a woman who told him, "My brother won so much betting on Roosevelt that he's become a Willkie man."

A woman who had hired a new cook was surprised when the girl asked if she could have a clothes chest in her room. "I think it would be better than the closet for my mink coat," she explained. When the mistress gasped, the girl hastened to explain that she'd bought the coat with a race track windfall. "And you can borrow it whenever you like," she added.

A lad in the shipping room of a local department store announced to his superior that he planned to quit. She surveyed the piles of merchandise still to be boxed and sent out, and tried to persuade him to stay through the holiday season. "Oh, no," he said. "I've figured out that the draft will get me about January 1. I should work through the Christmas rush and THEN join the Army?"

Athletic Christmas Gifts Will Help Father Keep His Figure

By Ida Jean Kain

THERE is no doubt about it. Christmas is a great day—for the kids and Santa Claus. But the thing that takes the merry out of Christmas for mother is the shopping, and for father, the bills.

There are ways to sidestep both. One is to get the shopping done beforehand. Now, wait a minute! In case you think I'm bringing up this whole subject unnecessarily early, remember that hectic week last year when you were rushing around, working against time and the crowds and thinking that, as far as you were concerned, Santa Claus could stay at the North Pole?

And it would certainly help to get around father with the bills to give him something he will really go for. He is probably counting on the perennial ties and socks, but this year, just for fun, add to the list something he doesn't need. What does he do after looking over his loot? Well, he turns to junior's punching bag—or spends half the day showing sonny how to make the train go around the track. So why not playthings for father?

If he bowls, you might give him his own special bowling kit. They tell me it is now quite the thing to carry your own ball when you go bowling! Or he might get more fun out of a set for the home. There is a sponge rubber set which can be set in the living room or hall, and a wooden set called "lease breakers" guaranteed to put two lumps of plaster in the afterdinner coffee in the apartment below!

Anyone lucky enough to have a rumpus room can buy all kinds of playthings for it: Rubber-covered horseshoes for a little indoor barnyard golf; rope quoits, a table tennis set, shuffleboard, and any number of golf practice games. Of course, you could give this type of present to your friends and go over to their house and enjoy it.

Another present that's fun to give is a set of rumba, congo or tango instruction records—they're as good as six lessons from Madame La Zonga!

To get father out in the fresh air, there's the Australian boomerang, which was first adapted as a toy for the kids—but the kids don't seem to get much chance at it.

Games are an excellent way for the tired business man to get his much needed exercise, but there are some real exercise gadgets, too. The gym bar, which can be adjusted in the doorway, now comes with rings he can swing on and feel like a real athlete. Then there's the "tiger stretch" that is supposed to straighten one out—and slim down the waist.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Disturbed by Best Friend's Wild Behavior Since Being Jilted, Girl, 17, Asks How to Help Her

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: This is the problem of (let's call them) Lucy and Tom. Lucy is past 17 and my best girl friend. Tom is 21. They kept steady company for nearly two years, and frequently talked of getting married when Tom had graduated from medical school. Then, a few months ago, Tom told Lucy that he had ceased to love her, although there was no other girl he cared for.

Since their break-up, Lucy has been going out with just any boy who wants to show her a good time;—trying to keep her chin up, because she still cares for Tom and is too proud to admit it. Some of these boys are of the wastrel type, but Lucy pretends to find them amusing. I would like to caution her to be more careful about her associates and conduct, but, close as we have been, we have never at any time expressed criticism of each other.

My mother has frequently been annoyed by my close association with Lucy, because she thinks Lucy is allowed too many privileges by her parents. Lucy and her mother never have any disagreements, because her mother says she trusts Lucy and wants her confidence, so she lets her do as she pleases. My mother and I frequently disagree, as mother insists upon what she calls "reasonable hours," etc. I think mother should trust my judgment more.

Both Lucy and I are unable to account for Tom's change of heart. I asked my mother what she thought the trouble could be, and these are almost her exact words: "Tom was a grand influence on Lucy's life, and I am sorry it has ended this way, but I had expected it would. Lucy is noisy—you can always hear her above all the crowd. She is frivolous. And you know the unbecoming language she uses all to frequently.

"On several occasions I have unavoidably overheard smutty stories Lucy has told Tom in the presence of other boys. And as Tom is growing older and more studious, he doesn't find the 'jitter-bug' type of girl as fascinating as he did when he was younger. If Lucy would stop using swear words, act a little more dignified, and be more careful about the stories she tells, it is possible that Tom would become interested in her again."

Do you think that mother is right? I told mother that I wanted to bring Tom and Lucy together again, but that I would never have the courage to tell Lucy what mother told me about her shortcomings. Mother insists that I must not interfere; that I must let Lucy work out her own problems. But I disagree, because I feel it is my duty as a friend to do all I can to bring about a reconciliation—knowing, is I do, how much Lucy cares for Tom; and also, that the crowd she is now running around with is bad for her.

What do you think? Lucy is such a grand girl and has been such a loyal friend to me on so many occasions. Everyone I know loves her (except Tom), and all of us are hoping that something can be done to bring them back together again. DORIS.

Mother's Counsel Can't Be Beat

DEAR DORIS: It is Lucy's misfortune that her mother doesn't give her the same wise, watchful, authoritative guidance that your mother gives you. Your mother's management of you may be likened to a good gardener's faithful tending of some favorite flower. She weeds and prunes and trains; cultivates and nourishes; stands guard against the possible appearance of destructive influences—all for the purpose of bringing the blossom into full, lovely, healthy, final form.

Lucy's mother, on the other hand, just lets her grow, and it is almost inevitable that she would grow wild; that her finer potentialities would never emerge in their true colors; that she would be coarsened and blighted by her lone-handed struggle against elements which she doesn't understand and can't cope with unaided. I suppose her personality, by now, is something of a weed patch—overrun with false notions, wrong habits, etc.

I believe your mother's explanation of Lucy's "break-up" with Tom hits the nail on the head. I believe if Lucy's mother had the courage, or the interest, to assume her supervisory obligations toward her daughter—the child would not now be heartbroken, nor running amuck to conceal her heartbreak.

I also salute the strong common sense inherent in your mother's belief that one should mind one's own business; that one's friends should be let alone to work out their problems in their own way—unless, of course, they happen to solicit one's advice and assistance. Yet, I do appreciate the headlong loyalty, the selfless sincerity, of your desire to get Lucy back on the right track and happy again—if it is within your power to do that for her.

Yours is the idealistic attitude; your mother's is the realist's philosophy. Observation (and perhaps early experience) has taught her that one's friends are seldom grateful for even the best-meant advice; that the more they may seem to need it, in a given instance, the more hotly they resent it; and that so-called "constructive criticism," when unasked, tends to aggravate, rather than to moderate, their distressing behavior.

However, I am not saying that you should let expedient considerations keep you from doing what you can to show Lucy the light. I am merely pointing out that, in trying to help her, you may write "finish" to your cherished friendship with her—without having achieved your generous purpose. Yet, if your friendship for her is so great that you are willing to risk losing it, in an effort to open her eyes to her mistakes—why, go ahead and give her the benefit of your solicitous opinions.

Youngsters of Lucy's age do sometimes take a wrong turn, for one reason or another; do fall in with a "wrong crowd," and make mistakes which they spend a lifetime repenting and trying to undo. Thus, if you can save Lucy from such a fate, you will have done her an inestimable service; and friendship may not be too much to pay for the effort. Yet, in making her acquainted with your mother's version of the underlying reasons for her "break-up" with Tom, I think you should keep your mother's name out of the discussion. Just state your opinions firmly, without citing additional authority.

Frankly, I think Lucy has permanently lost Tom's love. But she should turn the reversal to profit, rather than make it the pretace to worse and more costly behavior in future. M. H.

Charm Is a 'Composite,' Says Dancer

Alicia Markova Advises Training In Many Graces

By Genevieve Reynolds

PUT IN a pinch of intelligence; add a dash of gracefulness; stir in physical fitness; mix well with a beautiful soul—and you'll get a fascinating woman. At least this is the receipe for charm given to me yesterday by petite Alicia Markova, prima ballerina of the Ballet Russe of Monte Carlo, which appeared at Constitution Hall last night.

"Too many women depend too strongly upon one quality," said featherfooted Markova. "That is a mistake, for charm is a composite of many ingredients. For example, if a woman has a beautiful body, often she does not bother to cultivate her mind or think deeply. And frequently a great soul is never seen, because no man looks beyond an ungainly, badly proportioned body."

Stamina Essential

"Eyes that register nothing but vain reflections of an empty soul cast no spell," said the dancer. But take a woman who can think of fairies, wooded hills, a song or dance—well, there's mystery and depth irrespective of color or size."

Stamina and perseverance are the two qualities that every woman needs to develop a graceful, beautiful body, according to Markova. She herself overcame great physical handicaps through these very traits.

When she was a child she had weak legs, a fragile physique and, of all things—knock knees. 'When I was 7 years old," Markova laughed, "I was thin, weak, and—don't poke fun—terribly knock-kneed. The doctors gave me up for a perpetual invalid. But my mother knew better. She took me to dancing school and asked the teachers to make me strong and to straighten my legs. After two or three years of exercising and dancing I became strong and healthy. My legs and knees became straighter."

ALICIA MARKOVA

Knees Worried Her

"The knock knees worried me most of all," explained the dancer. (You would now never guess that her legs and knees were ever anything but perfect.) And every time I see a woman now with knock knees I think she must be suffering, and I want to dash up and cry 'Exercise, exercise!'"

Here is her own special formula for correcting knock knees. She believes that it will help any woman who will follow it faithfully.

Stand with the heels together. The toes should be extended so that the feet are in nearly a straight line. Then lower the body until a squatting position is reached. Then rise until you are on your toes.

A second exercise starts with a position in which the toes are straightened out as in the first. But one foot is placed in front of the other. This is dimcult. With the knees slightly bent, jump into the air, at the same time reversing the position of the feet so that the one which has been in back now is in front.

The third exercise starts with the same foot position as the first. Stretch the arms high into the air and, with the feet holding the same position, bend over and touch the floor with the hands.

Care of Light Bulbs

To get the best results from electric light bulbs: Dust carefully and occasionally give them a light bath with a damp cloth. Remove bulbs from sockets and do not let any moisture get any place but on the glass. Keep damp cloth away from sockets and make sure that bulbs are perfectly dry before replacing them.

Women Urged Not to Force Careers They Like on Sons

Chevy Chase Club Told by Dr. Clark That Aptitudes Should Govern Choice Of Vocation and Not Parents' Desires

Son John should not have to study medicine just because his parents have always wanted him to be a doctor, Dr. Weston R. Clark, assistant professor of psychology of the University of Maryland, told members of the Woman's Club of Chevy Chase yesterday. Dr. Clark, who is also president of the Personnel and Guidance Association of the District, shared the program with Dr. L. J. Cantrel, assistant superintendent of schools for the District, in charge of vocational education.

Parents should watch their children's development and natural inclinations and abilities, Dr. Clark advised and offer guidance in line with these, rather than attempting to force young people into life work for which they are not fitted.

Mr. Cantrell dealt with the vocational aptitudes which can be seen in children of the elementary and secondary schools and explained how educators are endeavoring to develop these, at the same time the children are learning the "three R's."

The men's Glee Club of the University of Maryland under the direction of Harland Randall provided the music for the meeting, singing several groups.

Mrs. Frederick M. Kerby, the president, presided and the luncheon at which nearly 500 members were served, was in charge of Mrs. Frederic O. Coe. There was a Thanksgiving donation of canned goods and $50 in money for the Montgomery County Hospital.

Mrs. Kerby announced the twentieth anniversary party of the music section to be held on Monday, honoring the section's founder, Mrs. Theodore W. Norcross. Mrs. Norcross is in charge of a musical skit, to be presented as the entertainment. Mrs. Hugh Loftus Murrell is now chairman of the section and Louis Potter, professional director of the chorus.

Colonists' Daughters Schedule Card Benefit

Md. Agencies to Discuss Food's Part in Defense

State Nutrition Conference to Open Tomorrow at University of Maryland; Will Assemble Data to Guide Counties

B Jessie Ash Arndt
The Post Club Editor.

Dean Marie Mount, of the College of Home Economics at the University of Maryland, has called a State nutrition conference to be held at the university tomorrow to launch one of the State's projects in connection with the national defense program. It will be conducted in the Administration Building with a buffet luncheon at noon and a dinner at night in the Home Economics Building.

Representatives from all agencies in the State having any nutrition programs will be present as will those of organizations through which information may be disseminated and the program carried out.

The speakers will be Dr. Louise Stanley, of the Bureau of Home Economics of the Department of Agriculture; M. L. Wilson, in charge of nutrition under Dr. Harriet Elliot of the Defense Commission, who will explain how the nutrition project can be tied into the defense program and Dr. E. V. McCollum, of Johns Hopkins University, nutrition authority, who will outline what is desirable in a nutrition program as related to health and national defense.

Panel Will Discuss Part Counties Play

There will follow a panel discussion of "What the County Could Do With a Nutrition Program," led by Mrs. Minier Hostetler, president of the Montgomery County League of Women Voters. Participants in the discussion will be persons acquainted with their local communities and with the typical health and food projects being carried on in the county. The importance of health in total defense and the part of nutrition in the health program will be emphasized.

On the panel will be Dr. Edwin C. Broome, superintendent of schools in Montgomery County; Dr. V. L. Ellicott, county health officer; Mrs. B. Peyton Whalen, president of the County Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Edwin Fry, president of the woman's division of the Maryland Farm Bureau; Mrs. Edith Turner, home demonstration agent of Montgomery County; Mrs. Ruby, of the Parent-Teacher Congress, and Mrs. Vestus Wilcox, of the Social Service League.

Mrs. Hostetler expects the point to be brought out that undernourishment is found in the families of the higher income brackets as well as among those without income whose nutrition problem is that of the community. There is a necessity for educating mothers in what constitutes proper nutrition for both the children and adult members of their families, she said, as well as to see that proper diet is provided for persons on relief.

Suggestions Will Be Drawn for State

The discussion is designed to bring out means of implementing a nutrition program throughout the State, with each community organized and both women's and men's groups cooperating. A summary will be made by Dean Mount at the dinner following the afternoon meeting, and recommendations prepared to be sent to other counties in the State.

Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, the woman member of the Maryland Council of Defense, is expected to be present.

The nutrition project will be one of Maryland's contributions to the total defense plan. Other specific problems are being worked out by authorities in various other fields in the different States.

League Praised For Work on Bill

Following passage by Congress of the Ramspeck civil service extension bill without the Nichols quota amendment, Mrs. Harris T. Baldwin, Washington, first vice-president of the National League of Women Voters, yesterday congratulated League members throughout the nation "for clarifying the need for an undiluted merit measure" by means of their intensive three-week opinion-making drive against the quota provision.

"A combination of merit and patronage does not make for good administration. This possible extension of the merit system to nearly 200,000 additional federal positions clears the way for a dynamic public personnel program which will assure trained and qualified persons for government jobs and genuine opportunity for a career service," Mrs. Bladwin stated.

Benefit Dance

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Copeland Jones will open their home at 4801 Indian Lane for a dance on Saturday night for the benefit of Opportunity House.

Music Teachers To Attend Tea

A tea will be given at Kenmore, Fredericksburg, Va., tomorrow afternoon at 4:45 for teachers attending the music teachers convention. It will be in honor of Mrs. Harris R. Childs, of New York City, Kenmore regent for New York, who will speak on music.

Mrs. Morgan Combs, wife of the president of Mary Washington College, will preside at the tea table. Those assisting will be Mrs. Marshall King, wife of the mayor; Mrs. Levin Houston, wife of the president of the Music Teacher's Association; Mrs. H. O. Swanson, president of the Garden Club, and Mrs. C. O'Conor Goolrick, vice president of the Kenmore Association.

Mrs. A. E. Craver, Mrs. Stuart Tansill, Mrs. A. W. Embrey, jr., and Mrs. Mennis Gibson will be in charge of the tea.

Daniels to Give Buffet Supper

Mrs. Ernest Humphrey Daniel, president of the District Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mr. Daniel will entertain tomorrow night at a buffet supper at their home, Broad Branch and Grant Roads, in honor of the guest stars who will be present at the Red Cross benefit ball at the Mayflower Hotel. The ball is being sponsored tomorrow by the coordinating committee of the federation, headed by Mrs. John T. Lucker and Mrs. LeVerne Beales.

The honor guests of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel will be Forrest Tucker, who appears in the current motion picture, "The Westerner;" his wife, Sandrea Jolley, of the Earl Carroll Club in Hollywood; Ethel Fistere and members of her dance team, her husband, Charles M. Fistere; Arch McDonald, who will be master of ceremonies at the ball; Mrs. McDonald; Turk Edwards, of the Redskins, and Mrs. Edwards.

A.A.U.W. Players To Give Skit by Malvina Lindsay

The players of the American Association of University Women will present a group of Malvina Lindsay skits, Monday night at the clubhouse, 1634 I street at 7:45 with Miss Lindsay, author of "The Gentler Sex" and woman's page editor of The Post as honor guest.

Ten young women who are members of the Washington Branch of the A. A. U. W. will appear in "The Club Tea." They are E. Gwendolyn Taylor, Alta E. Gamnetz, Bertha Sellards, Helen Dudenbostel, Crystal Hall, Margaret Graham, Margaret Cook, Fredia Stephan, Jeanette Orange and Dr. Anna Marie Ketcham.

In the skit, "Homecoming," will be Richard Hearn Young, son of Mrs. F. Norman Hearn, Mrs. Noble Boaz, Mrs. Myron S. Anderson, Mary Eleanor Grindell, and Mrs. Hearn.

The program is under the direction of the leader of The Players, Mrs. Edwin M. Brown.

Miss Lindsay will talk briefly on the writing of the skits. Mrs. Brown will conclude the program with "Thanksgiving Table Talk," a recent Gentler Sex column by Miss Lindsay.

Kolker Progressive Society to Give Ball

The Kolker Progressive Society of Washington will hold its seventh annual ball tonight at 8 o'clock at the Beth Sholm Auditorium, Eighth and Shepherd Streets Northwest. The funds from the ball will be used for the relief of those in distress across the seas and also to care for families in need of Passover Matzah.

Jacob Liss is chairman of the committee on arrangements, assisted by Mrs. Mollie Paregol and Mrs. Clara Perlmutter.

D. C. Branch of Association for Preservation Of Virginia Antiquities to Lunch Saturday

THE WASHINGTON BRANCH of the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities will have its annual get-together luncheon Saturday at the Willard Hotel at 1 o'clock, with Mrs. Granville Gray Valentine, first vice president of the mother association in Richmond, as honor guest and speaker. "Jamestown" will be her subject.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric Underwood, of London, also will be guests. Mr. Underwood, who is prominently connected with the Antiquities Society of England, has been in this country for the last year. Mrs. Everard Todd, the directress, will preside.

Among the luncheon guests will be the Rev. Dr. Freeland Peter, former chancellor of the Washington Cathedral, who is chaplain of the association; Mrs. Peter, Mr. and Mrs. Wade H. Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. Royal D. Mead, Mrs. Charles Marburg, Mrs. Adolphus Bennett, Mrs. Robert Kenneay, Miss Angie Armat, Mrs. Nellie Waddell Brenizer, Mrs. Gilham Morrow, Mrs. J. Harvey Wattles, Mrs. Lewis Wise Jennings, Miss Coulson, Mrs. Robert E. Lee, jr., Mrs. Howard Hodgkins, Miss Anne Seymour Ames, Mrs. John Ingalls Palmer, Mrs. Horace Towner, Mrs. Dabney Maury, Mrs. W. L. Goodwyn, jr., Mrs. Walter T. Campbell.

Arrangements are in charge of Mrs. Joseph Stiles Wall, Mrs. Jesse Lee Webb, Miss Eleanor Fitts, Mrs. John F. Little and Mrs. Chauncey Williams.

HONOR AUTHOR—Mrs. Ernest Humphrey Daniel, president of the District Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Frederick Lyman Pratt, have issued invitations to a tea from 3 to 6 Sunday at Mrs. Pratt's home, 7324 Piney Branch Road, Takoma Park, Md., in honor of Mrs. Grace Kiess Swiggett on her publication of "Welcome Dawn."

The book, just published by the Emory University Press of Atlanta, is a collection of about 100 of her poems which have appeared in Poetry magazines and anthologies in recent years. The foreword is by Lucia Trent and Ralph Cheyney, teachers of poetry writing at the University of California.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS—The Aid Association for the Blind has announced the annual sale of articles made by the blind, now in progress at the Henry and Annie Hurt Home for the Blind, 3050 R Street.

There are always soft toy animals for little children, purses, belts, handbags both woven and of leather, ties and other attractive articles which can be made by the blind with a little help on the finishing touches from sighted persons. Orders may also be given there for all types of chair caning and for rugs which will be made to order.

PLAY GOES OVER—Brereton Sturdevant, daughter of Mrs. Charles Lyon Sturdevant, is breathing easier this time this week than she did this time last. The reason is that the play she wrote and directed at Wellesley—the junior show given last Friday night—was a successful production.

Brereton was graduated from Holton Arms three years ago, magna cum laude, and is majoring in chemistry at Wellesley with play directing on the side.

Kensington School Program Slated

The drama and music sections of the Woman's Community Club of Kensington will present an entertainment tomorrow night at 8, at the Kensington Elementary School. Mrs. George Snyder is chairman for the dramatic and Mrs. Thomas Tremearne, for the music group.

The entertainment will be for the benefit of a contribution to the National Symphony Association and to the Annie M. Wilson Loan Fund for art students, maintained by the Montgomery County Federation of Women's Clubs.

The program includes two comedies by the members of the drama branch and musical presentations by Charles Gaisberg, violinist, with Mrs. John Moran and Mrs. Thomas Tremearne at the piano; Mrs. V. V. Holcomb, soprano; C. A. Buchanan, accordionist; Leo Tooley, tenor, and two numbers by the club chorus of 25 voices. Arthur Applegate will act as master of ceremonies.

British War Relief Society to Dance

A dance for the benefit of British War Relief Society will be sponsored Saturday night by the Daughters of Scotia Committee of the Washington Chapter of the society in the ballroom of the Willard Hotel. Mrs. James MacFarlane is chairman of the committee.

House Will Meet Outside Chamber

Repairs to Roof Forces Plans to Switch Locale

By James D. Secrest
Post Staff Writer

For the first time since the burning of the Capitol in 1814 the House of Representatives will hold sessions outside its chamber, starting probably next week, if present plans of House leaders materialize.

Majority Leader McCormack said last night that he will introduce tomorrow a resolution authorizing the House to meet either in the new or old House Office Building because of the dangerous condition of the roof above the chamber.

The removal of the House will enable David Lynn, Capitol architect, to erect temporary trusses within the House and so remove the hazard until the 86-year-old iron super-structure can be replaced by steel.

Lynn said that it was uncertain as to whether the House will meet in the large caucus room in the old House Office Building or in the more modern Ways and Means Committee room in the new building.

The latter probably will be used, if Chairman Doughton consents, because of its superior conveniences, more convenient entrances and lobbies, and more easily adaptable equipment. It could be used with little alteration, Lynn said, whereas the caucus room would require some over-hauling.

McCormack's decision followed a personal inspection of the attic above the heavy glass ceiling in the House chamber and consultations with Lynn and House leaders. Minority Leader Martin, he said, was agreeable to the removal.

"I was amazed at what I saw," McCormack said. "I would not want to take the responsibility for what might happen if the House sat under that roof another winter."

Lynn had about given up hope of making any of the authorized repairs, for which Congress appropriated $500,000 last summer, because of the decision of the House on Tuesday not to adjourn. He had been forced to postpone the work from time to time while warning members that the roof constituted a hazard.

The 120-ton ceiling is hung from heavy cast iron framework. Last year a joint committee of the Senate and House made an investigation and recommended the replacement with steel because of findings of a half-dozen engineers.

There was some question as to whether the Senate will follow the lead of the House and meet either in the old Supreme Court chamber of the Capitol or in the Senate Office Building while its 90-ton roof is given temporary supports.

Because the Senate was not in session yesterday, Lynn was not able to take up the matter with Senate leaders.

Policeman Shot Twice in 2 Years While Hunting

Special Dispatch to The Post

Frederick, Md., Nov. 20.—For the second time in two years Austin C. Powell, a member of the Frederick police force, fell before a hunter's gun and was recovering at the Frederick City Hospital after removal of approximately 25 shot from his legs and abdomen.

The shot was inflicted yesterday near Dickerson, Montgomery County, from the gun of Edward L. Favorite, this city, who was hunting with Powell. Powell was injured two years ago when another hunting companion, Albert Stockman, Frederick, mistook him for a rabbit. Powell's father, James C. Powell, was shot several years ago in a hunting mishap.

Capital Girls Help At Ship Launching

Newport News, Va., Nov. 20 (AP).—Miss Eugenia Merrill, of Washington, sponsored the liner S. S. President Garfield at the launching ceremonies today at the plant of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co.

Miss Rosemary Merrill, younger sister of the sponsor, was maid of honor for the ceremonies. The sponsor, still in her late 'teens, and her sister planned to return to Washington this afternoon. They were accompanied here by their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Merrill.

Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the United States Maritime Commission, was among the officials here for the launching.

The President Garfield is the fourth C-3 design vessel launched here for the American Presidents Lines. Three other vessels of the same design are now under construction.

Jobless Tax Ruled Applicable to Insurance Agent

Richmond, Va., Nov. 20 (AP).—Judge John L. Ingram upheld in Richmond Hustings Court today a decision of the State Unemployment Compensation Commission classing an industrial insurance agent as an "employe" in the meaning of the act and decreeing that the company must pay a U. C. C. tax on wages of any such agent.

The case was styled Life and Casualty Insurance Co., of Tennessee vs. Charles A. Ballowe and the U. C. C. It was indicated the case would be carried to the State Supreme Court of Appeals, and Judge Ingram suspended for 90 days an order that taxes on Ballow's salary for 1937, 1938 and 1939 be paid.

Telephone Workers End 2-Week Strike

Charlottesville, Nov. 20 (AP).—Employes of the Virginia Telephone & Telegraph Co. today ended their two-week strike.

The 22 striking linemen went back to work this morning at the same wage and hour schedule, while a labor union representative and a Federal conciliator took up with company officials the grievances of the strikers.

Towers Seeks To Retire as Tax Collector

Reveals Request After Shortage Disclosure; D. C. Employe 47 Years

Tax Collector Chatham M. Towers, 70, yesterday said he had asked to be retired from his post after 47 years of service with the municipal government. Date of retirement would be December 31, according to the application.

He has been collector for 20 years.

On Tuesday a special board of inquiry made public results of an investigation of the collector's branch at the Department of Vehicles and Traffic. This report, revealed a shortage of $2,025.80 and attributed it to an inadequate system of collection used at the office.

To Recover on Bonds

Miss Julia Vass and Merk C. Dunn, cashier and assistant cashier at the vehicles department, were suspended October 14 when the shortage was officially reported. Both were exonerated by the board of inquiry. Miss Vass, however, is dead, having taken poison soon after her suspension.

Richmond B. Keech, corporation counsel, said yesterday he would recover the shortage either from the bonding company, which bonded Miss Vass to Towers, or from the $100,000 bond Towers posted with the District as tax collector.

The Commissioners tomorrow are expected to appoint Porter G. Lumpkins, chief clerk of the highway department, to succeed Towers. Lumpkins, a member of the three-man board which conducted the investigation of the shortages, had been mentioned as successor to Towers some time ago, when it became known the collector desired to leave the District service.

The collector said he would recommend reinstatement of Dunn and it is believed the Commissioners will approve this recommendation, with the possibility of including Dunn's back pay since his suspension.

Towers was born in Cumberland County, Va., and entered the District service as a clerk in 1893. He became deputy collector some time later and was appointed collector May 21, 1920. His salary is $6,200.

October Store Sales Show 11% Increase

By the Associated Press

October sales of 23,011 independent retail stores in 34 States showed an 11 per cent increase over September, the Commerce Department reported yesterday. The October total of $252,579,724 also represented an 8 per cent increase over October, 1939.

Koshlap Named Hoya Captain for G. W. Clash

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

In his little stucco office at Griffith Stadium yesterday, Clark Griffith cut a birthday cake—his 71st— as scores of friends gathered at his party to pay deep-felt respect to the silver-haired owner of the Nats. Griffith, who is a sucker for any show of sentiment, was moist-eyed.

POVICH

If he was not completely happy, it is the fault of the men who have inherited the high office of organized baseball which Griffith helped to create. They haven't yet honored him with a place in Baseball's Hall of Fame. The omission perturbs the old gentleman.

Griffith has a goodly share of the world's goods but he is still a sentimentalist and would swap a sizable portion of his wealth for a niche in the Baseball Hall of Fame which, together with a nickel could be, in turn, exchanged for one cup of coffee. With Mr. Griffith, it is no token of aggrandizement, merely his due as one of the men who has been a potent baseball figure.

The 71-year-old owner of the Nats aspires to no fame, but he values what would be official recognition of his contribution to the game to which he has given 53 years of his life. He is powerful enough in baseball's high councils to gain admission to the Hall of Fame by the crash method—a confidential word to the proper parties—but Griffith doesn't want it that way. He wants his honors unsolicited.

Griffith's friends like to believe that the omission is a mere oversight, however, a shocking one. When Baseball's Hall of Fame was established at Cooperstown, N. Y., birthplace of the game, nearly a decade ago, a score of famous baseball figures were voted places by a Hall of Fame Commission comprised of officials of the two leagues and Judge Landis' office. Since that year, baseball writers, by vote, have elected one more name annually.

The sin lies with the commission that did not include the name of Mr. Griffith when the Hall of Fame was set up. There were important names on that original list, but there were some whose importance in baseball pales besides that of Mr. Griffith. Included in the list was the name of one president of the National League who served only a year in contrast to Griffith's service to baseball as player, manager, club owner and vice president over 53 years.

Connie Mack was one of those originally named to the Hall of Fame as he properly should have been, but there is some doubt that even Mack was more entitled to the honor than Griffith. Mack's service to organizezd baseball does not compare with Griffith's and neither does his career as a big league ball player. Connie Mack was never a great star.. Griffith led the American League in pitching, won its first pennant as a manager, rose out of the ranks to the ownership of a club long before Mack reached that high estate and was, indeed, one of the founders of the American League.

It was Griffith who took the greatest gamble on the future of the American League when, in company with the late Ban Johnson and the late Charley Comiskey he plotted throughout the winter of 1900-1901 to set up a new major league in competition with the National. At the time Griffith was a star pitcher for the Chicago Cubs, his baseball future secure, but he was willing to pioneer a new league.

Mr. Griffith did the American League's dirty work in those formative years. He not only solicited funds to help start the league financially but he trapsied all over the Nation, in New England snowdrifts, through Mississippi bogs, across Western mountains to persuade other National League stars to join up with him in the new venture. His was the toughest job—getting the players.

If he qualifies for the Hall of Fame for no other achievement he qualifies because of establishing American League baseball in New York. In that again, he was a pioneer. The National League pulled every political string to keep the interloping American League out of New York and several attempts to put an A. L. team in the city were abortive until Griffith volunteered for the job.

He left a secure post as manager of the White Sox to round up an American League team in New York and interest capital in backing the team. That was in 1904, and Griffith built the first American League park in the Nation's No. 1 city.

When Griffith came to Washington as manager of the Senators in 1912, he was confronted with the worst baseball situation in the league. Successive seasons of failure had stamped Washington as "First in Peace, First in War and last in the American League." But in his first season here, Griffith boosted the Senators into second place, and only New York and Philadelphia have won more pennants than Washington since 1912.

He's looking back, now, on 53 years of baseball, as we were saying, and can't quite understand why his name isn't chiseled on a plaque at Cooperstown. He's hopeful that some day the Hall of Fame Commission will suddenly remember that he has contributed as much to baseball as any living man.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, Nov. 20 (INS).—Have you had your irony today? For instance:

Carl Snavely became perhaps the greatest coach in football history—so far as painstaking regard for details is concerned—mostly through the medium of motion pictures. He was a pioneer in photographing every detail of a game, and went over the mistakes of his players hour after hour when the films came back. He'd call a boy in, show him a section of a reel, stop the action and describe just what was wrong. To supplement those pictures he'd write (and still does) many-paged criticisms addressed to the individuals who had messed up some play.

CONSIDINE

So what?

So he was approaching the end of the greatest season of his career. His team had been unbeaten for nearly two years. It had learned its cinematic lessons so thoroughly that it was the wisest, alertest and best drilled club in the country. It had a little matter called Dartmouth to push over, but Dartmouth put up a terrific battle and Cornell won in the final seconds of the game. After the game the story began growing that Red Friesell had given Cornell a fifth down, and that it was on this down that Cornell won with a pass play. But it was not a certain charge. The charts of some of the writers and scouts at the game might have been wrong, and it probably would have blown over just as Maag's illegal entrance into the Ohio State-Purdue game was quashed.

But the movies—those same flickers that had helped to make Snavely successful—now proved that Friesell indeed pulled a boner. So Cornell's long winning streak ended with a drab loss to an inferior foe, just as football's Merion of the Movies was about to take his final bow.

And then there's the case of Ernie Lombardi. He wants to be a big league manager. Been looking forward to it ever since he began to slow down, and that, roughly, dates back to the era of maskless catchers. The big, good-natured Italian figures that he has given a lot to baseball, loves the game, and would like to stay in it, now that his regular use as a player is coming to an end.

So what?

So he accidentally made Jimmy Wilson, his teammate, manager of the Cubs—a job Ernie would have given an arm for. Seems that on the last Eastern trip of the pennant-bound Cincinnati Reds Lombardi foolishly tore off his mask and chased back after an inconsequential pop fly. The Reds had the pennant sewed up, and had the game won, but some instinctive thing in the lumbering hulk made him go after the ball as if the World Series depended on it. It was a tricky, snakey fly. And as Lombardi stretched out for it he crashed into that gully that runs in front of the field boxes at Ebbets Field. There was a loose board over the gully. It shot from under his foot and the foot jammed down into the gully. They half carried him off the field and by the time the series came along he was still so lame he couldn't play.

So his catching assignment went to old Jimmy Wilson, whose managerial dreams had disappeared when he was discharged as pilot of the last-place Phillies. Jimmy got hot, hit .356, stole a base, looked good behind the plate and so aroused us sentimentalists in the press coop that he emerged from the series a public hero No. 1 and, still a hero, through a fluke, got the Cubs job.

Richmond Picked to Beat William and Mary For Big Six Title; Maryland Underdog To Rutgers; V. M. I. Given Nod Over V. P. I!

By Paul B. Williamson

Noted Football Selector

Feature of today's football card is the game between Richmond and William and Mary for the Big Six championship. Richmond's Spiders, because they possess a slight edge of 87.7 to 81.7 in the ratings and because they are the home team, get the nod from the system.

Another close All-Virginia State atrtaction will bring together V. P. I., rated at 85.6, and V. M. I., 85.7.

Rutgers, one of the better teams among the smaller colleges, will be a decided favorite over Maryland in their game on the neutral field at Municipal Stadium in Baltimore.

In other features Fordham is favored Arkansas, Franklin Marshall over Ursinus, Penn Military over LaSalle, Texas Tech to continue its undefeated streak over St. Louis.

College Park, Md., Nov. 20.—Maryland ran through a short, snappy final drill today, polishing up its defense for tomorrow's Thanksgiving clash with Rutgers' big eleven in Baltimore Stadium.

All of the big guns of the Terrapin eleven are primed and loaded for the game. Dressing-room "dope" indicated Maryland would turn out an unusually aggressive attack, cutting loose with everything in the trick bag.

The coaching staff was relying heavily on Joe Murphy's punting and Mearle Duvall's passes, combined with the all-around work of Bernie Ulman and Elmer Rigby, both of whom are expected to see plenty of action.

Maryland's statring line-up probably will be the same as that which opened against V. M. I. last Saturday.

Army, Navy Game Tickets Still Left, 1st Time in Years

By the Associated Press

West Point, Nov. 20.—Maybe its because of the team's none too impressive record for it maybe because loyal graduates are scattered more than ever in far-flung Army post or with the Fleet on the high seas—but anyway tickets are still available for the Army-Navy Philadelphia game at Philadelphia, November 30.

Lieut. Col. Louis E. Hibbs, graduate manager of athletics at the Army, said today there is still a small number of tickets for public sale. Normally they would have been absorbed long before now by members of the Army and Navy Athletic Association.

Last-minute requests will be honored at both the Army and Navy Athletic Association, provided they are accompanied by certified check or money order covering the $4.40 charge, plus 20 cents registration fee.

Bedwell Colt 6-1 Winner At Bowie

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Bowie, Md., Nov. 20.—Trainer Guy Bedwell, whose horses have been making few visits to the winner's circle since they went on a winning rampage at Laurel last month, gave the favorites the one-two punch today. He saddled his own Wood Chopper and Mrs. E. Graham Lewis' Pagliacci for the Goodspeed Handicap, featuring the Thanksgiving eve program and they finished one-two on the front end of a fast field of sprinters.

Wood Chopper, with Jockey H. Lindberg in the saddle, led his stablemate to the wire by a length and a half in the test of 6 furlongs. A length off second money was Mrs. Emil Denemark's Equistar. The heavily supported Gray Wolf was fourth in the group of nine. The Bedwell pair received only a scattered backing and there was an

Fordham Host To Arkansas Eleven Today

Scattered Holiday Football Schedule Includes Few Games

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 20.—The pass-throwing Arkansas Razorbacks of the Southwest Conference invade the Polo Grounds tomorrow to engage Fordham in the feature battle of the Thanksgiving Day football program.

Only a handfull of college games are scheduled over the Nation, most of the important teams either preferring to play on Saturday or wait until the following Thursday for their traditional Turkey Day engagements.

The Fordham Rams, beaten only by St. Mary's up to now and looking stronger with every appearance, will be popular favorites to lick the aerial artists from Fayetteville in the local headliner. However, Arkansas proved itself a stronger than average team by defeating the otherwise unbeaten Mississippi eleven early in the season and should give the Rams an exciting brush.

The Missouri Tigers, though defeated both by Nebraska and Oklahoma in the Big Six Conference, shape up as probable winners over Kansas in their annual struggle at Columbia, with Paul Christman doing the pitching.

The hottest setto in the South brings together those two old Virginia rivals, V. M. I. and V. P. I., at Roanoke, with the result likely to be in doubt up to the last black eye. Another "traditional" matches Colorado and Denver in the Rocky Mountain feature.

Richmond plays William and Mary, Ursinus meets Franklin and Marshall, Rutgers tees off against much-beaten Maryland, and undefeated Texas Tech takes on St. Louis University of Missouri Valley Conference.

Senior Back Given Honor In Last Game

Eighteen Georgetown Players Graduate This Season; G. W. In Hard Workout

By Jack Munhall

Halfback Jules Koshlap, one of the most brilliant figures in Georgetown's fine three-year football record, was yesterday chosen to captain the Hoyas in their 1940 finale with George Washington at Griffith Stadium Saturday.

Acclaimed by many observers as G. U.'s most valuable all-around back in light of his great improvement as a ball carrier and his continued success as a passer, Koshlap will lead 17 other Hilltop seniors into their last collegiate game.

This honor has been reserved all season for Koshlap, while Georgetown followed its custom of selecting from its senior players one or more captains for each game. The captain-elect is 21 years old, stands just under 6 feet and weighs 180 pounds. A Wellington, N. J., native, Koshlap was a bright schoolboy star at Garfield.

Koshlap is Threat

Although Lou Ghecas, Jim Castiglia and Jack Doolan have been hogging the publicity all season, Koshlap more than any of them has been responsible for the high-powered Georgetown attack that has rolled up 265 points in eight games.

Among a group of Georgetown backs conspicious for its lack of one real triple-threater, Koshlap is outstanding for his versatility. Not a great passer, he nevertheless is a constant touchdown threat. Whereas most throwers with better records build up their average with the short snappy passes that are almost impossible to stop but which are not big ground gainers, Koshlap specializes in pay-off aerials. He may not complete nearly as many as the others, but he'll probably have a better touchdown-per-game average.

Without Koshlap, the Georgetown backfield lacks deception, since each of its other members is a specialist. Lou Ghecas runs only to the outside. Jim Castiglia runs only to the inside, and Quarterback Joe McFadden carries the ball only on reverses—and seldom then.

Mixes His Running

However, when Koshlap occupies the tailback slot the opposing team cannot so quickly tell what his intention is, for he can run equally as well inside or outside and there is always the threat of his passing. It was his lightning-like touchdown tosses that demoralized both New York University and Syracuse this season and provided the impetus for crushing Georgetown victories. He passed to McFadden for a touchdown in the first two minutes

Michigan Soph Being Groomed For Quarterback

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 20 (AP).—Sophomore George Ceithaml, one of the leading rookies on Michigan's football varsity, is getting plenty of groundwork for the day when he probably will call signals regularly for the Wolverines.

The Chicagoan has appeared in all seven Michigan games this season and also may get a chance in the eighth and last, against Ohio State Saturday. Capt. Forest Evashevski, senior quarterback, stayed out of uniform today becaues of illness. If he can't go the distance Saturday, Ceithaml will relieve him.

Tech Slight Choice Over Western Today

Interhigh Grid Title At Stake in Play-off At Central Stadium

A slight margin is conceded McKinley High today, as it goes into its most crucial game of the season, a meeting with Western High's defending interhigh champion with the 1940 title at stake. Scene will be Central Stadium, the time 2 o'clock.

Public school authorities expect a crowd almost twice the size as that which saw Western, seeking its first crown since 1905, defeat Eastern in the intersectional final last year.

The teams have already met this year, and it is largely on the outcome of that batile that today's odds are based. Tech took a 21-6 victory in that one. In Western's behalf, however, it must be remembered that Jake Hilleary and three first-string linemen were absent from the lineup then with injuries.

Hilleary Ready

Hilleary, called the finest back in town by many observers, will be ready for today's clash. So will Bill Grey and Hal Mitchell, wingmen.

That will leave the clubs more evenly matched, and almost anything might happen. Both boast fine climax runners, Tech having Bill Dellastatious and Quarterback Jack Walsh, and Western having Hilleary. Maroon line plunging will be done mostly by Carleton Smallwood, a bull-like runner; Vern Holidge, and Sonny Morrisette, the latter also handling tries for extra points and field goals. Raider power drives will be in the capable hands of Buck Herrlein and Bill Marlow.

In Morrisette's uncanny ability to place-kick a ball through the uprights, Tech may have the eventual edge. Western has been forced to run and pass to its extra points all year, lacking a placement expert, and that fact might decide.

As far as the aerial portion of the game is concerned, it will be an individual battle between Walsh and Hilleary. Both are excellent punters, also.

Probable starting line-ups:

Western	Position	Tech
25 Grey	L.E.	Dodge 28
43 Taggart	L.T.	Hightman 34
36 Walker	L.G.	Jennings 27
45 Boaze	Center	Newsome 17
23 Jackson	R.G.	Fioramanti 4
55 Bishop	R.T.	Riordan 29
61 Leach	R.E.	Brent 25
69 Hilleary	Q.B.	Walsh 18
24 Kanfen	L.H.	Dellastatious 21
29 Bickel	R.H.	Holidge 32
32 Herrlein	F.B.	Smallwood 31

Reserves—(Western) Ballord (35), Lumpkin (56), Marlow (34), Rus (27), Mathews (44), Mitchell (59), Goodman (38), Gamble (53), Kuidell (26), Grady (58), Glocker (51). (Tech) O'Brien (5), Lewis (22), Flocker (16), Morrisette (20), Wilkie (29), Backora (23), McGhee (25), Bryan (26), Earman (30), Green (33), O'Connell (14).

Snavely Asks Friesell Back For 1941 Game

Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 20.—Coach Carl Shavely, of Cornell, today wired W. H. (Red) Friesell, Jr., that Cornell athletic officials had asked that he be assigned to officiate in the Cornell-Dartmouth 1941 football game.

"Perhaps you would be pleased to know that Cornell wholeheartedly approved your acknowledgement of error and retains even higher regard for your competency, integrity as an official. Have requested the central office to assign you to Cornell-Dartmouth 1941 game if possible," wired Shaveley.

Friesell Monday admitted he erred in permitting Cornell to have a fifth down in Saturday's game with Dartmouth. As a result Cornell conceded victory to Dartmouth 3-0. Cornell scored on the fifth down in the last few seconds of play.

New York, Nov. 20.—Picking the football winners, we hope:

EAST

Fordham over Arkansas—Apparently superior backfield.

Boston College over Auburn—More power.

Cornell over Pennsylvania—Big Red's livened by Dartmouth affair.

Also Columbia over Colgate, Duquesne over Villanova, Dartmouth over Brown, Penn State over Pittsburgh, Princeton over Army, Georgetown over George Washington, Holy Cross over Manhattan, Harvard over Yale, and Lafayette over Lehigh.

MIDWEST

Northwestern over Notre Dame—Speedier backfield.

Minnesota over Wisconsin—Big Ten champ keeps perfect record.

Michigan over Ohio State—Better scoring machine.

Also Purdue over Indiana, Oklahoma over Temple, West Virginia over Michigan State, Marquette over Detroit, Nebraska over Iowa State, Missouri over Kansas, Tulsa over Oklahoma A. and M., and Texas Tech over St. Louis.

South

Tennessee over Kentucky—Too much power.

Mississippi over Mississippi State

Navy's 1941 Grid Schedule Includes Dartmouth, Cornell

Columbia, Yale Left Off Card

Special Dispatch to The Post

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 20.—Featured by a game with Cornell, power team of the Eastern sector this season and also contests with Notre Dame, Harvard, Pennsylvania, Army and Princeton, as other outstanding attractions, the football schedule of the Naval Academy eleven for 1941 was anounced today by Capt. T. Starr King, director of athletics.

Yale and Columbia are the only tradional foes of this year's schedule eliminated but that will be only temporary, as Navy has an agreement with both of these institutions for alternate meetings in the near future. In their stead are Cornell and Harvard. The game with Cornell will be staged in Baltimore Stadium, October 18, as will that with Notre Dame on November 8. Harvard will be in the wake of Cornell and then will come Pennsylvania, Notre Dame, Princeton and Army, in the order named, all to be played away from home.

Only three games will be played on the home field as has been the case in recent years. For the thirteenth successive season, the Tars will open their schedule against William and Mary College of Williamsburg, Va. This will be followed by University of West Virginia and Lafayette College of Easton, Pa., on succeeding Saturdays. It will be Lafayette's first visit to Annapolis since 1920.

The teams have clashed intermittently since 1891, and there have been nine games in their series, of which Navy has won 5 and Lafayette 4. It will be West Virginia's first pilgrimage here since 1917, the days that Ira Rogers, fullback, was a terror to all opposition, and who for years coached the gridders and baseball players at the Morgantown institution. In that long span of time there were only three other games, and Navy won all.

Although Navy and Cornell varsity teams will clash for the first time, it is recalled that the second teams of the Ithacans and Middies met back in 1897.

September 27, William and Mary at Annapolis.
October 4, West Virginia at Annapolis; 11, Lafayette at Annapolis; 18, Cornell in Baltimore Stadium; 25, Harvard at Cambridge, Mass.
November 1, Pennsylvania at Philadelphia; 8, Notre Dame at Baltimore Stadium; 22, Princeton at Princeton; 29, Army in Municipal Stadium, Philadelphia.

Dixies Sweeps Preliminary Carded Today

Ed Goldblatt Leads Automotive League; Mooney Rolls 417

Hoping to augment the field for Saturday's classic, the Tenth Annual Dixie, Ralph "Monk" Frazier, Arcadia manager, will put on a preliminary tournament today. The first squad will take to the drives at 2 p. m. with the second squad going on at 7 p. m. Entrance fee for the three-game block will be $2.45 which includes the cost of the games.

ICE PALACE

The Arcade Pontiac lads in the Washington Automotive loop at the Ice Palace broke two season records for game and set with 619 and 1,769. They added two pins to the former game record and a big 20 to the set mark. Ed Goldblatt was the sparkplug for the Arcade boys with his 148 high game which also helped take the odd contest from Wolfe Motor. Bill Gloyd, McMahon Chevrolet, was set winner with 373.

BROOKLAND

Most of the high sets in the District seemed to have come up in the Brookland Merchants' loop last night, with Jack Mooney, DePerini Delicatessen, taking the biggest with 417, although Joe Donahue, Brookland Post Office, has 406, while A. J. Zugel, Hite's Shell, rolled 413. Mahoney, Brookland Hardware, took high game with 162. Hite's Shell tied the high team game mark with 640, while DePerini upped the team-set record by seven pins, getting a splendid 1,818.

PETWORTH

The Soldiers Home boys at Petworth found Abe Satterfield, Anderson and Reg Gheen the two best vets on the drives with highs for game and set of 139-351, respectively. Anderson, pepped up by Satterfield's game, outgeneraled the other quintets and marched at the double time to team highs with 549 and 1,523, and routed the Grant five in all three games.

TEMPLE

Danny Palmer, rolling them down the Temple mapleways for the Kavakos Grill boys, led the Temple Minor loop with individual highs of 157 and 391. The New Deal Men's Shop easily won game honors with a 593, but had to give way for set high which was garnered by the Loggia Roma lads.

CONVENTION HALL

Dick Gladings was the high man shot on the Convention Hall drives in The Washington Post loop with individual highs of 131-351. Team No. 1 had a 549 high game, but it was No. 7 that won high set glory with 1,572. Team No. 12 leads the loop with 24-12 followed by a three-way tie for second between Nos. 11, 4 and 1 with 20-16 each. Ollie Smith holds high average to date with 130.15.

ARCADIA

In the Bankers' Men's loop at Arcadia it was Clark, American Section No. 2, who cashed in with 156 to take high game as Fry, Hamilton National, won the set with 394 pins. The Riggs quintet closed on the other teams and the count was 607 for game and 1,730 for set.

To Captain Hoyas Saturday

Jules Koshlap, 21-year-old senior halfback from Wellington, N. J., won the honor of captaining the Georgetown football team in its season's finale with George Washington at Griffith Stadium Saturday against N. Y. U., and connected with Ghecas on a 43-yard touchdown play in the opening minute against Syracuse.

Few will soon forget Koshlap's "money" performances in the Temple game of 1939 and more recently against Boston College when, battered and weary, he steadfastly refused to leave the game. Boston College, especially, handed Koshlap a terrific physical beating but he was in there until the end, still giving a good account of himself. In the Temple game, Koshlap tore off the longest run of his college career, 64 yards on a pass interception. His play against the Eagles probably will win him recognition on the All-Eastern team, and high honorable mention for All-America.

The other Georgetown seniors who will be making their final local appearance in the George Washington game are: backs, Ghacas, McFadden, Castiglia, Buckley, Ken McNichol, and Spencer; ends, Bill Wixted and John Lascari; tackles, Bill Nealon, Bob Sullivan, Joe Daniels and Earl Fullilvoe; guards, Joe Mickey, Augie Lio and Mark Ostinato; and centers, Al Matuza and Jim Reichey. Of these all except Ostinato who is hurt, are expected to see action.

While Georgetown stepped through a light drill yesterday, George Washington forgot the proximity of the big game to engage in a hard intrasquad scrimmage. Stress was placed on perfecting a defense for Georgetown running and passing plays.

The Colonials plan to employ a six-man line against Georgetown, counting especially on their crack ends, Johnny Picco, Frank August, Dan Douglas and Adolph Biasini to prevent the Hoyas' feared sweeps from a spread formation.

When the George Washington regulars took the ball in yesterday's scrimmage against scrubs equipped with Georgetown plays, they emphasized forward passing, an indication that they might depend largely on an overhead game to upset the Hoyas. This in spite of the fact that they have completed only 25 per cent of their aerials to date.

Spirit is running high at George Washington, with a sign in the dressing room proclaiming: "Iowa beat Notre Dame, North Carolina beat Duke, West Virginia beat Kentucky. Well?

St. Paul Winger Back After Injury

St. Paul, Nov. 27 (AP).—Ted Saunders, star right winger of the St. Paul hockey team who suffered a shoulder injury in the game against St. Louis Tuesday night, probably will take his place in the line-up Sunday when the Saints meet Kansas City here.

An X-ray examination today revealed severely strained ligaments but no fracture.

Meanwhile Nig Brenneman, St. Louis flier center who suffered a skull injury in a collision with Joe Bretto, of St. Paul, Tuesday, remained in Bethesda Hospital here. Dr. John Williams, who attended him, reported the X-ray revealed a brain concussion, but no fracture of the skull. Brenneman will remain in the hospital until Friday.

Barons Beat Eagles In Overtime, 4 to 3

Cleveland, Nov. 20 (AP).—Jake Milford's goal nine seconds after the start of a ten-minute overtime period brought the Cleveland Barons a 4-to-3 victory over New Haven Eagles in an American League hockey game before 5,207 spectators here tonight.

It was the Barons' sixth victory in seven starts.

Chmielewski Promises K. O. Over Abrams

Polish Fighter Has Yen to Flatten Local Boy at Riverside

From Tom Walsh, manager of Henry Chmielewski, comes a missive stating that Henry has developed a sharp right-hand punch especially for the chin of George Abrams and furthermore that Henry will consider himself a slight flop if he fails to put the chill on Georgie.

These two fun-loving characters fight November 28, a week from tonight, in a ten-rounder at Riverside Stadium that promises to give local boxing's post-summer season letdown a big boost.

Chmielewski, a smart fighter and a good right-hand puncher, scored a hotly-contested decision over Abrams in Milwaukee, Wis., last September just after Abrams had hit the crest of a wave by beating the Cocoa Kid at Griffith Stadium.

Promoter Ray Alvis and Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn put up a battle with Milwaukee fight moguls to bring the return engagement here and won out by dangling a $1,500 guarantee in front of the somewhat battered nose of Hopeful Henry and Col. Walsh.

"We're even giving him his choice of the guarantee or 22½ per cent of the gate, so what's he losing—nothing," Goldie asked and answered in the same breath.

The double-A partnership, however, appears to be on safe footing, for both Chmielewski and Abrams are ranking middleweights and a hefty crowd is expected to be on hand.

If Abrams is knocked out by the Polish fighter, it will just put him back where he was two years ago when he started his winning habit which has made him a success in New York and just about everywhere else but in his own home town.

Tigers Taper Training for Army Battle

Soldiers Pessimistic; Colgate Works in Rain; Other Football News

By the Associated Press

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 20.—The Princeton Tigers polished up their defense for Army today in their last contact drill of the season. The squad will hold a morning practice tomorrow and take the rest of the day off.

Cornell Injured Back

Ithaca, N. Y.—Cornell's injured stars, Walt Matuszczak, Nick Drahos, Jim Schmuck and Howie Dunbar, all were back in action as the Big Reds labored through their last hard drill in preparation for Penn Saturday. The squad will hear a lecture by Coach Carl Snavely tomorrow and then leave for Philadelphia.

Colgate Works in Rain

Hamilton, N. Y.—Colgate worked long and hard in rain and mud and then looked at movies of the Syracuse game as Coach Andy Kerr sought to smooth out rough spots for the game with Columbia Saturday. Because of the uncertain footing, Jo McCourt was kept out of the practice to give his weak ankle more rest. The team will go to New York tomorrow morning and work out there in the afttrnoon.

Indians Scrimmage

Hanover, N. H.—Dartmouth's Indians scrimmaged against the freshmen in their last heavy workout of season. They will taper off with dummy drill tomorrow for Brown.

Yale Cripples Well

New Haven, Conn.—Capt. Hal Whiteman and Jim Dern came off Yale's cripple list and took part lightly in the Elis' preparations for Saturday's finale with Harvard. Coach Ducky Pond put his varsity on defense while the Jayvees displayed the Crimson's formations.

Army Pessimistic

Holy Cross Subs Center

Worcester, Mass.—Coach Joe Sheeketski established Dick Hamilton at center for Holy Cross as the Crusaders prepped for Saturday's tussle with Manhattan. He replaced Pete Maurano, who was hurt in last week's game with Temple.

B. C. Polishes Defense

Newton, Mass.—Butch Kissell and Joe Zabilski, apparently recovered from injuries, joined Boston College's Eagles in drilling for their intersectional skirmish with Auburn. Most of the practice was devoted to defensive maneuvers.

Harvard Star Returns

Cambridge, Mass.—Rapid recovery by Loren MacKinney, who has been out with a leg injury, gave Harvard hopes of having its star end and punter ready for service Saturday against Yale. He worked with the second team and although still limping, he seemed likely to get the starting call.

Columbia Drills

New York—Columbia raced Colgate formations in the Lion's last scrimmage of the season as Assistant Coaches Cliff Battles and Gerry Seidel represented the Red Raiders in action. The team will work out tomorrow as usual.

Duke, Texas A.&M. To Meet in 1942

Durham, N. C., Nov. 20 (U.P.).—Duke will meet Texas A. and M. at Duke Stadium October 10, 1942, it was announced today. The agreement was reached after Duke and Tennessee were unable to get together on dates, creating a vacant spot on the Duke schedule. The contract with Texas A. and M. is for one year.

Army Eleven Meets Tiger On Saturday

Special Dispatch to The Post

West Point, Nov. 20.—A much-kicked-about but far from disheartened Army football team was making ready today for Saturday's game at Princeton—the tenth between the two teams since the rivalry was inaugurated in 1893.

Army first beat the Tigers two years ago. In the eight previous games, covering the period from 1893 to 1908, Princeton won five and three were tied.

The Tigers, playing in their own Palmer Stadium, will be favored to top the Cadets, who have won only their opening game this season and who have not defeated a major opponent since 1938.

Coach Bill Wood has indicated there will be no changes in the lineup that started against Penn last week-end. Jim McKinney, a converted sophomore tackle, is slated to get the nod at left guard over Joe Hennessee, and Roy Johnson, watch-charm back from Wyoming, Ohio, probably will occupy one of the halfback spots.

Each player in the Princeton line-up is a star in his own right, but Army figures it will receive its most worry from the accurate ball-passing of Quarterback Dave Allerdice. Sophomore Bob Sandbach, substitute back and brother of a Princeton immortal of football's earlier days, is also a constant threat. He is a place-kicker extraordinary, and can boot field goals from any angle once in enemy territory.

The Army team will depart from West Point by bus early Friday morning for Peddie School in Hightstown, N. J., but 12 miles from Princeton. A secret practice session is scheduled for that afternoon, probably on the prep school's gridiron.

Half of the corps of cadets—900 men who did not make the Harvard trip—will attend the game. Accompanied by the U. S. M. A. Band, the six companies will leave West Point early Saturday morning by special train.

Navy Tennis Star Runs With Starting Team in Workout

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 20.—Joe Hunt, Navy's ace tennis player, was in Navy's first team backfield today as Head Coach Swede Larson sent his charges though a lengthy offensive and defensive scrimmage for the Army tilt November 30.

Other first-team backs today were Phil Gutting, Johnny Harell and Shery Werner. Cliff Lenz, Bill Busik, Hoaxx Howard Clark, Wes Gebert, Bill Chip, backs, and Bill Chewning, tackle, are being given a rest to recuperate from injuries.

Hal Harwood has replaced Ed Sims at center on the first eleven and Dick Opp took Chewning's place at tackle.

The varsity teams scrimmaged today against the Pebe and B squad. Tomorrow the Tars will pactice from 10 a. m. until noon.

Minnesota Team Nears Top Shape

Minneapolis, Nov. 20 (AP).—Minnesota counted itself, with two exceptions, in shape today for Saturday's game against Wisconsin. The casualties were Helge Pukema, guard, who has a chipped elbow, and Gene Flick, center, victim of a Charley horse, both injuries from the Purdue game.

G. W., W. & L. High In 'Bucket' Test Today

Special Dispatch to The Post

Alexandria, Va., Nov. 20.—Two of Virginia's hottest scholastic rivals will occupy the grid spotlight at Arlington tomorrow when George Washington High and Washington & Lee clash at 10 a. m. in the sixth renewal of their annual "Old Oaken Bucket" feud in the Little Generals' stadium. An attendance of better than 8,000 is expected.

While the two northern Virginia rivals have met each year for nearly two decades, the "Old Oaken Bucket" series has been established only since 1935, when they began the practice of playing each Thanksgiving morning. In this modern series, the Little Generals have won three games, while two decisions have gone to the Alexandrians.

Washington & Lee, with a vastly superior record, will be a heavy favorite to take a two-game lead in the series, and the Little Generals will be out to add the finishing touch to a successful season, while the Presidents look to the annual battle as a means of offsetting an otherwise poor record in games won and lost. The Generals have won five and lost two, while the Presidents have netted only three victories against five defeats in a tie.

Deceptive Passing Attack

George Washington supporters are inclined to disregard the season's records with the claim that their favorites have played a much tougher schedule than the Little Generals and they point to a victory over Gonzaga High and a tie with Western as an indication of the team's ability. Three of their five defeats were sustained at the hands of teams which ranked in the first six in the Virginia Class A Conference while, on the other hand, Washington & Lee was beaten by Woodrow Wilson, of Portsmouth, a team which succeeded in winning only one Class A Conference game all year.

Against Washington & Lee's highly-effective running game, paced by versatile Russ Arnaud, the Presidents will throw a deceptive passing attack built up around the tricky "spread formation" made popular in this area by Jim Pixlee several years ago.

Surprise Element Stressed

The Presidents have drilled hard for two weeks in an effort to build up a defense against the General attack, and at the same time they've been preparing an offense which promises to be heavily-laden with surprise.

While principal interest centers on the rustic "Old Oaken Bucket," the mythical northern Virginia "Big Three" championship also will be at stake George Washington defeated James Monroe, of Fredericksburg, 14-0, while the Little Generals trimmed Monroe, 13-0, and the winner of tomorrow's game will be the sole possessor of the cherished sectional crown.

Jenkins, Lello Ease Up in Work

New York, Nov. 20 (INS).—Lightweight Champion Lew Jenkins, of Sweetwater, Tex., and Challenger Pete Lello, of Chicago, today eased off in training for their 15-round title fight in Madison Square Garden Friday night.

Jenkins is a 9-to-5 favorite to win despite the fact that Lello knocked him out in a bout last year.

Jenkins today attributed that defeat to the fact that he was far underweight at the time and promised to turn the tables Friday. Lello, however, declared he was sure he would stop Jenkins as easily as he did in their previous bout.

Purdue Team Meets Indiana For 43d Time

Old Oaken Bucket Feud to Be Renewed Before 31,000 Fans

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 20 (AP).—Two football teams, going nowhere in a hurry so far as championships are concerned will get together here Saturday for the forty-third time in a series that began when Benjamin Harrison was President, the forward pass unheard of, the flying wedge a favorite mode of attack and coaches were called "coachers."

Nothing will be at stake except a battered old oaken bucket, possession of which goes to the winner, but it's a game that will make or break the season for Indiana and Purdue Universities. Their grid iron rivalry, steeped in tradition, bitterly-fought battles and even tragedy, has been going on since 1891.

Of the 42 games to date, Purdue has won 24, Indiana 13 and five ended in ties.

One a Forfeit

One game was forefeited. Back in 1894 Indiana had to throw in the towel and concede the game to Purdue because there wasn't enough money in the athletic treasury to finance a trip from Bloomington to Lafayette.

One game was called off. That was in 1903 when the train carrying the Purdue team to Indianapolis for the encounter was wrecked on the outskirts of the city and several members of the squad were killed.

Among the players injured in the wreck as the late Harry G. Leslie, who became Governor of Indiana in 1929.

In recent years the standout game was the 20-to-20 tie in 1936 when six touchdowns were scored without the ball ever being carried across the goal line. Every touchdown came on a pass into the end zone.

31,000 Expected

Both teams have been bitter disappointments to their followers this year but that won't keep a capacity crowd of 31,000 from seeing the game.

Indiana, coached by Bo McMillin, the old "Prayin' Colonel" from Center College, hasn't beaten Purdue since 1935. The Hoosiesr will stake most of their hopes Saturday on the strong right arm of "Hurlin' Hal" Hursh, one of the Nation's leading passers.

If Mike Byelene is able to play, Purdue should have some potent passing of its own, but otherwise the Boilermakers will have to rely, for the most part, on a running attack.

High-Scoring Duke and State Play Saturday

Another Thriller In Store for Fans At Duke Stadium

Special Dispatch to The Post

Durham, N. C., Nov. 20.—When Duke and North Carolina State clash in Duke stadium Saturday they are expected to produce a game that will rank with the other thrillers that have been played in the series' 14-year history.

Both clubs will be prepared to shoot the works this week-end. If they do, North Carolina gridiron fans should see one of the best offensive battles of the year.

Both teams have used a more or less open style of attack this fall. They have taken up deception and passes in a big way and will undoubtedly have some special stuff cooked up this week.

Against North Carolina last week Duke tossed a total of 19 passes which is a lot more than Wade-coached teams generally throw. Against the Tarheels the Blue Devil's aerial attack rather than their running game was their chief means of attack.

So far this year Duke has thrown 92 passes and has completed just half of them. In addition to taking to the air, they have mixed a lot of new deception in their ground plays.

Although State has dropped five games, they have not failed to score in any of them. They are a consistant scoring threat because the opposition never knows what is coming next.

The Wolfpack almost nipped Carolina at the finish with a pass which started from behind their own goal line, had a lateral tacked on about midfield and which went 86 yards before the ball carrier was caught from behind on the Tarheels' 16.

That play has been characteristic of State this fall. They start to attack no matter where they hold the ball and the result has provided plenty of fireworks.

The State game will provide the main feature of the Duke Dads' Day program. This event, which has become an annual feature, is under the sponsorship of the Duke Y. M. C. A.

Mary Hardwick Joins Pro Net Tour With Alice Marble

Chicago, Nov. 20.—Mary Hardwick, English Wightman Cup tennis star who has held both the British and French championships, and who defeated Helen Wills in 1938, today announced she will join Alice Marble in the professional ranks.

The two women stars will give playing performances on a transcontinental tour with Don Budge and Bill Tilden, starting in New York January 6. Part of her earnings will go to British war relief, Miss Hardwick said, adding that financial losses sustained by her family in England had influenced her decision to turn professional.

Miss Hardwick now holds the Los Angeles, Palm Beach, Miami, Missouri Valley and other women's championships.

Placid Peckinpaugh Expects No Trouble With Indians, but He'll Be on Spot Anyway

Not Colorful, New Pilot Won't Please the Fans Except by Victories

By Larry Hauck

Associated Press Sports Writer.

Cleveland, Nov. 20.—The turbulent Cleveland Indians will play next season for the calmest man in baseball.

Beetle-browed Roger Peckinpaugh, who starts his task fortified with a two-year contract, is one of those persons who counts to a thousand, not ten, before acting.

With the baseball world wondering what he will do with a group of players who revolted openly against their 1940 manager, Peck quietly reflected today that he had had discipline trouble only once in his 1928-1933 regime as Cleveland manager.

This rift came in 1932 when Wesley Ferrell, his ace pitcher, objected to being taken out of a close game. Wes made a few uncomplimentary remarks on his way to the bench and mumbled a few more after sitting down.

Peckinpaugh didn't decide to suspend Ferrell quickly. He thought it over for the rest of the game and then with a minimum of fuss gave him a ten-day rest without pay.

Close Friends Now

"Wes was a fine youngster," Peck said. "He just hated to lose." Today Ferrell is one of his best friends.

The new manager has heard plenty about the unprecedented rebellion last season that found a dozen veteran players marching into President Alva Bradley's office to demand that Oscar Vitt be fired. But when he was named to succeed Vitt, Peck briefly summed up the situation with:

"So far as I'm concerned, last season never happened. It's none of my business. I don't care who was involved and who, if anyone, was at fault. We'll start fresh in 1941.

"I will run the ball club to win games, and I expect discipline, if the players want to play poker, and the stakes aren't too high, that's all right. If they want to play golf, that's all right. They will have to get in early nights as usual. I don't see why I should have any trouble."

Same Difficulties

In starting his second term, Peck will face the same difficulties that brought about his ouster in the middle of the 1933 season. One was winning games, the other the feeling of fans that he didn't show enough enthusiasm.

Despite all his troubles, Vitt piloted the club home only one game out of first place. An inferior showing in 1941 is bound to start the bleacher chorus.

Vitt, the loud, showman type, baited the umpires and made a big fuss on and off the field. Players didn't like it, but red-hot fans did. Peckinpaugh, quiet by nature, probably is one of the umpires' favorites.

"I was tossed out of only one game in my 18-year playing career," he declared. "I believe that cost the umpire his job, too. I was with the New York Yankees then, and Col. Jacob Ruppert got steaming mad when I was put out in the first game of an important doubleheader. The umpire was a young fellow, and whatever I did was very minor."

Likes Feller

The new manager talks about trading for outfielder power and perhaps another pitcher, but most of his plans are in the tentative stage. Naturally, he likes to talk about Bob Feller.

"Any manager who can start with Feller has quite a pitching staff," said Peck, who rates Bob one of baseball's great pitchers because "he has a nice curve to go with his blinding speed."

"I don't expect to work Bob more than any other pitcher. Of course, it's always a temptation in a close game to toss in a fellow like that as a ninth-inning relief man.

"I remember Clark Griffith had that temptation while he was managing Walter Johnson at Washington. Griff used to solve the problem by pitching Walter in the first game of a series and then sending him home so he couldn't weaken and use him in relief roles."

Lajoie His Idol

Peck started his diamond career on the Cleveland sandlots and caught on with the old Cleveland Naps in 1910. Larry Lajorie was his boyhood idol, and he later played shortstop beside the peerless second sacker.

Since that time "Rog" has had only one job outside a baseball uniform—the American League promotional assignment which he gave up to take over the Indians.

Peckinpaugh likes to hunt, fish and play golf. He golfs in the high 70's, and the Scotch game recalls two of the rare stories about him.

Lawson Little, Horton Smith and Jimmy Thomson were giving an exhibition at a Cleveland hole-in-one layout. After lengthy demonstrations, they retired without having hit the jackpot. Then Peck stepped up and dropped his third shot in the cup.

He gave the $10 prize to a poor family, saying:

Players Pine To Cast Off Daily Routine

End 10 Weeks of Life Under Strict Rules Dec. 8; Filchock May Play in New York

Indications that the Redskins, after 10 weeks of football, are getting somewhat bored with the daily training routine and are pining for the arrival of that date on which they'll break camp, developed yesterday.

The grind of punting drills, dummy scrimmage, pass defense, etc., is wearing on the nerves of one and all, and the happiest lads around town come December 8—the probable date of the National Pro League playoff game here—will be, you guessed it, the Redskins.

"There's not much new you can do at this stage of the season, and it gets pretty tiresome out there doing the same old things every day," a prominent member of the Redskins said yesterday after another day's work for Sunday's New York game.

"About all we can do is go through the same old calisthenics, signal drills, go over a couple of new plays, maybe, but mostly it's about the same thing over and over again for the sake of developing timing."

10 P. M. Is Deadline

The Redskins, whose training grind denies them such things as a single glass of beer, are supposed to be in bed each night long before midnight and cannot receive telephone calls in their rooms at the Fairfax Hotel after 10 o'clock without special permission.

There's another item on the Skins' daily calendar after they have been routed out of bed for the 10 a. m. practice at Griffith Stadium. That's the 5 o'clock meeting at the hotel at which they listen to a long lecture from Coach Ray Flaherty on the mistakes they made in their last game and also take lengthy notes on the plays their next opponent uses.

Some of the older Redskins are in the habit of sleeping quietly through these lectures—pobably a carry-over of the habit they developed in college—and just now there's a greater tendency toward drowsiness at said meetings.

At the beginning of the season, every veteran on the squad—even Flaherty—made confident predictions that eight victories would win the Eastern Division championship this year. The Redskins have won eight and lost only one game, and from where we're sitting it appears dead certain that the Skins cannot lose now unless an earthquake, tidal wave or some such hits the Fairfax while they are all sleeping peacefully. That's the way it appears to the Skins, too, ergo, their impatience to get the 1940 season all over.

Tie Is Certain

They could drop both remaining Dodgers for the Eastern title—games and still tie the Brooklyn Dodgers provided the Dodgers win their upcoming two.

All the impatience that is piling up means that Washington will be the scene of quite some doings when the lads break camp December 8 after the playoff with the Western Division champions. The last game of the regular season is December 1 with the Philadelphia Eagles here, but the training grind in all probability will have to go on another week. But despite the tiresomeness of it all, the Redskins have plenty of inspiration for sticking to it. If they get in the playoff it'll mean something like $700 extra to each man, and as they used to say in old Spain, that ain't hay.

Filchock May Play Against Giants

Frank Filchock, suffering an inflamed side, will remain in Emergency Hospital until tomorrow but probably will be able to play should he be needed in the game with the Giants in New York Sunday.

There's nothing wrong with Filchock's passing arm, but Coach Ray Flaherty doesn't want to take any chances on Frank's hurting his injured left side again before the all-important world championship playoff here December 8.

The acme of caution, Redskin bosses are refusing to admit they'll be in the playoff yet until the team wins or ties one more game. The pass list for the playoff game will be suspended, and season ticket holders who want to buy playoff tickets will be given first choice. As yet, however, no reservations are being accepted by the Redskin office.

Spiders Meet Indians for State Title

Record Crowd to See William and Mary Play Richmond's Eleven

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., Nov. 21.—The Old Dominion football championship will be settled in City Stadium tomorrow, when the Indians of William and Mary meet the Spiders of the University of Richmond before the largest crowd ever to witness this annual classic.

The kickoff is set for 2 o'clock.

In camps 50 miles distant both teams rested tonight after a light afternoon devoted to a rehearsal of the plain and fancy plays which will be run tomorrow.

William and Mary, undefeated in Old Dominion competition and tied only by Virginia Military Institute, needs only a tie to win the title while the Spiders, upset by Washington and Lee, must outpoint their adversaries in order to gain championship laurels.

The size of the crowd was set at approximately 20,000, by W. Fred Caylor, University of Richmond Athletic Association treasurer, who said that 15,000 tickets already have been sold and that standing room tickets will be placed on sale at the stadium tomorrow. The largest previous crowd in the history of the Richmond stadium—17,500 when William and Mary and Virginia Tech dedicated the War Memorial Carillon in 1932—is sure to be eclipsed, Caylor said. The weather man promised a dry, fast field.

Both teams will enter the game with impressive records and apparently neither had succeeded in jockeying itself into the underdog position. Betting emporiums were offering even money—and take your pick.

The line-ups:

W. and M.	Position	Richmond

Christman Luck Holds, No Rain for Kansas-Missouri

Columbia, Mo., Nov. 20 (AP).—The weatherman predicted tonight the "Christman luck" would hold and that tomorrow's Kansas-Missouri football game would be played without the handicap of rain.

Never in Paul Christman's college career, which closes with this game, has he been forced to pass in rain. A year ago spectators at the Oklahoma-Missouri struggle were deluged before and after the contest but during it they weren't troubled.

The forecast of low temperatures and cloudy skies was accepted eagerly by Coaches Don Faurot, of Missouri, and Gwinn Henry, of Kansas. Passing is a spectacular part of the attack used by both teams.

Eagles Sell 235-Pound Tackle to Detroit Lions

Detroit, Nov. 20 (AP).—The Detroit Lions today announced the purchase, for an undisclosed sum, of Lester McDonald, 235-pound tackle, from the Philadelphia Eagles.

McDonald, former University of Nebraska lineman, will report tomorrow and probably will see action in Sunday's game with the Green Bay Packers. Two years ago McDonald played for the Chicago Bears.

Leahy Reported Given New 5-Year Contract at B. C.

Boston, Nov. 20 (INS).—Coach Frank Leahy, of Boston College, has been given a five-year contract carrying a sizable increase in salary, the Boston Daily Record said tonight in an exclusive article.

The Record said this action was taken at a secret meeting of the graduate board of athletics of Boston College. The contract is to take effect after the Holy Cross game, according to the article.

"It is possible that the authorities may withhold this information until after the football season when everything will be made legal and the president's signature affixed," the Record said. "But the matter has already been settled."

Leahy, at the moment one of the most talked of coaches in the country, has been under a three-year contract. A clause in the contract makes it possible for him to resign at the end of this season.

12 Cardinal Seniors Finish Up Saturday

Pete Sachon and Other C. U. Stars to Play Last Game Against Providence; Friars Will Lose Eight Men by Graduation

Twenty seniors will conclude their college football careers Saturday in Brookland Stadium, 12 for the host Catholic University Cardinals and eight for the visiting Providence College Friars.

The game is the last on the respective schedules, and the fourth between the schools. They tied, 7-7, in 1923, and G. W. won, 13-7, in 1931 and 6-0 the following year. Thus the Providence team will be after its first victory.

Pete Sachon, the kicking and passing ace of the Catholic backfield, heads the list of departing gridders while Capt. Hank Brostek and Charlie Moutenot, halfbacks, and Henry Sant'Ambrogio, who has missed most of this season due to injuries, are all backfield graduates.

Joe Carrig, who has clinched his third straight grid letter, Gerald Strang and Leo Kane are all senior ends while Julius Stanges and Jim Conlen will be lost at tackle and George DuBois and Jack Reidy at the guard posts. Morris Schulman is the only center in the senior class.

Eight seniors will be playing their last game for the Friars, headed by Co-captains Tackle Charley Avedison and end Cas Potera, the seniors are end John Wurbicki, guards, Ted Alexakos and Jos Parisdu, centers. George Sarris and Don Cronin, and quarterback Jim Pettine. Avedison, Potera, Pariseau, and Sarris are all first string men.

Coach Bergman sent the C. U. squad through a two-hour drill yesterday, stressing defense work against Providence running and passing plays. The freshmen used Friar formations. Huck Hughes worked with the regular backfield as Pete Sachon is still out with his leg injury.

The Providence squad of 32 will leave Union Station for the Rhode Island capital tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock.

St. Pauls Wins Over St. James OnInterception

Baltimoreans Beat Hagerstown Eleven, 13-6, With Rally

Special Dispatch to The Post

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 20.—An intercepted forward pass in the last quarter of today's football game here between St. Paul's School of Baltimore and St. James School, turned what appeared to be defeat for the Baltimore team into victory.

Quarterback Greene plucked the pass from the air on the goal line and ran the entire length of the field to put his team ahead after St. James had scored its lone touchdown in the second quarter. Held safe until Greene's interception St. Paul's uncorked some fine line plunging later in the quarter to clinch victory, 13 to 6.

Wagner to Be Feted By Steubenville Where He Started

Steubenville, Ohio, Nov. 20 (AP).—A testimonial dinner will be held here Tuesday night to commemorate the launching of one of baseball's most noted careers—that of Brawny Honus Wagner, renowned shortstop who now coaches the Pittsburgh Pirates.

It was 45 years ago the "Flying Dutchman" signed a contract to play for the Steubenville Club of the Interstate League at $35 a month—and there was a stipulation he had to pay for his uniform and shoes out of the modest sum.

Wagner recalls that he rode the caboose of a coal train from his home in Carnegie, Pa., to report to the club for the first time.

Things have changed since he became one of baseball's immortals. Although Carnegie, a Pittsburgh suburb, isn't a stop for main line trains, conductors make a special stop there to let Wagner off on his return from long trips with the team.

A.A.U. May Return To Yardage Basis, Abandon Metric

New York, Nov. 20 (AP).—Opponents of the metric system in track and swimming meets have announced their intention of putting up a stiff fight to return to the old yardage basis at the annual meeting of the Amateur Athletic Union at Denver December 6-8, it was announced today by the body's legislative committee.

The yardage advocates have been battling the metric system ever since it was adopted in 1933, and last year they succeeded in having it dropped for the indoor meets. This time they have a good chance of getting their beloved yards back for outdoor competition as well.

Swimming authorities are the only ones likely to kick at the abandonment of meters. Many of the finest pools built in recent years have been measured in meters, and a return to yards would eliminate them as championship sites, the committee said.

Other measures to come up for debate at Denver will ask for the addition of three long-distance walking races and the discontinuance of the 400 and 1,600 meter relays from the national outdoor championship program.

Springfield Indians Beat Pittsburgh, 2-1

Pittsburgh, Nov. 20 (AP).—Springfield's Indians defeated the Pittsburgh Hornets tonight, 2 to 1, in an American League hockey game played before 2,500 fans.

The Indians went ahead in the second period when Len Halldorson took a pass from Finkbeiner and batted in a goal. Freddie Thurier made the second and winning marker in the third period unassisted.

Eddie Convey scored for the Hornets with two seconds of play remaining.

Orioles Rout Rovers, 6-4; First Victory

Baltimore Scores Two Goals in First 3 Stanzas of Game

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Nov. 20.—Scoring two points in each period, the Baltimore Orioles won their first game of the Eastern Hockey League season tonight defeating New York's Rovers, 6-4.

Webster put Baltimore ahead with his first of two-goals during the evening in 3.21 of the opening period. After Dartnell tied it up for New York at 10.26, roach tallied for the Orioles, but the lead was shortlived when Wilson hit the net and the period ended with the count deadlocked at 2-all.

Grigor, Baltimore center, enlivened the second period when he drew a 5-minute penalty for fighting, but the Orioles left the ice leading 4-3, and held the advantage in the third stanza.

Tarheel Backs Difficult Test For Virginia

Lalanne, Pecora, O'Hare Head Fine N. C. Backfield

Special Dispatch to The Post

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 20.—There is a spirit of confidence among the Cavaliers of the University of Virginia as they approach their annual classic with North Carolina here Saturday.

Coach Frank Murray's squad started the week's work with that feeling, showed more today as they hurried through their last rough workout, and probably will be even more determined to upset the Tarheels when they see the statistics on the North Carolina backfield stars.

With everything finished for the old rivals except this last major effort, which is the forty-fifth game of the historic series started in the early '90's, the Tarheel ball-carriers have piled up total gains of 1,792 yards in nine games this season, while the Cavaliers are accredited with the modest figure of 841 yards. In passing, however, Virginia is well in the lead, 895 yards to 508.

Lalanne Leads

Half a dozen flashy backs have made heavy contributions to the Tarheel offense, with Jim Lalanne, who ends his starring career in Scott Stadium Saturday, topping the list with 536 yards as a ball-carrier and 270 yards on pass completion. Frank O'Hare, 183-pound alternate quarterback, has rushing gains of 314 yards and passed 161, and Johnny Pecora, the third of North Carolina's fine quarterbacks, holds gains of 243 yards as a runner and 69 on passes.

The Tarheel power backs, Sid Sadoff and Bill Sigler, as well as Don Baker, fleet halfback, also made good progress against such opponents as Texas Christian, Tulane, Fordham and Duke. Sadoff, able successor to a long line of great North Carolina fullbacks, ranks second to Lalanne as a ball-carrier with 323 yards.

For individual brilliance, however, Virginia's Bill Dudley promises to win the honors Saturday. The Cavalier quarterback, proclaimed as "one of the greatest triple-threat backs" he had ever seen by Maj. Bob Neyland after Dudley's performance against the Volunteers last week, has staked Virginia to collective gains of over 1,100 yards, 477 rushing and 636 on passes.

Severin Another Star

But even with such a starring cast, the backs are not likely to hold the spotlight all of the time in this renewal of the South's oldest continuous rivalry. North Carolina's All-American end, Co-Captain Paul Severin, is an easy target for his passers and has gathered in 12 for 129 yards and two touchdowns.

Both Virginia ends, Nick Gianakos and Jim White, and Halfback Eddie Bryant form a crack trio of receivers for Dudley. Gianakos, who has taken ranking this season as the finest all-round end developed at Virginia in recent years, is out in front with 18 catches for 269 yards and three touchdowns.

Dusek Tests 'Strong Man' at Arena Tonight

self-styler Kansas Krasher, who will meet Warren Bockwinkle in tonight's semi-windup on the Thanksgiving wrestling show featuring Emil Dusek and Milo Steinborn at Turner's Arena.

Milo Steinborn, who calls himself the world's strongest man, takes over the wrestling spotlight tonight at Turner's Arena, meeting Emil Dusek, the wild Nebraskan, in the feature bout of the Thanksgiving special.

Steinborn has been impressing fans with his powerful style of grappling, having whipped Herbie Freeman, the 250-pound New Yorker, last week in 19½ minutes with a bear hug for his third straight victory.

Wrestling in a headline spot last week, Dusek gave Tommy O'Toole a sound thrashing and immediately stamped himself as a feature performer.

Steinborn watched Dusek win the match from O'Toole when the Nebraskan planted a right on the Irishman's jaw, and Steinborn informed Promoter Joe Turner if his rival wants to "play that way"—he'll also use his two fists, also to good advantage.

The Thanksgiving card will include a two-man team match in which Eddie Newman, the roly-poly New Yorker, will team with Herbie Freeman against Whitey Gorvo, erstwhile Nevada cowhand, and Carl Gray, Toledo newcomer.

Joe Cox, the Kansas Krasher, who whipped Lou Plummer in a feature bout here recenty, will go against Warren Bockwinkle, the St. Louis flash, in a match that may steal the show. Paul Boesch, of California, will engage Chris Caharias, in a 30-minute bout opening the show at 8:30.

Howard Meets Lincoln At Griffith Stadium

Colored Rivals Meet in 35th Renewal Of Old Rivalry Today; Lincoln Favored Over District Team on Past Records

Starting where they left off in Philadelphia last year, the battling Bisons of Howard University will clash this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, at Griffith Stadium, with their ancient rivals, the Lions of Lincoln, in the thirty-fifth revival of their Turkey Day contests within the past 46 years.

Lincoln has but one defeat this year against its record, the one inflicted by the undefeated Morgan team, of Baltimore. But the Bisons always disregard previous records when attacking the Lions, and the outcome usually defies accurate prediction.

Last year the Bisons, as underdogs, battled the Lions jittery, to what was known as "no contest." The heat, therefore, will be on, from the first kickoff, according to Coach Harry Payne.

Approximately 7,000 persons are expected to witness the contest, but officials have been mindful of last year in Philadelphia when a similar number was expected, and 10,000 additional cash customers appeared on the scene. The crowd, it is expected, will be augumented by the fact that the game is being held at Griffith Stadium, the first time within a decade.

Old-timers remember when the Howard-Lincoln classic drew 18,000 to 20,000 spectators at the stadium, and the affair, with its floats and coronation exercises, its motion picture and magazine exploitation, was one to be remembered. Officials in charge have revived every feature of the pre-depression era in a bid for the patronage of a previous day.

Walter Mitchell, Bison fullback, will carry the load for Howard, while Bill Hunter's punting is expected to keep the Lions out of danger. The Bisons won in 1938, 6-0.

Thousands Invade Roanoke for State's Holiday Classic

By the Associated Press

Roanoke, Va., Nov. 20.—The welcome signs were hung and the latchstrings were out today as this city prepared to play host tomorrow to thousands of Thanksgiving Day visitors who will come to see the thirty-eighth military football classic between elevens of V. M. I. and V. P. I.

Estimates of the probable number of visitors ranged from 12,000 upward as the seat sale for the Turkey Day football game at Maher Field passed 15,500 yesterday afternoon, leaving little more than 4,000 tickets available.

Among the thousands expected are Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the United States Army and a V. M. I. alumnus; United States Senator Carter Glass and Gov. James H. Price.

Vanguard of the thousands arriving today will find the magic city wearing the coat of many colors she dons annually to become the Mecca for the cadet corps of the Lexington and Blacksburg Institutes, for their graduates and for many other visitors.

About 2,000 cadets will arrive tomorrow morning aboard 35 railroad cars, believed the largest number ever operated to bring the corps here from Lexington and Blacksburg. Ten cars will bring about 500 from V. M. I., and 25 cars will be in three V. P. I. specials, hauling about 1,800.

Anticipating their arrival—V. M. I. at 10 o'clock, and V. P. I. 40 minutes later—the city was placarded with welcome signs.

Terrors Drill Three Hours For Boston U.

Mounts, Shoremen Use Western Maryland Field for Game Today

By the Associated Press

Westminster, Md., Nov. 20.—Western Maryland's football squad put in three hours of concentrated drill today, smoothing over the rough spots for Saturday's Boston University clash at Boston.

Head Coach Charlie Havens announced Mac McPike, the Terrors' varsity fullback, would be unable to play, and the spot probably would go to Bob Bricker. He worked with Bricker, Ken and Bob Sorenson during the afternoon.

Ed Lewis got a workout in the blocking back position and may start against Boston. Harry Baker, on the injury list, may get the call at quarterback if he's back in shape, Havens said.

The Terrors will yield Hoffa Field to Mt. St. Mary's and Washington College for tomorrow's Thanksgiving Day game on neutral territory.

Endurance Handicap Tops Bowie Program

Magnificent Favorite at Top Weight

Race Lures Fast 2-Year-Old Field; 20,000 Expected For Holiday Card

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent

Some will eat it early and some will eat it late, but between the hours of 1:30 p. m. and 5 p. m. today, upward of 20,000 rare and regular customers will indulge in the sport of kings at nearby Bowie. With football attractions both in Washington and Baltimore offering little opposition, one of the largest Thanksgiving Day crowds in the history of the Prince Georges County oval is expected.

Racing Secretary John B. Campbell has whipped up a holiday program that should keep the customers on their toes all afternoon. The card is topped by the Endurance Handicap, a $7,500 added contest for 2-year-olds. Nine youngsters of talent for the distance of a mile and 70 yards have been named for the battle located fifth on the program.

Mrs. E. Graham Lewis' Magnificent, an improving juvenile, is expected to be installed the favorite despite the top weight assignment of 115 pounds. However, this colt will have to be in running shape for Big League, Cavalier, Hardy Bud, Commixion and others will be out there to sparate him from that first money.

Track to Be Fast

Commixion is the light weight of the party, with 104 pounds. Magnificent drew No. 1 post position and will be ridden by Jockey Al Smallmer. Although the track was fast yesterday, there is little or no chance that the record for the race, 1:34 set by Soul of Honor in 1928, will be broken.

The Endurance was inaugurated in 1922 and is an eagerly sought 2-year-old handicap. The race, in the past, has brought out many horses that went on to glory afterward. No Endurance winner has come up the following year to win the Kentucky Derby but Whiskery, after placing to Dolan in 1926, went to Kentucky the next spring and won the Derby.

Oui Oui was the first winner of the Endurance, and he was followed by a list that includes Tree Top, Sumpter, High Star, Dolan, Sortie, Soul of Honor, Snowflake, Sweep All, Mad Frump, Projectile, Chicstraw, Common Wealth, Bright Plumage, Betty's Buddy, Legal Light and Fenelon in order.

In "Chase Me" Sprint

Only three jockeys have ridden two Endurance winners and all will be out of the saddle today. They are Frankie Coltiletti, Sonny Workman and Alfred Robertson. The most valuable Endurance was the 1929 renewal which brought Owner Walter J. Salmon $16,550 when Snowflake (in a silght snowstorm) led Sweet Sentiment and Cracky Play to the wire.

The secondary feature today is the Chase Me Purse, named for Mrs. Elizabeth Bosley's sensational horse of a few years back. Eleven top-flight sprinters of the 3-year-old and upward variety have been named. Limit fields are listed in the other five events. Post time for the first race is 1:30, with the daily double closing 15 minutes earlier.

Nebraska Coach Gets Bowl Fever

Lincoln, Nebr., Nov. 20 (AP)—Coach Lawrence M. Jones had a touch of Bowl fever himself today as he drove his Nebraska football squad, senior members of which openly hope for a New Year's Bowl game bid, through a long workout in preparation for the Iowa State game here Saturday.

Jones' worry was that his Cornhuskers may be bowled over by the Cyclones if they fail to pay the closest attention to the Iowa Staters who make no secret of the fact that they've been pointing for this game all fall. A Nebraska victory would assure the Cornhuskers of nothing less than a tie for the Big Six title with a clear claim to be gained by beating Kansas State November 28.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BUSY K, $6.80, $4.50, $3.20; AMNESTY, $6.70, $4.10; SURE MISS, $3.60.
BUSY K. steadied while within striking distance, came to outside entering stretch and closed with good energy while holding AMNESTY safe. The latter was forward factor from start, took lead approaching stretch and tired slightly in closing test. SURE MISS dropped back going into backstretch and came willingly at end. BELLRINGER was sent to front boldly on backstretch and faltered in final drive.

Daily Double, MISS IDENTIFY and BUSY K, Paid $22.60

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 2:37. Off 2:38½. Winner, E. M. Doumani's br. f. †Lost rider.
Two-dollar mutuels paid—DREAM BOAT, $7.20, $4.40, $2.90; LITTLE KISS, $8.40, $4.00; CLINGENDAAL, $2.50.
DREAM BOAT took command at once, opened long lead and won easily. LITTLE KISS was in first flight from start and closed willingly, but was no match for winner. CLINGENDAAL was slow to begin and closed some ground. TIME PASSES faltered after moving up menacingly. ROUGH BISCUIT was hard ridden to reach contention and stopped. BIG BOY BLUE lost rider leaving gate.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200. For 2-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won easily; place same. Went to post 3:08. Off 3:08½. Winner, Millsdale Stable's br. c. (2), by Pilate—Our Cherrycote. Trained by B. Parke. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:13⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PIRATE, $4.00, $2.80, $2.70; FLYING EASY, $7.00, $5.60; ROUGH MAN, $7.90.
PIRATE assumed command going to turn, opened good advantage on FLYING EASY and won with speed in reserve. FLYING EASY was hard ridden and had no excuse. ROUGH MAN came up menacingly on outside, but was held safe in final drive. SAN STEFANA saved ground under strong handling and was weakening at close.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,400 added. For all ages. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:34. Off 3:36. Winner, H. G. Bedwell's b. c. (3), by Woodcraft—Highland Belle. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $990; second, $250; third, $150; fourth, $75. Time, 1:12⅘.

†H. G. Bedwell-Mrs. E. Graham Lewis entry.
Two-dollar mutuels paid—WOOD CHOPPER (entry), $18.60, $14.60, $8.50; PAGLIACCI (entry), $14.60, $9.50; EQUISTAR, $3.60.
WOOD CHOPPER, rated while closest to EQUISTAR'S pace in early stages, responded when placed to drive to wear down leader and was drawing out at end. PAGLIACCI, keen forward factor from start, came willingly at end to show excellent effort. EQUISTAR was rushed to front, drew clear approaching stretch, but weakened suddenly. GREY WOLF could not keep up in opening quarter and closed with good energy.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place same. Went to post 4:02. Off 4:03. Winner, A. C. C. Stable's b. or br. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BLACANT, $13.40, $6.70, $4.80; WAYRIEL, $5.60, $4.20; BETROTHED, $8.40.
BLACANT disposed of BROILER to take command approaching half-mile pole, set good pace thereafter and had to be shaken up to withstand closing bid of WAYRIEL. The latter, allowed to settle into best stride, improved position on inside and closed with good energy to just miss. BETROTHED was lugnish early, gained on outside and hung in final test. DULIE was in thick of contention, moved up menacingly between horses and weakened right at close.

Selections at Bowie

Dear Al:

Royal Business has gone back to her old home, the barn of Capt. Ewart Johnston, Virginia sportsman who sent her to the races Capt. Johnston purchased her from C. M. Feltner at private terms. Royal Business, of course, will see action at Charles Town where she established herself as the queen of the smaller tracks. Yancey Christmas is shipping his speedy Rough Pass to California for winter racing, and could he have an eye on that $100,000 added Santa Anita Handicap. The youngster after failing all year certainly showed a thing or two at Pimlico. Bobby Curran, of Eilver Spring, Md., after battling in hard luck now is batting 1,000 in Maryland. He saddled Charlene three times and she won, and in addition he sent Flaming High out to win a lone effort. Four out of four for him.

Seventeen different trainers saddled winners in the first 21 at this meeting. Pimlico mutuel tickets should be mailed to Maryland Jockey Club, Pimlico, Md. The three leading trainers for 1940 are on the grounds. Red Womeldorff has 106, Hirsch Jacobs 95 and Guy Bedwell 76. Eddie DeCamillis is leading the local riding colony, Jockey W. Eads, recent arrival, stands sixth on the list of American jockeys with 151 winners, 127 seconds and 121 thirds. If you don't think Jesse Bennett, custodian of the Jockeys' room, is busy he has 1,400 separate sets of colors to keep track of here. That's a new high for the oval. Eddie Brennan, serving as placing judge here, was steeplechase secretary at Maryland and Delaware tracks this year and completed 88 of 93 jumping events. That's a good record. Jockey Beverly Hacker has returned to the employ of Trainer Guy Bedwell and will accompany the Maryland trainner when he goes to California. The list of stall assignments for Charles Town shows we are going to see a lot of brand new horses at the West Virginia meeting. Visited with Hugh Miller, former ace photographer for the Morning Telegraph and now with the Washington Post, last night. Miller suffered a broken leg a month ago. He is getting along O. K. and wants to be remembered to his friends around the tracks. Jockey No Boy Jacobs will accompany the Redskins to New York on Sunday. See you on the rail—BILL.

First race—Grand Flame was in all kinds of trouble in her recent New York race, but was closing gamely in the late stages. She meets inferior competition today and receives high figure. Silver Voice may be ready for a good effort despite poor form in her last. Machree is a money possibility.

Second race—Morstep turned in a splendid performance to finish second to Oasis last outing as the latter went to win for allowances. She should have little difficulty whipping these platers. Winning Chance has shown a good form at Pimlico and Laurel and rates next in line. Argella for show.

Third race—Sailor King is a 2-year-old which ran third behind Hasty Notion at Pimlico, has shown a tendency to come from behind which will be to his advantage at this distance. He is the class of this cheap field of maidens. Aristocracy is the best of the older horses. Miss Penny should be close.

Fourth race—Jessie Gladys indicated a return to form when second to Oasis on Monday. She likes the Bowie strip and holds a slight edge over this field. Early Morn was the beaten favorite when third to Oasis and the top horse, and will be the one to beat. Clyde Tolson displayed speed in his last Pimlico race and figures next in line.

Fifth race — Magnificent established himself as a top-line juvenile when he placed second to Whirlaway in the Walden Stakes and appears to hold the endurance at his mercy. Hop Skip, second to Cape Cod in creditable time last week and might prove dangerous. Hardy Bud moves up on the Bowie track.

Sixth race — Essjaytee showed speed when second to Bridea over a muddy track opening day. When right, Essjaytee is a solid $3,500 plater and he is apparently back in form. Maechance raced well in his last, and will be the one to beat. Abmeres can better his poor performance recently.

Seventh race—Boat Crew did not show his true speed in his last race and despite moving up he receives the call off his victory over Black Grouse at Havre, where he ran a mile and a sixteenth in 1:48 4-5. Dark Watch, the probable favorite was third to Dnieper last start and is the chief threat. Barbed Retort should go well.

Best bet—Magnificent.

Chicago Sports Editor, Wife Robbery Victims

Chicago, Nov. 20 (AP).—Lloyd Lewis, sports editor of the Chicago Daily News, told police that two men, armed with revolvers, took jewelry and furs valued at $5,850 from him and his wife last night in a robbery near the Southside residence of President Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago.

The holdup occurred shortly after the couple left the Hutchins residence, where they had been visiting.

Field Hockey Carnival at Williamsburg

Pick of U. S. Players Start Play Today for All-America Posts

By the Associated Press

Williamsburg, Va., Nov. 20.—A dozen of the nation's best field hockey teams, composed of girls who have survived spirited competition in regional meets throughout the country, will open a three-day round-robin tournament at William and Mary College tomorrow.

It may surprise those who thought football had a monopoly on the autumn sports season, but thousands of young women athletes began working hopefully in September toward one big goal—a chance to compete in the United States Field Hockey Association's event here.

The tournament is the climax of the association's own novel system of selecting an all-America team.

6 Matches Each Day

It works this way: Teams in State or smaller units, embracing several women's or co-ed colleges, play round-robin tournaments before a committee of experts which selects 22 outstanding individuals from the various squads to go to the regional meet. There the entries go through a similar elimination process, with the same number of star performers being chosen to represent the region in the national tournament.

The personnel of the regional teams which will compete here was selected for the Pacific Coast in a tournament at Berkeley, Calif., Midwest at Chicago, Southeast at Baltimore, Middle Atlantic at Whitemarsh, Pa., Northeast at Greenwich, Conn., and Great Lakes at Painesville, Ohio.

After three days of battling here—six matches a day—the national committee will go into a huddle and come up with its nominations for the United States squad of 1940.

Int. Paper Net Rises 17-Fold In 9 Months

$12,214,551 Earned Or $4.79 a Share, Report Discloses

By the Associated Press

Earnings of International Paper & Power Co. were nearly 17 times greater in the nine months ended September 30 than in the same period last year, the report showed yesterday.

Net income of $12,214,551 compared with $725,301 in the like nine months of 1939. This was equal, after charges, taxes and depreciation, to $4.79 a share on the common stock after allowing for only regular preferred dividend requirements in the period. A year ago earnings were equal to 78 cents a preferred share. There is an accumulation of $12.50 a share on the preferred.

Third quarter net income of $3,937,653 was equal, after allowing for preferred dividends for that period only, to $1.52 a common share. A year ago third quarter net of $635,133 was equal to 68 cents a preferred share.

Raybestos-Manhattan, Inc.

Raybestos-Manhattan, Inc., reported for the nine months ended September 30 net income of $1,359,621, equal to $2.16 a share on the capital stock. This compared with $1,069,926, of $1.69 a share, for the like period last year.

Chesapeake & Ohio Railway

Chesapeake & Ohio Railway reported October net income of $2,477,272 and 10-months net income of $26,953,422. The October figure was down $2,374,112 from October, 1939, but the 10-months total represented an increase of $6,501,332 over the same period last year.

Liquid Carbonic Corp.

Liquid Carbonic Corp. and subsidiaries reported net profit for the fiscal year ended September 30 of $1,544,558, or $2.20 a share, compared with $1,137,326, or $1.62 a share, in the preceding year. Net shares of $19,123,556 in the 12-months were the largest in the company's history.

United Light & Power Co.

United Light & Power Co and subsidiaries today reported for the 12 months ended September 30 net income of $4,734,596, equivalent after preferred dividend requirements to 33 cents a share on class A and class B common stocks, compared with $3,572,035, or $5.95 a share on the $6 first preferred stock, in the 12 months ended September 30, 1939.

Nickel Plate Railroad

Nickel Plate Railroad listed today its October net income as $648,096, down $363,632 from the same 1939 month, and the month's net income of $2,033,096, up $508,057 from the corresponding period of last year.

Erie Railroad

Erie Railroad's October net railway operating income was $2,186,892, down from the $2,323,635 figure posted the same 1939 month.

The month's railway operating income, however, was $11,256,275 against $9,510,219 the same 1939 period.

Cotton Futures

New York, Nov. 20 (AP).—Cotton futures toppled today from the season's peak prices reached Tuesday with losses of 13 to 19 points. Rated selling factors were:

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard's remarks yesterday which gave many traders the impression there was little likelihood of a high loan rate.

Disturbing news from abroad, which held the threat the United States market for export cotton, already slashed, might be cut further.

Weakness in securities and most other commodities.

Extreme lows were trimmed a bit when late trade demand picked up.

Textile markets were a preholiday affair, Worth Street brokers reported. Only scattered sales were booked in specialty numbers and heavy goods at unchanged prices.

Exports Tuesday, 34 bales; season so far, 421,945; port receipts, 12,401; port stocks, 3,174,146.

Bountiful Menu of Increased and Resumed Dividends Is Spread Before Stockholders

Investors Who Waited Through Many Lean Years Rewarded

Best Disbursements In About 3 Years Reflect War Boom

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 20.—Corporate directors spread before shareholders today a Thanksgiving menu of increased and resumed dividends as a foretaste of what financial circles said probably would be the most bountiful year-end disbursement by American enterprise since 1937.

Despite the war-time boost in Federal taxes to help the defense bill, many companies have had sufficient increase in profits to make generous payments in the usual Thanksgiving and pre-Christmas plum-cutting.

Steel, machine-making, aviation and other industries working at record or near-record speed to arm the fighting men of the United States and England have been conspicuously represented in recent dividend actions.

For the heavy industries, fortune had swung from the depression famine phase to hte comparative feast of busy times.

Profits, however, have lagged relatively in the reutrn of industrial production to the highest levels since 1929, a big year for dividend recipients.

Many Arrears Cleared

Recovery in earning power of steel and other heavy industries brought reward in resumed payments and clearing of dividend arrears to many stockholders who waited patiently through the lean years for a return on their investments.

The Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. doubled common stock dividend payments. Directors declared a dividend of 50 cents a share, payable December 16 on stock of record November 30, against 25 cents a share paid the previous three quarters this year. They also declared regular preferred dividends of $1.37½ a share, payable January 1 on stock of record November 30.

Among the latest to pay on arrears was the Pennsylvania-Dixie Cement Corporation, which ordered a disbursement of $1 a share on account of accumulations on the 7 per cent a preferred stock, payable December 20 to holders of record December 5.

Cheer for Rail Holders

Echoing the boom in machine tools as the United States set about creating a great new war industry was the announcement of a dividend of 75 cents a share on the common stock of the Bullard Co., Bridgeport, Conn., making payment is due December 21 to holders of record December 6.

Railroad stockholders, who have been through a succession of belt-tightening years, were in on some of the Thanksgiving cheer, although common stock disbursements were restricted to a comparatively small group of strong roads.

Wall Street was agreeably surprised yesterday by the news of a $1 payment, on Santa Fe common, the first the road has ordered on the stock since 1937.

Boom days in the airplane manufacturing and supply industries brought a dividend of 30 cents a share on the class B stock of the Aero Supply Manufacturing Co., Inc., Corry, Pa., compared with a payment of 25 cents in July. The dividend is payable December 23 to holders of record December 6.

Keystone Steel & Wire Co., Peoria, Ill., declared a dividend of 30 cents a share on the common stock, payable December 16 to holders of record November 30, making a total of $1 for this calendar year.

Dividend Is Boosted

Profiting by revival of engineering construction in the greatest volume in a decade, Stone & Webster, Inc., ordered a dividend of 50 cents a share on the capital stock, payable December 16 to holders of record December 2. The previous payment was 25 cents in November, 1939.

Natomas Co., California gold producer, announced an extra dividend of 20 cents a share and the 25 cents regular quarterly disbursement, both payable December 27 to holders of record December 10.

Added to the growing year-end dividend list were:

Safeway Stores, Inc., Western food store chain, $1.25 on the common stock, payable December 20 to holders of record December 5, including 50 cents as an extra.

Newport Industries, Inc., a leading producer of naval stores in the South, 30 cents on the capital stock, payable December 20 to holders of record December 10, the first return on the stock since 1937.

Iron Fireman Manufacturing Co., maker of automatic stokers, with plants at Cleveland and Portland, Oreg., extra dividend of 25 cents on the common, payable December 20 to holders of record December 5, making payments for the year $1.45 against $1.20 in 1939.

Goodrich Pays 50 Cents

B. F. Goodrich Co., rubber manufacturers, 50 cents on the common, payable December 20 to holders of record December 6; previous payment was $1 in December, 1939.

Veeder-Root, Inc., Hartford and Bristol, Conn., manufacturers of machines, parts and instruments, $2 on the common, payable December 16 to holders of record December 2, making $4.50 this year against $4 in 1939.

Union Pacific Railroad, usual quarterly payment of $1.50 a share on the common, due January 2 to holders of record November 30.

Penick & Ford, Ltd., corn products, 75 cents on the common, payable December 14 to holders of record December 2, making $3 this year against $4 in 1939.

Kimberly-Clark Corporation, paper manufacturer, with plants in Wisconsin and New York, 50 cents on the common, payable December 26 to holders of record December 10 in addition to the regular quarterly payment of 25 cents, due January to holders of record December 10.

More Than Doubled

Driver-Harris Co., Harrison, N. J., alloys fabricator, 60 cents on the common, payable December 23 to holders of record December 12, making $2.40 this year against $1.10 in 1939.

United States Graphite Co., Saginaw, Mich., 25 cents on the capital stock, payable December 14 to holders of record December 2, against 20 cents in September.

Vanadium Corporation of America, with manufacturing plants at Bridgeville, Pa., and Niagara Falls, $1.50 on the common, payable December 14 to holders of record November 30; previous payment was $1 last December.

Doehler Die Casting Co., Toledo, Batavia, N. Y., and Pottstown, Pa., 50 cents on the common, payable December 24 to holders of record December 14, making year's payments $1.25 against nothing in 1939.

Aluminum, Ltd., Canadian producer of aluminum, $2 on the common, payable December 20 to holders of record November 30, bringing 1940 payments to $8 compared with $4.25 and a 10 per cent stock dividend in 1939.

The Biggest Plum

In the final rush of dividend declarations before Thanksgiving, America's No. 1 corporate giant, the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., ordered payable to some 632,000 shareholders the regular quarterly disbursement of $2.25 a share on the common stock.

The action called for distribution of approximately $42,000,000 on January 15 to shareholders of record December 16.

Record Level Set By Assets Of Perpetual

D. C. Building Group Reports Resources At $51,900,000

Assets of the Perpetual Building Association during the past year advanced to a new all-time of $51,900,000, Secretary Edward C. Baltz reported yesterday. In the previous year, assets totaled $50,250,000.

Stockholders at the fifty-ninth annual meeting this week voted to transfer $250,000 from the undivided profits account to surplus, raising the latter acount to $3,500,000.

Executives were reelected as follows: Arthur G. Bishop, chairman of the board; Marvin A. Custis, president; Vernon G. Owen, vice president; Mr. Baltz, secretary, Franklin W. Harper, treasurer; William H. Dyer, assistant secretary; James C. Roy, assistant treasurer and William H. Rippard, auditor. Directors: Thornton W. Owen, John C. Scofield, Samuel Scrivener, Dr. William G. Schaffhirt and Messrs. Bishop, Curtis, Baltz, Harper and Vernon Owen.

Dr. Stevens to Talk

Dr. William H. S. Stevens, assistant director of the Bureau of Statistics, Interstate Commerce Commission, will be principal speaker at the meeting of the fiduciaries section of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, to be held at the Raleigh Hotel on December 3. Dr. Stevens will discuss "Railroad Reorganization and the Outlook for Railroad Securities."

Dr. Stevens is professor of corporation finance at Johns Hopkins University and American University, and formerly taught at Tulane, Columbia and Maryland Universities.

Birckhead Promoted

John N. Birckhead has been elected assistant treasurer of the East Washington Savings Bank, the board of trustees announced yesterday. John C. W. Beall was elected chairman of the executive committee and Ernest E. Herrell was elected a member.

14% Increase Anticipated in 1941 Building

New York, Nov. 29 (AP).—F. W. Dodge Corporation today estimated the 1941 building and engineering contract total in the 37 Eastern States at $4,400,000,000, an increase of 14 per cent over the 1940 estimated aggregate of $3,850,000,000. The 1941 expected volume is the highest since 1930.

"Construction for the defense program is expected to dominate next year's activities," the Dodge report said, "to turn to very large volume during the first half of the year and to carry a distinct possibility of enlargement if additional appropriations are made by the next Congress.

While stable building costs for 1941 are uncertain, the Dodge analysis indicated a probability that building cost increases will remain within moderate bounds during most, if not all, of 1941.

Va. Utility Plans Debt Refinancing

Richmond, Va., Nov. 20 (AP).—The Virginia Public Service Co. asked the State Corporation Commission at a public hearing today for approval of a plan for refinancing its long term indebtedness of approximately $37,000,000 at a lower interest rate which counsel said would permit a saving of about $640,000 a year in carrying charges.

The Commonwealth, through special Assistant Attorney Gen. C. M. Chichester, questioned the propriety of approving the plan, however, without a further review of the comapny's operations and contended that Associated Gas & Electric Co., a holding company, "dominated" V. P. S. and should be made a party to the proceedings.

Sugar Futures

New York, Nov. 20 (AP).—General selling in the sugar futures market today met little resistance.

The world list dropped 2 to 3 points on turnover of 6,050 tons; December, 73½; March, 77½ bid.

Domestic contracts also lost 2 to 3, except nominally unchanged November, on sales of 5,700 tons.

Raws were reported without confirmation available below 2.90 cents a pound. One lot of Cubas loading November 27 and some 1941 Philippines were priced at 2.90 to 2.95 cents.

London Stocks

London, Nov. 20 (AP).—Questions created by latest German diplomatic moves resulted in a generally lower trend in the securities market today.

While declines spread to all sections real selling pressure failed to develop. Trade dried up.

British government bonds lost an outside of ¼ point. Foreign loans, however, held steady with the exception of recently supported Egyptian bonds.

Domestic rails dropped as much as 1½ points on news another wage claim was being considered by union officials. Profit taking clipped industrial leaders.

Johannesburg selling depressed both producers and nonproducers in the kaffirs. Copper and diamond stocks followed the general downward pattern, along with oils and rubbers.

Disquieting War News, Preholiday Selling Depress Leading Stocks $1 to $4 a Share

New York, Nov. 20.—Leading stocks fell 1 to 4 points in today's market as the war news was interpreted more bearishly and traders lightened commitments as a preholiday caution. The list backed away at the start and occasional efforts for a rally usually were unsuccessful. Most steels, motors, aircrafts and pivotal industrials closed not far from the lows of the day.

Negative comfort was found in the relative smallness of offerings on the decline. Despite the substantial reduction of quotations, transfers totalled only 813,760 shares against 702,880 the day before. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off .8 of a point at 44.6 compared with 44.8 a month ago. It was the biggest day's recession since November 6. At the finish the industrial composite was back to about the level of the latter part of September.

In view of the fact principal financial markets will recess tomorrow for the celebration of Thanksgiving, the ordinary inclination of commission house customers would have been to trim accounts.

This normal urge was accentuated today, brokers said, by the foreign news budget, telling of the disastrous Nazi blasting of Birmingham, the important British industrial center which, added to the recent smashing of Coventry, tended to chill speculative spirits.

Depressing implications marketwise also were seen in the announcement Hungary had joined up with the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo alliance and fears the move to combine the Balkan powers in the battle on England was gaining headway.

Another batch of highly cheerful dividend declarations and earnings statements served to bring in a little support now and then but this was hardly sufficient to stem the downward tide. The refusal of Congress to adjourn also revived the idea upward tax revisions might be considered shortly.

Prominent share sliders included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Du Pont, Union Carbide, Eastman Kodak, American Telephone, Anaconda, American Smelting, International Nickel, Great Northern, Pennsylvania, Texas Corp. and International Paper Preferred.

Commodities were about as weak as stocks. Wheat at Chicago lost 1⅛ to 2 cents a bushel and corn was down 1½ to 2⅛. Soy bean futures broke 8 cents a bushel, the limit permitted in a day's trade. Cotton was in arrears 65 to 95 cents a bale.

Among curb losers of as much as a point or so were American Gas, Creole Petroleum, Brewster Aero, Bell Aircraft, Jones & Laughlin and Scoville Mfg. The turnover here was around 119,000 shares versus 109,000 Tuesday.

Losses predominated throughout the list and ranged from small fractions to around 3 points in the more speculative loans while persistent buying edged two higher priced groups into new peaks for 1940.

Buyers appeared timid and highly selective from the start and by noon those wishing to dispose of a large assortment of rails and foreign dollar issues had to accept substantially lower prices than prevailed at Tuesday's close.

Prominent on the slide were, among others, International Telephone 5s at 24, off 1¼; Hudson Coal 5s at 27½, off 1½; Alleghany stamped 5s at 59, of 2¼; commonwealth Edison convertible 3½s at 113⅝, off 3⅜; Western Union 5s at 77, off 1⅛ and Northern Pacific 4s at 73, off ⅝.

Denmark 4s advanced 7 points to 39 but losses were more numerous than gains in other dollar issues. U. S. Governments closed 2/32 of a point down to 70 5/32.

Sales of $8,871,200, par value, compared with $8,297,000 on Tuesday.

Export Trade Spurt Branded As 'Artificial'

U. S. Aides Discount 37% Increase as War Inspired

By the Associated Press

America's favorable foreign trade balance reached almost $1,400,000,000 for the first year of the European war—the highest peak since 1921—but Commerce Department analysts evinced little satisfaction yesterday over the record.

"Our export trade is becoming more and more a war or artificial trade," said Louis Domeratzky, chief of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce division of regional information.

He was commenting in an interview on the fact that the United States shipped more than $4,000,000,000 worth of goods abroad in the 12 months ending September 1.

This was a gain of 37 per cent over the previous corresponding period, and compared with the 22 per cent increase during the first World War year of 1914-1915.

Imports for the first year of the current conflict were valued at $2,600,000,000, a gain of 23 per cent over the preceding year, compared with a loss of 13 per cent in the first World War year.

Domeratzky explained that a month-to-month analysis showed the spread of war had progressively restricted normal exports to continental Europe until today it is a mere trickle.

While Great Britain and her possessions had taken up much of the slack by war purchases, he said that this was not a very "healthy sign," when contemplating the outlook for future normal markets.

Turkey Prices Quoted Lower in Preholiday Trade

Chicago, Nov. 20. (AP).—Pre-Thanksgiving prices of dressed turkeys in the wholesale market were the same as a year ago, but duck and geese were a cent lower while chickens were slightly higher, trade figures showed today.

In the dressed market young turkey hens were quoted at 21 cents a pound and young toms at 24½ cents a pound. Geese were quoted at 15 and ducks at 16 cents.

Turkey prices were 1 to 1½ cents lower than a week ago when prices rose 1½ to 2 cents following the wintry storms that swept through the principal turkey producing centers of the West and Northwest and killed about 4 per cent of the Nation's supply.

Chicago Livestock

Chicago, Nov. 20 (AP).—Although receipts were moderate and the dressed market steady, hogs sold steady to 5 cents lower today. Cattle moved at steady to strong prices while lambs were mostly steady.

The preholiday session with its competition from the poultry markets brought only moderately active trading and prices which opened fully steady developed weakness.

Fed steers and yearlings grading strictly good and better showed strength on shipper and order buyer accounts with the best bringing $14.60 and some held higher.

Cotton Spinning Rate Up Sharply

By the Associated Press

The Census Bureau reported yesterday that the cotton spinning industry operated during October at 103.3 per cent of capacity on a two-shift, 80-hour week basis, compared with 96.7 per cent during September this year, and 97.9 per cent during October last year.

Spinning spindles in place October 31 totaled 24,571,456, of which 22,456,588 were active at some time during the month, compared with 24,616,762 and 22,278,204 for September this year and 25,081,048 and 22,658,994 for October last year.

Interurban Line Loses U. S. Tax Case

Chicago, Nov. 20 (AP).—The Federal District Court ruled today that the Chicago, North Shore & Milwaukee Railway, an electric line, was engaged in interstate commerce and therefore, subject to the 1937 railway retirement and carrier taxation acts.

The line carries passenger and freight traffic from downtown Chicago to Milwaukee, serving intermediate communities in Illinois and Wisconsin.

Parkinson Elected To A. T. & T. Board

New York, Nov. 20 (AP).—Thomas I. Parkinson, president of the Equitable Life Insurance Society of the United States, today was elected a director of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. He will fill the vacancy caused by the death of Hale Holden.

Frank P. Lawrence, vice president of the Manhattan area of New York Telephone Co., was elected a vice president of the parent organization in charge of the long lines department, succeeding Vice President Cleo F. Craig, who will take charge of the department of personnel relations upon the retirement of Vice-President Karl W. Waterson.

Wholesale Commodity Index Continues Rise

By the Associated Press

The Labor Department said yesterday that its Bureau of Labor Statistics' all-commodity index of wholesale prices increased 0.6 per cent during the week ended November 16. It now stands at 79.3 per cent of the 1926 average. This is 1 per cent higher than a month ago.

The rise was attributed mainly to advances in prices of farm products and foods.

Press Club Post Of Legion Elects Long Commander

Marked by a quail dinner, the annual election of officers of the National Press Club, Post No. 20, District of Columbia Department of the American Legion, took place last night at the National Press Club, Nathan Golden, the retiring commander, presided.

Lieut. Comdr. E. John Long, U. S. N. R., was the unanimous choice as commander of the newspaperman's unit. Long is associated with the National Geographic Society magazine.

Elected first vice commander was Stephen G. Walter; second vice commander is Roy St. Lewis, a former Assistant United States Attorney General; third vice commander is Maj. Paul J. McGahan, a former department commander.

The new adjutant is Frederick Shelton. Renamed as finance officer was Harry E. Radcliffe. Reelection likewise came to H. K. Baukhage, a past post commander, in his perennial role of post chaplain.

The new officers will be inducted at the December meeting.

Gets Navy Contract

By the Associated Press

The Navy Department announced yesterday the award of construction and supply contracts amounting to $1,606,609. Among them was the General Fireproofing Co., Washington, D. C., aluminum chairs, $361,-435.65.

NOTICE OF PUBLICATION.

Certificate of Limited Partnership. We, the undersigned, do hereby give notice that we have signed, sworn to and on this 16th day of November, 1940, have filed and recorded in the office of the Clerk of the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia, a certificate of the formation of a limited partnership, as follows: 1. The name of the partnership is the Federal Industries Company. 2. The partnership is formed for the purpose of carrying on the business of mercantile brokers, financial and promotion agents. 3. The names of the general and special partners are as follows: General—E. A. Kerschbaumer, Mayflower Hotel, Washington, D. C; special—Ernest Espinosa, 2718 Cortland pl. nw., Washington, D. C.; Sidney M. Weil, Washington Hotel, Washington, D. C. 4. The general partner and the special partners each has contributed the sum of $250.00 and other good and valuable consideration to the capital stock of the partnership. 5. The partnership is to commence on the fifteenth day of November, 1940, and continue perpetually until dissolution in consequence of death of one of the partners or insolvency of the partnership or of the general partner, or until dissolved by mutual consent, but in no case until a notice of such dissolution shall have been filed and published according to the laws of the District of Columbia. In witness whereof, the said parties have hereunto set their hands and seals this 16th day of November, 1940. E. A. KERSCHBAUMER. ERNEST ESPINOSA. SIDNEY M. WEIL.

I, C. Maurice Weidemeyer, a notary public in and for the District of Columbia, do hereby certify that E. A. Kerschbaumer, Ernest Espinosa and Sidney M. Weil, parties to the foregoing certificate of a co-partnership agreement bearing date on the 16th day of November, 1940, personally appeared before me in the said District, the said E. A. Kerschbaumer, Ernest Espinosa and Sidney M. Weil, being personally well known to me as the persons who executed the said foregoing certificate of a co-partnership agreement, and each acknowledged the same individually and in the presence of each other, to be his act and deed. Given under my hand and seal this 18th day of November, 1940. C. MAURICE WEIDEMEYER, Notary Public, D. C. My commission expires January 31, 1942.

8, WRC—Jack Benny braves the menacing Baby Snooks—none other than Fanny Brice, of course, but Fanny love, don't you think its about time you gave the radio audience some of your other (and better) characterizations—humorous ones to be sure, but here's someone who's very tired of Snooks simply because we're missing so many other things.

9, WRC—Now that Bing's back, some wonderful things are transpiring on that music hall of the cheese people, Ogden Nash ("The Golden Trasherie" of Ogden Nasherie) joins Robert Young and those two-piano whizzes, Fray and Braggiotti.

9:35, WMAL—"How Should We Meet Totalitarian Aggression in the Americas?" is the question occupying the Town Meeting of the Air. A. A. Berle, jr., Assistant Secretary of State, and Carlos Davila, former Provisional President of Chile and former Chilean Ambassador to the United States, are the speakers.

10, WRC—Ethel Barrymore, starring in a critically-cheered role at the National this week, has a portable radio in her dressing room. But she'll be rather busy being "Miss Moffat" when brother John, is playing a managing editor to Rudy Vallee's eagle-eyed reporter.

10:15, WJSV—Frank T. Bow, general counsel of the National Council of Independent Unions, pleads for national unity in a talk titled, "Undominated Labor."

10:30, WRC—James Melton and Irene Beasley join forces for Musical Americana with Raymond Paige's orchestra.

Grin and Bear It — By Lichty

"Of course, we don't want any chorus girls for this job—but, on the other hand, we don't want to break the morale of the men!"

Listen!
with Glynn

(WJSV's Barry Blake Pinch-hits today for Paul Glynn)

"How can I get into radio?"

That's the question asked every day by enthusiastic high school students, job hunting college graduates, restless middle-aged office workers, and elderly men and women with a flair for showmanship. If you would speak intelligently with a radio executive, you must define your terms! What branch of radio are you interested in? "Oh!" comes the startled answer. "How many branches are there?"

Announcing—for young men with persuasive voices, contagious personalities, a college degree preferred.

Engineering—for technically educated men who make the microphones work.

Writing—scripting for commercial and sustaining shows, nice work if you can get it with advertising agencies with healthy radio accounts.

Production and direction—for men or women with a flair for the dramatic and good imaginations schooled in broadcasting technique.

Selling—for a man with get up and go who can win contracts and influence sales.

Promotion—for a guy who is clever enough to see new opportunities for bringing the radio station's name before the public eye.

Publicity—for a guy who can write clearly and convincingly and who is enthusiastic about the material he writes about.

Acting—a good paying job for men and women in the major radio markets, but not in Washington.

Contract Bridge

Mrs. V. W. W., writes: "East opened with one no trump and I doubled. West bid two spades and my partner passed. East passed and I doubled two spades, delightedly. West passed and my partner sat and deliberated and finally said, 'Three clubs.'

"The first double was forcing, to my way of thinking, and the intervening bid would let my partner out. My second double was intended for business; how can that be made clear?"

The cards:

South	North
♠ K Q 10 5 4 2	♠ 9
♡ A 10 6	♡ K J 5 2
◇ A 6 4	◇ Q 10
♣ Q	♣ J 9 8 7 6 3

Referring to the last paragraph under (3) of the Culbertson explanation, we find that the second double would be interpreted as a take-out double. However, consideration should be taken of the fact that the second double was of a major rather than a minor suit. Since any take-out double shows strength in one or both of the majors, North might well deliberate before taking out. If he then decided to bid, he should prefer his major, hearts, to his long weak minor club suit.

30-Pound Bobcat Shot in Maryland

Special Dispatch to The Post

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 20.—R. V. Hendrickson, of LaVale, a suburb, yesterday shot on Warrior Mountain the largest bobcat seen in this territory in years. It weighed 30 pounds. The animal was stalking wild turkeys when Hendrickson brought it down.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — New Pitcher for Visiting Team — BY MILTON CANIFF

STAY OUT OF HIS LINE OF FIRE! HE'S BLIND WITHOUT HIS GLASSES!
.. SETTLE DOWN, CHOPS! WE KNOW YOU HAVE ALL THE DOORS AND WINDOWS BARRED AND GUARDED! YOU JUST SEND WORD TO THE SENTRIES THAT THEY'RE ON OUR SIDE, NOW! THE INVADERS HAVE PROBLEMS ENOUGH AT THE MOMENT—IF THAT NOISE OUTSIDE MEANS ANYTHING!
THAT MEANS TERRY AND THE GUERILLAS ARE GAINING STRENGTH! WE'LL HAVE THE INVADERS IN A CROSS FIRE! DOUSE THE LIGHTS AND MAKE AN OPENING YOU CAN SHOOT FROM!
